Autos Kill 1, Hurt Score; Interne Held After Chase

Hughesville, Md., Man Is Victim; Doctor Faces Drink And Hit-Run Charges

An automobile death in Maryland and the arrest of a Providence Hospital interne for drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident yesterday marred a perfect summer weekend.

A score of persons was injured in traffic mishaps.

Winfield Swann, 55, of Hughesville, Md., died in Casualty Hospital at 7:30 last night of injuries suffered yesterday when struck by a car on the highway south of Bryantown, Md. Clarence Coocksey, Dentsville, was said by police to have been the driver of the automobile.

Dr. Edward R. Stone, jr., 26, of 2514 Q street northwest, was released in $800 bond covering both charges at the Seventh Precinct Station. He was captured after a chase of several blocks by Metropolitan Police Private William C. Truesdale, 1111 B street southeast, whose automobile also was involved in the three-car crash on Rock Creek and Potomac parkway near M street, according to the report.

The third car in the accident plunged off the roadway to within a few feet of the creek, but neither of its two occupants was seriously hurt. Charles Watson, 58, of 1916 F street northwest, the driver, escaped uninjured, but his passenger, Mrs. Selma Powell, 35, of 1900 F street northwest, suffered scalp cuts.

Car Leaves Highway

Park police said Stone's car and Watson's collided and that the Watson machine struck a car driven by Truesdale before plunging off the road. Truesdale said he chased Dr. Stone to Twenty-fifth and Q streets northwest before forcing him to stop.

Three Washington youths were injured, one seriously, when their car overturned after leaving the highway near Fredericksburg, Va., while en route to Colonial Beach.

Joseph C. Scafide, 20, of 1347 Florida avenue northest, suffered facial injuries; Edward Lewis, 13, of 274 Fifteenth street southeast, bruises, and Sidney Hooe, 20, of 126 Kentucky avenue southeast, possible skull fracture.

Car Overturns Twice

Hooe, in Mary Washington Hospital, Fredericksburg, failed to regain consciousness several hours after the accident. Scafide told police he was unfamiliar with a by-road on which they were traveling and failed to turn when they reached a junction with the main highway. The sedan overturned twice.

Three Marines from the Washington Barracks escaped serious injury when their car failed to make a curve 1 mile north of Dunkirk, Md., hit a tree and rolled down an embankment.

Edgar D. Harbert, the most seriously hurt, was treated for an arm fracture at the Calvert County Hospital, Prince Frederick. Donald Doxey and Millwood Harvey returned to Washington.

In Martinsburg, W. Va., a man reported to be Albert Crist, of Washington, was involved in a three-car crash in which three persons were killed. Police said that Crist's automobile, coming over a hill, ran into two other cars which had previously crashed. The dead were all West Virginians.

Boy's Condition Serious

In Washington a 7-year-old boy suffered a skull fracture when struck by a street car as he ran from one parent to another across Deane avenue at Forty-sixth street northeast. He is George Granville Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis, 4445 Deane avenue northeast. Casualty Hospital reported his condition serious. Conductor

Fleet Returns To Hawaii; Trip 'Routine'

By the United Press

Honolulu, June 30.—The United States fleet returned to Hawaiian waters today and anchored in Lahaina Roads.

Rear Admiral J. O. Richardson, commander-in-chief, in a statement explaining the Fleet's absence, said:

"Regarding the departure last Monday of a major portion of the United States Fleet, this merely was a routine training exercise simulating a wartime sailing without previous notification.

"Such exercises have taken place in the past and are an essential and valuable part of training. They may be expected to reoccur at irregular intervals.

"The nature of the exercise precluded the use of radio, otherwise I would have corrected the highly speculative impression created by the maneuver."

Despite Richardson's statement, the return of the Fleet caused much unofficial speculation inasmuch as previously it had been reported that the Fleet intended to go to the Panama Canal.

The possibility was seen that the renewed tension of the Far Eastern situation may have been a factor in the return of the Fleet.

Wallace Says Hitler Stirs Strife in West

Burke, Col. Donovan Urge Army Training; Capper Opposed

Political leaders of America and a man who has led Americans in battle yesterday declared war on war.

Though they disagreed on methods, a Cabinet officer, five members of Congress, a World War commander of a fighting regiment and an officer of the American Legion shared the theme that this Nation must not become embroiled in Europe's quarrels.

In two cities, from three platforms, they attacked war and urged preparation against war on three fronts—military, economic and political.

Wallace Accuses Hitler

Speaking from Washington by radio on the University of Chicago Round Table, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace warned that the Americas must present an economic "united front" against "domination" by a Hitlerized Europe. He charged that the Nazi Fuehrer already seeks to create inter-American dissension as the foundation for economic domination of the Western Hemisphere.

At Chicago, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, declared "a new and great antiwar party" would be averted only by a Democratic pledge not to send American soldiers "to a foreign shore." The Democratic Party, he told a "keep America out of war" mass meeting, "must be a peace party."

Homes Flooded As Cloudburst Hits Texas Area

Schulenburg, Tex., June 30 (AP).—Violent flood waters born of weekend cloudbursts along the watersheds of the Colorado and Lavaca rivers swept through the fertile southeast Texas area today, pouring into business districts of isolated towns and trapping many residents who took refuge in trees and on housetops.

Several persons said they saw two families—five persons—swept down the river in their homes.

Arms Drive Renewed In Congress

Adjournment Fight, Defense Bills Take Precedence in Week Cut by Holiday

Congress returns to the task of building the Nation's defenses today in sessions likely to lay down early battle lines of the national election and to be highlighted by a bitter renewal of the adjournment squabble.

In a week in which the Fourth of July holiday can be expected to cut the number of working days to two, or at the most, three, the drive for defense, linked with between-conventions political considerations, will have these features:

Some consideration will be given an excess profits tax. A conference on the subject was asked last night by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, to be held today with Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee and members and experts of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue.

Navy Bill on "Must" List

The House-approved bill to authorize a 70 per cent expansion of the Navy is still on the Senate's "must" list. The measure, which would involve an estimated $4,000,000,000 expenditure, is still under committee consideration, with prospects slim for its removal to the Senate in the holiday-shortened week.

A decision in the compulsory military training controversy is a "must" item in both houses. A start may be made in the Senate Wednesday, when the Military Affairs Committee is scheduled to take up a bill introduced by Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, at the request of the Military Training Corps Association.

Reinforced Republican resistance, with resultant intensification of the sine die adjournment squabble, is forecast. Administration leaders gave no sign last night of willingness to yield to the demand for keeping Congress on the job to deal with developments from the conflicts in Europe.

Chamber Joins Opponents

The United States Chamber of Commerce last night threw its weight against adjournment proponents with a demand that "Congress should remain in session . . ! so long as urgent questions need consideration."

Bitter opposition to the nomination of the Republicans, Col. Henry L. Stimson and Col. Frank Knox, to the War and Navy secretaryships, already has taken shape with a small group of Senators demanding open confirmation hearings. Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, has announced he would not be bound by his secrecy oath, should sessions of the Naval Affairs Committee on Knox be conducted behind closed doors.

In addition to the compulsory training proposal, the Senate Military Affairs Committee soon will have before it a bill by Chairman Sheppard to amend the National Defense Act to permit Governors of the States to organize "home guard" units to serve whenever the National Guard is called to the colors.

Col. F. C. Harrington, works progress administrator, told the Nation in a radio address yesterday that by fall at least one-third of its WPA workers would be employed in activities that would contribute to the defense pro-

Russians Battle Rumanians, Land Tanks by Plane, Seize Danube Port; Chamberlain Denounces Peace Talk

England Prefers Ruin to Domination By Hitler, Declares Ex-Prime Minister

Copyright by New York Times

London, June 30. — As Britain's zero hour approached Neville Chamberlain, former premier and leader of those known as the "men of Munich" who still retain positions of power in the war cabinet, found it necessary tonight to assure the empire and the United States that he and his colleagues were done with appeasement.

There was little news for those who know the temper of the people of this island in his words that the British nation "would rather go down to ruin than admit domination by the Nazis." The most interesting thing about the speech was that it was made at all.

To understand the reason, it is necessary to understand something of the political background behind it. When Winston Churchill became prime minister, succeeding Chamberlain after the Allied fiasco in Norway, it was decided to keep the 70-year-old Birmingham business man in the new war cabinet for the sake of national unity. Likewise Viscount Halifax was retained as foreign minister, and Sir Samuel Hoare, the former air minister, was sent to Madrid partly to get him somewhere else and partly because it was hoped he might be able to keep Gen. Francisco Franco from the enemy camp.

Clamor Grows Against Him

Lately, since the debacle in France, there has been a growing clamor against Churchill's retention of Chamberlain and his close associates in positions of prominence, if not power. The chief reason advanced is that so long as they remain in the inner circle of the government, people abroad, especially in such neutral countries as the United States, are going to be skeptical of Britain's determination to fight to the finish against the Nazis.

A few days ago there was brought a striking example of this when a story was cabled from here by an American news agency to the effect that fears were entertained that Chamberlain, Viscount Halifax and Sir Samuel might follow the lead of the Petain government and seek a cessation of hostilities with Germany. Publication of this story brought vehement denials from official sources and the Conservative Party hastened to declare its confidence in the Chamberlain leadership.

May Be His Valedictory

However, in the present tense situation, even these declarations apparently were held insufficient and therefore a world-wide broadcast was arranged for tonight to permit Chamberlain to reaffirm his determination to continue the struggle.

Chamberlain did it in a speech which some political observers thought might prove to be his valedictory as a national leader.

The former Prime Minister opened his address with an obvious denial that he and his followers in the war cabinet saw the future any differently from Churchill. At the outset, he said:

"The first thing I want to say to you tonight is that all members of the war cabinet are working together in complete harmony and agreement. Anyone who lends himself to German propaganda by listening to idle tales about disunion among us, or who imagines that any of us would consent to enter upon peace negotiations with the enemy, is just playing the Nazi game. We are a solid united nation who would rather go down to ruin than admit domination by the Nazis."

Emphasizes Sea Power

Chamberlain saw in the recent reconnaissance flights and bombing raids on British soil the prelude to an attempted invasion, but he declared that the sea was a strong barrier to Hitler's aims. Emphasizing Britain's superior naval power, her growing air strength, her mighty army concentrated at home, and the courage of her people, he warned that if the invading force had to evacuate as the British did from France, there would be no friendly fleet awaiting to take them off.

Shrewbury, England, June 30 (AP). A call for a "burst of outraged patriotism, flaming like a furnace, through which no invader, however mechanized, would be able to pass," was made tonight by Harold Nicolson, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of information.

Who Killed Italo Balbo?

Who killed Italy's Air Marshal Italo Balbo?

The plane in which he and eight others died Friday in flames the Italians was shot down by the British.

The Royal Air Force in Cairo denied its fliers had shot down on Friday any plane of the type Balbo was reported to be flying.

The British foreign office hinted darkly that Balbo, who it alleged was antiwar, anti-German, and Il Duce's rival for Italians' affection, had suffered a fate like that of Gen. Werner von Fritsch. That Prussian officer, dismissed for disagreeing with Adolf Hitler, died last September 23, at Warsaw—shot in the back, according to unconfirmed reports.

Nazi Bombs Set British Homes Afire

Incendiary Missiles Shower on Thickly Populated Areas

By the Associated Press

London (Monday), July 1.—German planes hurled incendiary bombs on thickly populated areas of Britain early today as if in answer to British claims of having won aerial initiative and to former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's assertion that any Nazi invasion will be fought until invaders or defenders are "utterly destroyed."

The German planes ranged over Scotland, England and Wales to the accompaniment of thudding bomb blasts and the gunfire of British fighter planes and antiaircraft batteries. Extent of damage or casualties was not disclosed.

In Scotland many incendiary bombs fell on a large school, which was unoccupied at the time. The building was set afire.

Other incendiary bombs fell on apartment houses but tenants tackled the bombs with shovels and pails of sand and quickly extinguished the flames. Auxiliary fire services stemmed other blazes.

Last night the British told of nightly raids on military objectives in German territory pointing to them as proof that England had won and would keep the "jump" on her foe in aerial warfare.

The British said their raids had seriously curtailed German industrial output and in many cases forced abandonment of night factory shifts.

First Lady Favors Defense Training For Women, Too

RED BANK, N. J., June 30 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, here as a guest judge at a charity pet show, said today she favored compulsory defense training for both men and women, but asked not to be quoted directly because "if you do Mrs. Roosevelt's head will come off."

She said the President did not like the use of the word "compulsory" in connection with the proposed training program, but that she did.

Speaking "for the record" the First Lady added that "if we are going to meet Mr. Hitler we must be as efficient as Mr. Hitler. He does his mobilization as a dictator. We're going to do it as a democratic nation.

Discussing the training program, Mrs. Roosevelt said there should be no "loopholes" in it and that even the physically handicapped should be included if they are able to work for a living.

June Driest Since 1864; Rain Today

Despite last night's rain, the past month proved to be the driest June since 1864. The record dry June here received but .80 rainfall; up to last night the moisture had been recorded at .81.

There'll be rain today and tomorrow. The forecast also offers cloudy skies and temperature similar to yesterday's, when the mercury hovered between 78 and 80.

Kremlin Reported Requesting Turks' Permission to Help Guard Dardanelles

By the Associated Press

Budapest, June 30.—Diplomatic circles reported tonight that Russia has asked Turkey for permission to participate in defense of the Dardenelles, straits that link the Black Sea and Mediterranean.

This was interpreted as a definite indication that Russia has embarked on a further program of solidifying her defenses against possible attack from the west—with a hold on the vital Dardanelles as a major Russian goal.

It intensified belief that Russia was prepared to try a far-reaching peneration into southeast Europe, boldly clashing with the interests of Germany.

Revision Claims Stilled

This belief appeared tonight to have silenced other Balkan revisionist claims that grew sharp when Russia took over Bessarabia and Northern Bucovinna from Rumania.

Instead, attention was centered on possible development of grave issues between the Axis powers and the Soviets.

It was believed Russia now was prepared to make the most of her opportunity while the Axis powers are otherwise occupied, and take additional territory as a shock-absorber against any future attacks on original Russian territory.

Indications are that the Soviets are prepared to move in a manner which may leave Germany with the choice between continuing the western offensive against Britain or defending German "lebensraum" in southeastern Europe.

Germans Blame British

This, in turn, led to speculation whether Russia might be acting under British suggestion—as alleged in German circles in Bucharest after the occupation of Bessarabia—or whether the Russian moves are motivated entirely by the Kremlin's fears of future ambitions of the German-Italian Axis.

Military observers believed that if the Russian forces in Bessarabia are prepared for prompt attack they may be planning a quick, smashing drive across Rumania into Bulgaria.

There they would encounter a Bulgarian army of men technically sympathetic to the Russians, and the extent of resistance is questionable.

Hungary bolstered her forces along the Ruthenian frontier, fearful of a Soviet push through the Ukraine. Reliable sources said the recent "advance" of Hungarian troops toward the Rumanian frontier was prompted solely by concern over Soviet aims in Rumania.

Turks Patrol Black Sea

Diplomatic circles watched developments closely in view of reports that Axis powers have assured Rumania they would lend active assistance if the Red encroachment continued.

250,000 Bulgarians on Border

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 30 (AP).—Bulgaria, proceeding with "quiet mobilization," concentrated more than 250,000 soldiers tonight on the borders of Turkey and Rumania.

Most were on the Turkish fron-

Armored Motor Units Inflict Heavy Losses In Eritrea Front Raids

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, June 30.—The superiority of the new cavalry over the old was demonstrated in the Kassala area of the Italian fringe of the Eritrean border when two British armored cars attacked and routed 1,200 Italian cavalrymen.

A message from Khartum explained that the British armored cars pushed through the difficult terrain and found the Italian cavalry advancing toward them. The British roared toward the enemy, using their machine guns to cut great swaths through the Italian ranks, killing the terrorized horses and men. Enemy riders scattered in all directions and hid in the nearby hills.

In the same territory British mechanized units have repeatedly entered Eritrea and have encountered patrols, inflicting casualties without sustaining any themselves. On June 21 a British fighter patrol routed a battalion of native infantry here, inflicting severe casualties and demolishing several machine-gun posts.

The Royal Air Force again raided El Gubbi, near Tobruk, yesterday. Diving from the graying skies at dawn they bombed and destroyed huts, tents and parked airplanes, causing considerable damage. A large force of Italian fighters roared along the runways managing to take off despite the strafing of the R. A. F. In the fierce dogfight which followed, an Italian

British, Canadian Ships Torpedoed, Vessel Reports

New York, June 30 (AP).—The American cargo-passenger ship Excalibur reported tonight to Mackay Radio that a British and a Canadian freighter have been torpedoed about 300 miles southwest of the Irish coast.

The message said: "British steamer Guido, position latitude 48.03 north and longitude 11.11 west, also Canadian Zarian torpedoed at 6:30 p. m. (E. S. T.)"

Carol's Army Fights Invaders in Fierce Encounters; Harbors On Black Sea Mined

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, June 30.—Russian baby tanks, landed by planes, tonight seized Reni, at the juncture of the Danube and Prut rivers while a series of bloody battles was reported elsewhere along the Prut.

The tanks, suspended between the wheels of big transport plans in a display of warfare in its most modern phase, caught the Rumanian garrison so completely by surprise that the rifles stood untouched in barracks racks.

Blow to Germany

This maneuver was believed to have gained quantities of military material for the Russians, and gave them a commanding position over the mouth of the Danube, one of Germany's vital communications lifelines.

From Reni, the Red Army is in a position to block all traffic from the Danube to the Black Sea—if it so desires—with hardly more than machine guns necessary.

This was seen by diplomats as a serious blow to Germany.

Reports from the Russian-occupied area told of street fighting in many places among Communist and anti-Communist elements. In two cities, it was said, penitentiary inmates were freed by the fleeing jailers.

600 Killed in Galati

(DNB, official German news agency, reported several hundred persons were killed Sunday in Galati, Rumania, when the Rumanian army put down armed Jewish uprisings. The German radio listed the number dead at about 600, with many more wounded.)

The Rumanian delegation which is to meet the Russians in Odessa to decide on the final demarcation line of the territories which Rumania is ceding, left Constanta by steamer.

Meanwhile, the minister of the interior warned Rumanians not to believe "fantastic stories" that "any of Rumania besides Bessarabia and northern Bucovina will be evacuated."

Axis Assurances Reported

This was interpreted as meaning that the government was determined to resist any further Soviet advances into the old kingdom.

Rumanian sources said Germany and Italy have given assurances that they would prevent any further Red army advances into Rumania with direct land and air assistance.

King Carol's ministers discussed plans to move the seat of government to the Carpathian foothills in western Rumania if necessary.

Black Sea Ports Mined

Contributing to the excitement was a disclosure that the Rumanian navy has mined the Black Sea ports of Constanta and Sulina—the later in the middle of the Danube estuary.

(Last Thursday, before Rumania capitulated to Soviet demands for northern Bucovina and all of Bessarabia, Russia was said to have demanded also control of Constanta and rights in certain Danube ports.)

Military quarters said the Rumanians turned to fight when the Russians crossed the Prut at several places in Bucovina.

Rumanian General Captured

These reports said the Reds were thrown back with considerable losses but that they brought up reinforcements and succeeded finally in crossing the stream and capturing a Rumanian general.

Fighting was reported from several other points.

You Start Paying Today

Defense Taxes Boost Cost Of Cigarettes, Liquor, Movies

Washington and the rest of the Nation will begin to shell out today to pay for the national defense program.

The new defense taxes, effective July 1, will be brought forcefully to the attention of consumers in the increased price of movies, cigarettes, liquor and beer.

A survey of Washington businessmen last night disclosed that the price of cigarettes generally would rise from two packs for 25 cents to two for 27 cents; movie admissions of more than 21 cents would be boosted 3 and 4 cents; an approximate 10 per cent increase in whisky would become effective, and beer probably would sell for 1 cent more per bottle or can.

Higher levies on future manufactures of a score of other products are expected to be felt less severely by the individual consumer.

At Washington movie houses, 13-cent admissions will remain unchanged but 25-cent tickets will go up to 28 cents, 35-cent admissions will be raised to 38 cents and the 40-cent price will be boosted to 44 cents. The 55-cent and 66-cent admissions will remain the same.

These changes result from lowering the base of the 10 per cent amusement tax from 41 cents to 21 cents.

Liquor dealers reported their prices would go up about 10 per cent, on the whole, with a $1 bottle of whisky, for instance, selling for $1.10. A number of them are considering selling 10-cent beer for 11 cents.

They reported sales had increased "tremendously" during the past week, as Washingtonians stocked up

War's Spread Foreshadowed

British Sending Families Out Of Hongkong as Crisis Grows

By the United Press

Hongkong (Monday), July 1.—Evacuation to Manila of families of British army men began today as this Crown Colony prepared to face the rising threat of complications with Japan.

Nine hundred and seventy-three women and children were ready for embarkation.

The British families were taken to the exclusive Hongkong Club, the evacuation center, in fleets of commandeered taxis. Their baggage had been collected previously.

The registration routine required an average of 20 minutes for each family. Children were labeled and all underwent medical inspection.

The United States consulate general, meanwhile, had advised Americans here that the American liner President Coolidge was available for Americans who wished to leave.

The Coolidge, which left Hongkong for Manila at 6 a. m. yesterday, returned at 6 p. m. on instructions from the United States consulate general, which warned Americans that they should leave the colony as soon as possible.

The British were reported concentrating all their arships here and apparently were determined to hold this strategic base as long as possible in event the Japanese should attempt armed operation to back up their demand that shipments from British Burma and Hongkong to Nationalist China be ceased.

British military intelligence heard that the Chinese commander in Kwangsi had massed a large army within 10 miles of the borders of French Indo-China and was prepared to march into Indo-China in event the Japanese attempt an occupation.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

SOUVENIRS OF LOP'S BEDLAM

So crowded were some of the candidates' bedroom headquarters that it became a delicate question of etiquet whether a gentleman sitting on the edge of a bed with a strange lady should remove his hat.

Harlan Miller

At several hotels, when a delegate sent a suit downstairs to be pressed, it came back to him with a Willkie button on the lapel.

* * * *

Toilers from the other candidates' offices began to make it a habit to drop in at Candidate Frank Gannett's hospitable headquarters for a nibble or a sip when they felt in need of refreshment.

* * * *

On the mezzanine of one hotel you could hear, at the same time, soft organ music from Taft's rooms, Viennese waltzes from the Gannett suite and a coal miners' quartet harmonizing for Gov. James (Pa.).

* * * *

In some of the politicians' suites you could see portable bars and highball glasses. But at Senator Taft's there was ice water, and at Willkie's soda pop.

"—they saved democracy"

Some of the delegates complained bitterly (especially those from Iowa) of their hotel accommodations. Some said they'd rather sleep on park benches. In some hotels elevators didn't stop below the fifth floor.

* * * *

When the rush of delegates to see Willkie reached its height, his hotel began to use its freight elevators to hoist callers to his sixteenth floor suite. In the bottle neck 8-foot corridor outside his small suite it was a bargain counter traffic jam. Psychologists said it was good stuff to crowd 'em and keep 'em warm.

* * * *

You could certainly detect Martha Taft's fine feminine influence in the style show, cloth carnations, the bridge lessons and the organ music which provided the entertainmnt at the Senator's big suite. The style show, with its pretty girls, attracted plenty of male delegates.

* * * *

Some of Gannett's fancy silk banners were the right size to be used later as bed sheets. Others were big enough for three or four bedsheets. Taft's banners were of cheesecloth.

* * * *

Height of vanity: A delegate using a magnifying glass to find his face in the mass photo of 20,000 people at the convention hall.

* * * *

For most women, politics is an acquired taste, like artichokes, especially those who sat through the excitement of a real convention reading Gracie Allen's book "How to Become President," oblivious to all about them.

"—growth of a candidate"

By the miracle of politics, a candidate grows from 4 feet tall when he's a dark horse, to 5 feet as a native son, to 6 feet when he gets some formidable delegate strength, to 7 feet when he's nominated, and to 8 feet tall when he's elected. But some of his admirers already rate W. W. as 9 feet tall.

* * * *

One of the most embarrassing questions asked by bright young men who sought to protect their candidate (and probably expected to be appointed Assistant Secretary of State if he won) was: "Are you a paid or a volunteer worker?"

* * * *

The artist who sketched Senator Vandenberg's official portraits did him dirt; made him look too wistful and not as handsome as he is.

* * * *

Some Willkie enthusiasts had to be dissuaded from yelling "We want Willkie!" during Herbert Hoover's speech. Then this good sportsmanship was repaid by boos during W. W.'s nomination speech.

* * * *

Probably the climax of the delegate kidnapping came when six Taft delegates from Ohio called to see Willkie. For a moment it appeared that democracy might or might not be saved. But maybe somebody suspected them of being spies; they didn't get into the inner sanctum—at least not that time.

150 From District To Journey to Fair At San Francisco

More than 150 Washingtonians and District officials, including Commissioner David McCoach, will head for San Francisco, Wednesday, to help celebrate District of Columbia Day, July 12, at the Golden Gate International Exposition.

They will board the "Commissioners' Special" train for an 18-day excursion, which will include ceremonial receptions at cities along the way, and a visit to Hollywood studios.

On their arrival at Treasure Island, the District's representatives will be met by Marshall Dill, president of the fair, and be escorted through the exposition. George O'Connor has written a District of Columbia song, which he will sing during the District celebration in the fair's court of honor.

Brookings Asks Civil Service For Treasury

Institution's Study Urges Replacement Of Political Hiring

Replacement of all political appointees in the Bureau of Customs and Internal Revenue by "carefully selected, well-trained, permanent civil servants" and the removal of both bureaus from the Treasury Department is recommended in a study by the Brookings Institution made public yesterday.

Dr. Daniel T. Selko made the study, which deals with the origin, development, and present status of the Federal financial system.

Dr. Selko's report raised the question of whether, under the existing sytem, the public and the Treasury Department are adequately protected from partisan political influences. It said such changes in the two bureaus would be consistent with recent reorganizations in the Government, and would permit more orderly administration of both fiscal and revenue functions without adding employes or increasing costs.

Joint Committee Urged

Establishment of a joint Congressional committee on appropriations, provided with a permanent staff of budgetary and financial specialists, was also recommended.

Such a committee would "tend to promote judicious determination of financial policy," the report states. Under the present system, by which fiscal measures undergo independent consideration by committees of each house, the result is frequently determined by compromise.

Although budgetary centralization has enabled the President to participate more effectively in the Nation's financial affairs, it has not lessened Congressional responsibility nor overcome obstacles to intelligent action on the budget as a whole, according to the report.

Two-Point Program

The report declared that a joint appropriations committee, similar to the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation which functions on the revenue side of the budget, would be an important step toward comprehensive consideration of taxation and expenditures. The committee staff would furnish technical and professional aid, maintain direct contact with the General Accounting Office and the Budget Bureau, and make special studies of legislation to authorize appropriation increases.

Stating that the legislative control of the purse depends on effective accounting methods, the study urged that the Federal accounting system should:

Provide accountability for every officer in any way responsible for the receipt, custody and disbursement of public funds.

Permit consolidation for presentation to the public of reliable accounting statements covering the financial condition and operations of the Government as a whole.

Louis B. Mayer Highest Paid, U.S. Report Shows

Nineteen of the 25 highest corporation salaries paid in 1938 went to movie stars and executives, the Treasury disclosed yesterday. A $688,369 pay check to Louis B. Mayer, head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, topped them all.

The rankings appeared in a Treasury list, supplementing an earlier list issued in January, of all corporation salaries in excess of $75,000.

D. C. Mormons Organize Diocese With E. T. Benson as President

S. R. Carpenter Named First Counselor E. L. Wilkinson, Second Counselor; Local Stake Is Third East of the Mississippi

A long-cherished dream yesterday became reality for 3,000 Mormons, as the Washington area of that denomination was organized on a permanent basis, with Ezra T. Benson as president.

Packing the tall-spired, Utah-marble Chapel of the Church of Latter-Day Saints, Sixteenth and Columbia road northwest, the worshippers also saw Samuel R. Carpenter elected as first counselor and Ernest L. Wilkinson as second counselor of the area—now known as the Capital Stake (diocese) of Zion.

Named as bishops of the stake were Edgar B. Brossard, Washington ward; Riley A. Gwynn, Chevy Chase ward, and Lawrence H. Manwaring, Arlington ward. Prelates of the Baltimore and Fairview (Pa.) wards were not announced.

Harold G. Clark and Frank J. Kimball were named as counselors to serve under Brossard, and Capt. Mervyn S. Bennion, U. S. N., will be counselor under Gwynn. Arlington, Baltimore and Fairview counselors have yet to be selected.

The Greenbelt branch, not large enough for a ward, will be served by a president—Donald Wagstaff, with C. Ray Van Leuven and Louis Madsen as counselors.

In private life, president Benson is executive secretary of the National Council of Farmers' Cooperatives; Carpenter is assistant secretary of the Federal Reserve Board, and Wilkinson is an attorney. Brossard is a tariff commissioner.

The National Capital area was formerly conducted under the Eastern States Mission, whose president, Frank Evans, speaking yesterday at the opening of the day's series of meetings, cited the consistent growth necessitating the organization of a stake here.

Coming from the Salt Lake City headquarters to direct yesterday's organizational tasks were 84-year-old President Rudger Clawson and A. E. Bowen, member of the Mormon Church's Quorum of Twelve Apostles, the governing body.

They were among speakers at the opening sessions in the morning. Bowen criticized mere lip-service to Christian belief. More than 1,500 worshipers, in the air-conditioned chapel, heard the speakers.

President Clawson, also speaking briefly, lauded the accomplishments of the Washington Mormons Abram H. Cannon, president of the old Washington District—now dissolved into the Washington Ward—presided.

Following the Mormon custom, all officials will serve without remuneration, and perform church duties aside from their regular professions.

The Mormon Church has approximately 130 stakes in the United States, with a membership of 800,000. The Washington stake will be the third east of the Mississippi. Others are in New York and Chicago. In addition to Washington, Chevy Chase, Arlington, Baltimore and Fairview, the Capital Stake, which embraces 3,000 members, also will include Hagerstown, whose bishop has yet to be announced.

Prominent members of the Mormon faith attending the meetings yesterday were Senators William H. King and Elbert D. Thomas and Representatives J. Will Robinson and Abe Murdock, Utah Democrats, and Robert H. Hinkley, Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

British Name 2 To Rule Buying In New World

Copyright, New York Times.

Ottawa, June 30.—Beginning tomorrow C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply in Canada, and Arthur B. Purvis, purchasing agent in the United States, will take over complete control of British war purchases on this continent.

This is the most important of a series of new measures to tighten and speed up British war action. With the change one of the chief difficulties of British organization in America has ended. No longer will war contracts have to be approved in Britain before they are let over here. That had entailed a delay of at least a month, often longer.

Howe and his army of experts now have from the British government the same wide latitude they have had from their own government. Their duty is to obtain production without worrying about the formalities of contract letting which have used up so much time.

An Important Departure

But the change in set-up involves an important departure. It gives to two Canadians, Howe and Purvis, the most sweeping powers ever delegated to outside authority by the British government. Since the war began the old British Supply Board has placed in Canada orders for shells, high-explosives, ships and airplanes totalling $75,000,000, in addition to other commitments totalling $50,000,000.

This volume is being increased. All plants making munitions in Canada have the assurance that as fast as orders are completed new ones will be given, and they are prepared to remain in continuous production until the end of the war.

Airplane contracts have been let to the capacity of existing industry and new companies are being formed to enlarge capacity. The Supply Department is buying the machinery for these new companies and skilled men are being taken from the older concerns to get production started.

By diluting skilled workers with semi-skilled men it is believed that present speed can be maintained and gradually increased as the men become more accustomed to their jobs.

Board to Study Handicapped Youths' Needs

Plan Providing Two Special Schools To Be Weighed Today

Objectives for a long-range program of school facilities for handicapped children will be set up by the Board of Education this morning at its final meeting for the summer.

The board will consider recommendations which its advisory committee on handicapped children recently adopted after nearly two years of study. Heading the list of proposals is a recommendation for two central schools, one white and one colored for these children.

Other items which the committee advocated, included legislative provision, with supporting appropriations, for special classes for the blind, for partially deaf children and for instruction in lip reading, also for classes for cardiac children.

The Allison Street Health School, which will be remodeled this summer to accommodate white crippled children, is considered a beginning for the program. But committee discussion indicated that it would probbaly have to be replaced eventually with a larger building to include children with other handicaps.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, has served also as chairman of the advisory committee.

The board at its meeting at 10 a. m. will elect officers for the coming year and will vote on whether to approve a proposed new course in "National and World Problems" for senior high schools.

Capt. Andrew, 91, National G. A. R. Commander, Dies

Quincy, Ill., June 30 (AP).—Capt. John E. Andrew, 91, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, died today in the Soldiers and Sailors Home Hospital.

Capt. Andrew, who was elected leader of the now rapidly dwindling group of Civil War Veterans at the national encampment at Pittsburgh last September, suffered a paralytic stroke Thursday and never regained consciousness.

The aged veteran also was Illinois State commander of the G. A. R. for three years. He fought in 15 battles of the Civil War, after enlisting in the Seventy-ninth Ohio Infantry at 14.

Machines Installed To 'Card-Index' Employes' Talents

By Edward Ryan

Gloomy theorists around the Government have been known to speculate on this possibility—that far down the endless corridors of Federal buildings are lost corners where nameless men work forever, nourished only by tap water and something deep down inside.

A parallel theory, somewhat more matter of fact and a lot more official, is this—that all down the rolls of the Government's near million workers are many high skills and abilities, know, but unused

They are known, because the employes have recorded what they have done and what they can do when they asked for jobs, keeping up the records as they go on in the Federal service. They are unused because the Government has had no fast, accurate method to make all available information about its employes produce the best man for a given job.

Key to the problem is time, and now officials are calling in machines to give the answer.

They are preparing to record what can be known about Government employes in a form that will permit the talents of one worker to be sifted and compared in a few minutes with the skills of hundreds of other workers. The information will be on punch cards. Machines will go through 400 cards a minute to find men for jobs.

This plan, sought for months by top Government executives and personnel officers, had been delayed for lack of funds. When the national defense program started full speed, money was found for the punch card system. During the delay the key code of employe qualifications, dictionary of the punch card system, was worked out by officials of the Civil Service Commission, and the system tested for the commission's 2,000 employes.

This morning 50 new employes are being assigned to work on the project. About 40 more are already there, and by the end of July the staff will be increased to about 600, all from civil service lists. Two floors have been rented in a downtown office building for the project.

Meanwhile, nearly a million information blanks have been distributed to Government agencies to be filled out by employes. They will record on the blanks details of their education, professional training, present positions, military record, work experience in and out of the Government, technical hobbies (marksmanship, photography, short wave radio operation, aviation, organizing, handicraft, mountaineering and exploring), clerical skills, and other special training.

Employes in all agencies (except the Postoffice Department), including those with civil service status and those without, and furloughed workers, are filling out the forms. Returns from workers in the District have been called for by July 10; from the field service by July 30.

A. C. Edwards, director of statistics for the Civil Service Commission, said that part of the punch card file will be ready to use in August, and it will be nearly finished in October. The cost for setting it up and running it for the first year is expected to be around $400,000.

These are some of the things the central punch card qualifications file is expected to make possible:

Reduce costs by cutting down calls for new examinations to find employes for particular jobs. Speed the defense program by making sure the agencies that need them can get quickly the best available employes already in the Government service.

Reduce to a few hours the task of filling many vacant jobs.

Improve employe morale by giving an effective system for promotions within the service.

Cut out duplication in the 25,000 Federal job titles and bring the total down to about 9,000.

Give ready statistics about Government personnel. Aid employes in transferring to other jobs through the service.

Insure the best use of the Government's human resources.

to avoid the extra tax. One dealer said his business increased five fold.

Cigarettes likewise showed large sales gains last week as one large drug chain cut its prices from two for 25 to two for 23 and most other tobacco dealers followed suit. The new one-half-cent per package tax, dealers said, would boost the general price to 15 cents per package straight or two packs for 27 cents for the standard brands. They said brands ordinary selling for 15 cents would remain at that price.

Other added taxes include toilet preparations, 1 per cent; automobiles, radios, mechanical refrigerators, matches, electrical energy, gasoline and lubricating oil, ½ of 1 per cent, and playing cards and club dues and initiation fees, 1 per cent.

The increase in liquor taxes is 75 cents per gallon on whiskey and $1 a barrel on beer. New taxes on wines range up to a maximum increase of 5 cents per gallon.

Tickets on Sale For Symphony's Watergate Series

Tickets for the opening "Sunset Symphony" of the National Symphony Orchestra next Sunday evening, and for the other 15 events of the orchestra's eight weeks' summer season at the Potomac Watergate, will go on sale this morning at the Symphony boxoffice in the Homer L. Kitt Music Store, 1330 G street northwest.

Newstands in the Munitions, Commerce and Interior buildings will also have tickets available. Season tickets for the Sunset series have been on sale at the box office for the past ten days.

As in former years, seats for the Sunset Symphonies will be popularly priced, from 25 cents to $1 for symphony concerts, and 50 cents to $2 for the four opera productions

He was treated for minor hurts at Walter Reed Hospital. William Norman, 28, colored, 812 New Jersey avenue northwest, driver, was charged with reckless driving.

Three young women were hurt when an auto driven by an Army private from Bolling Field overturned on the Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville, Md. The injured are Inez Seagraves, 24, of 1312 Euclid street northwest, cuts; Dorothy Parrish, 23, of 2911 Forty-fifth street northwest, fractured skull, and Marie McCullough, 22, of 310 North Carolina avenue southeast, bruises.

A reckless driving warrant was issued for the driver of the car, Edward Rickey. John J. Breeze was the other occupant.

Three Lanham, Md., youths were injured when their car struck a phone pole, breaking it off at the ground, after leaving Defense highway near Ardmore, Md. George Stephans, 20, suffered a cut eye which, hospital attendants said might prove serious. He was brought by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad to Providence Hospital with Essel Maxwell, 20, and Albert Egerton, 19.

Maude B. Kidd, 16, of Dickerson, Md., was taken to Sandy Spring Hospital with cuts and bruises after a car driven by Aletha L. Carter, 18, of Poolesville, Md., struck a culvert near Watts Branch, Md.

Autos Cause 36 Fatalities In Half Year

D. C. Deaths Are Five Fewer Than at Same Point Last Year

At midnight last night, the halfway mark for 1940, Washington's traffic fatality was five deaths less than for the same period last year, police statistics revealed.

Thus far this year, 36 persons have been killed on District streets. The record at this time last year was 41.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer warned that so-called "danger months" are yet ahead and has issued a city-wide appeal for caution. Child casualties were the bulk of summer accidents and Van Duzer has called for public cooperation in efforts to protect youngsters.

The half-year trend in injured also is downward. A total of 1,682 persons have been hurt since January 1 as against 1,798 for the same period in 1939. Accidents of all types showed a slight increase—5,628 this year compared to 5,503 last.

Of the total number of injuries this year, 345 have been children under 14. This represents a drop from 368 in 1939. In the age group over 14, 1,052 persons have been injured in the past six months, a decrease of 106 over last year.

Van Duzer attributed the improved record to a "general public awakening to our problem" and constant hammering on safety matters by newspapers and radio stations.

Myron C. Taylor 'Greatly Improved'

Rome, June 30 (U.P.).—The condition of Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's special envoy to the Holy See who underwent an operation for gallstones last week, today was described as "greatly improved."

Dr. Allan O. Whipple, the American surgeon who flew to Europe to assist in the operation, said that for the first time since the operation June 26, Taylor was well enough to "take a satisfactory amount of nourishment."

Townsend Makes 3d-Party Threat

St. Louis, June 30 (AP).—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the pension plan which bears his name, declared today his followers would "joinn hands with labor and form an entirely new party" if both the Democrats and Republicans fail to back his program to aid aged persons.

He spoke at a mass meeting of delegates to the Townsend National Convention, which meets here tomorrow.

Wallace Says Hitler Stirs Up Strife Among the Americas

means to avoid embroilment of this Nation in war clashed last night on the American Forum of the Air, broadcast from the Willard Hotel. The forum, considering the question of immediate, peacetime, compulsory military training, was launched mildly enough by Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, author of a pending selective service bill, and Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, and ended with six speakers and part of the audience clamoring for the microphone.

Aligned with Senator Burke as a member of the panel were Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan, commander of the 169th Infantry, New York's "Fighting Irish" in the World War, and Col. John Thomas Taylor, director of the national legislative committee of the American Legion. Senator Capper was backed by Representative Fish (Republican), New York, and Representative Geyer (Democrat), California.

Donovan, totting up for his audience the lessons of his days in battle, reiterated again and again that an untrained soldier is a liability; that a soldier's chances of surviving modern battle are in proportion to his training for battle.

"It was a criminal thing," he said, in a curiously dispassionate voice, "to send our men overseas as we did in the last war; men who had never had on a gas mask, who never had opened the bolts of their rifles. If we must send our young men to war, we owe them the duty of preparing them for war. Would the mothers who hear me now want their sons to meet on the battlefield citizen soldiers of another nation who were prepared for war in time of peace?"

Representative Fish declared that if the United States had adopted compulsory military service six months ago, "we would be in the war now just because somebody with too much power pushed a button."

"We would have been thrust into the war by the President of the United States and his influence," Fish added. He said the United States Navy, "strongest in the world, seven times as strong as Germany's, stronger than Germany's and Italy's combined," would prevent any invasion of this continent.

With the other members of Congress in the discussion, Geyer made clear his willingness to invoke selective service in case of war. "But," he declared, "first I would have us exhaust the volunteer effort."

"How would you," asked Donovan, "persuade the invader to wait until you exhausted the volunteer effort?" Geyer's answer was lost in a burst of applause from the audience.

Burke declared training for war in peacetime was a national obligation and responsibility, one to be shared along with the privileges of democracy. He suggested three alternatives to universal training:

A two-ocean Navy, powerful enough to defeat any possible enemy. An air force that "would fill the sky with the fastest and most deadly machines that could be made." A standing Army "so large and so well-equipped as to render this country immune from attack."

Any of these courses, he said, would be incredibly expensive. And, he pointed out, voluntary enlistment has failed, despite an intensive recruiting campaign, to bring the Regular Army to its present authorized strength.

Capper stigmatized peacetime compulsory training as "striking at the very heart of personal liberty and personal freedom." He called attention to President Roosevelt's suggestion for universal "governmental service," and said: "I cannot bring myself to the point of drafting our women into the military service, or into labor battalions. I refuse to contemplate that, even in time of war."

Col. Taylor said the World War "taught the American Legion that war and aggression are likely in proportion as the proposed victim of aggression is ready to fight. We learned that war costs in blood and money in proportion as a nation is prepared to fight."

Secretary Wallace, who has been reported unofficially as being groomed by the Administration for a goodwill tour of South America, said Hitler's inroads in South America already had commenced.

"Hitler's basic policy," he said, "is one of 'divide and conquer.' He used it to seize power within Germany and to conquer much of Europe without fighting.

"News accounts from South America show that 'divide and conquer' strategy is already being tried against this hemisphere. Hitler is trying to split us from each other, one country at a time."

He said the United States, realizing that "Hitler may become the master of all Europe," had rejected "any weak policy of appeasement" and "chosen preparedness as the road to peace." A military program "looking to the territorial security of this hemisphere" already is under way, he added.

Good Will Tour Rumored

"Adequate economic defense," he said, "will not cost us any lives on either side of the Panama Canal. It will cost money but it will cost far less than the enormous armaments and fortifications which we shall have to build to guard our own borders if there is no solidarity in the New World to match that of the dictators."

It has been reported unofficially that the Administration is planning to send Wallace on a good-will tour of South America to further President Roosevelt's proposal for an economic union against the totalitarian powers.

During the day, Wallace issued two statements simultaneously in which he called for public regulation of timber-cutting to aid national defense and said the Rural Electrification Administration "is prepared to put important resources squarely behind the national defense program."

He said one of REA's most important contributions to defense was a battery of mobile generating plants on trailers, which the organization has helped to develop. These, he said, can be set up almost anywhere on a few hours notice to serve as emergency power sources.

Wheeler, whose name has been linked with C. I. O. Chief John L. Lewis in political speculation about the possible formation of a third party, asserted:

"We who want to keep the United States out of war must see to it that the substance of the language rejected by the Republicans is unmistakably accepted by the Democratic Party and incorporated into its platform.

"If neither party is willing to give this pledge to the American people—then a new and great antiwar party will arise to challenge both the old parties.

SWIMMING—A general view of the swimming pool at Greenbelt

Playtime at Greenbelt

OUTDOOR exercise for children and grownups is one of Uncle Sam's major objectives in the model town of Greenbelt, Md.

The summer program of the municipal recreation department, under Vincent Holochwost, is one of the most extensive in the country. Almost every resident of the town participates in one or another of the varied athletic activities.

At present an archery tournament is under way. Later tournaments will be held in tennis, horseshoe, pitching, handball and marbles. Softball games are played every day in the leagues for boys, girls, men and women.

The recreation department also sponsors classes in swimming and lifesaving. Persons living outside the town may attend.

Supervision of the community's three large playgrounds and 13 "tot-lots" also comes under the department.

ACCORDING to town officials, Greenbelt is probably as well equipped as any town in the country to carry out its elaborate recreational program. There are 12 acres in the athletic field, which includes two softball diamonds and one baseball diamond. On one side there are four composition tennis courts and six clay courts and on the other side there are two handball courts and a number of horseshoe courts. The Greenbelt Athletic Club, organized by a group of former athletes before the recreation department was set up, has a softball field which is illuminated for night games. It is used six nights a week.

The town swimming pool is 120 feet by 60 feet. There also is a wading pool for preschool children. The swimming pool is the only recreational facility that costs the residents a penny.

One other facility that will become increasingly popular with the opening of the fishing season in Maryland is the 23-acre artificial lake. Outside residents will be permitted to try their luck in the lake, which was heavily stocked in 1936.

Fishing will be allowed in the lake on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays. The opening day will be July 3. At present the lake is used for boating.

Russia Lands Tanks by Air For Battle

Rumanian Troops Fight Invaders In Fierce Encounter

the Rumanians interpreted as ending at the Prut River. It was believed the Rumanian Minister to Moscow might have failed to advise his government of the demarcation line on which the Russians decided.

The Rumanian general, Ulorescu, in command of the Bucovina border, was reported late tonight as still refusing to accept Rumanian war ministry orders to retreat. Instead, he was continuing the fight at an undesignated point along the Prut.

(Reni is in the extreme southwest corner of Bessarabia, but it is not clear whether Rumania counted it as part of the territory ceded to Russia. Final decision on the boundaries has been scheduled at a Russian-Rumanian meeting Tuesday in Odessa, Russia.)

'Chutists Win Foothold

Russia's occupation, by parachute and land troops, was so swift that "local incidents" occurred, causing casualties on both sides, a Rumanian general staff communique reported tonight.

Parachutists gained a quick foothold near the mouth of the Danube.

Foreign military quarters looked upon the Russian use of parachute troops as evidence that the Soviets were in extreme haste to take occupation.

The Rumanian communique, much milder than other reports of the fighting, said:

"Evacuation was conforming with the program. . . . In some directions rapid units of Rusisan forces exceeded their rhythm of occupation and passed Rumanians who were in retreat.

"On this account, there were local incidents.

"Evacuation operations will end July 3 at nooon."

This last reference was interpreted as meaning that the Soviets had granted Rumania a 24-hour extension of the withdrawal period, which previously had been set for July 2.

The interior ministry communique also told of a great trek of Jews from old Rumania into the territory newly occupied by the Red army, declaring 7,600 Jews had crossed the Ungheni Bridge over the Prut River on Sunday alone, and that 2,000 had gone from Galati to Reni in Soviet territory.

The minitry said great quantities of gasoline and foodstuffs would be evacuated from ceded areas.

Speculation concerning Germany's attitude toward the Soviet advance was heightened by headlines in Rumania's most pro-Nazi newspaper. Curentul, that the Red push past agreed limits showed:

"The despotism of Russian troops who forgot their promises and all their humanity."

Curentul said Soviet occupational troops committed arbitrary acts and made improper arrests.

"Even though Rumania had given in," the newspaper said, "Russian troops have not lived up to their government's promises.

Intellectuals Jailed

"But this is not all. Columns of occupying troops at many towns in Bessarabia and northern Bucovina have arrested and imprisoned arbitrarily government officials and intellectuals.

"It is also remarkable that Dr. Borneski, leader of the German community of Bessarabia, was informed by secret emissary that he would be assassinated by Russian occupying troops. He and many other Germans fled to old Rumania and turned themselves over to government officials.

"Furthermore, Russian military authorities put many difficulties in the way of the flight to old Rumania of our own (Rumanian) government officials.

Royal Governor Held

"Dr. Flondor, royal governor of Cernauti, who turned the city over to the Russians, was held in custody from Friday to Saturday.

"Many acts of brigandage were committed against Rumanian banks.

"If we were to give you a full account of severe treatment received by Rumanian families in the occupied area it would form just a small section of the whole picture of the despotism of Russian troops who forgot their promises and all their humanity."

Bucharest newspapers printed letters to King Carol in which 20 leaders in Transylvania, on the Hungarian border, pledged their lives for the honor of their country. Censors required that the letters be headed with a caption:

"We ask our brothers (in Bessarabia and Bucovina- from whom we are temporarily separated not to lose courage."

Diplomatic circles considered this significant in view of reports that Germany has assured Rumania any loss of her territory would be only temporary.

A session of Parliament has been postponed from tomorrow to Wednesday, and a meeting of the foreign affairs committee from tomorrow to Tuesday.

Defense Drive Is Renewed In Congress

gram. Relief labor, he said, would be put to work on such projects as military and naval reservation construction, rather than on warships and munitions manufacture.

Though no announcement had come from the White House, further elucidation is in immediate prospect of the Administration's plan for a long-range, large-scale Army expansion program, comparable to that already under consideration for the Navy.

The War Department issued a statement last night saying there would be no expansion in the immediate future of Reserve Officers Training Corps, because the officers ordinarily available for this training would be needed in schooling the recruits who are being taken into the Army.

"The War Department is of the opinion that it is unwise to augment the R. O. T. C. until adequate provisions are made for existing units," the announcement said. "Present demands of the Regular Army preclude the assignment of active officers, either to complete the requirements of present units or to provide the necessary instructions—noncommissioned as well as commissioned—for the many schools that desire enlarged or new units.

9,000 to Be Graduated

"The Regular Army has about 14,000 officers; in the Officers Reserve Corps there are some 117,000 officers. Approximately 9,000 newly commissioned officers will be added this month to the Officers Reserve Corps, due to graduation from R. O. T. C. units. About 400 more will be commissioned from the Citizens Military Training Camps. The War Department will use some of these young reserve officers, particularly in the grade of lieutenant, to carry out its expansion program."

Secretary Morgenthau's conference with Congressional tax leaders follows up the defense tax program enacted week before last.

In agreeing to a conference report between the managers of the two branches of Congress, the legislators threw out an excess profits tax proposal by Senator La Follette which would have levied up to 40 per cent against the excess profits of corporations.

The story is going the rounds in Washington that, although the Administration did not take so kindly to Senator La Follette's proposal, it nevertheless quietly supported it, to put one house of Congress on record as favoring such a levy. Mr. Doughton already had promised the House that excess profits taxes would be considered between now and the beginning of the new session of Congress. The conferees however, went him one better. They directed the Treasury to report by October 1 on such a tax measure. And the Treasury, according to reports, has gone the Congressional tax experts one better by proposing to consider the matter immediately.

Navy Program Is "Must"

The "two-ocean" navy proposal, however, has more of the "must" pressure behind it. If Congress is to authorize an expansion of the Navy by 1,350,000 tons of combatant and auxiliary vessels, the authorization should be made immediately, so that all plans for putting the available ship-ways of the nation to work can be worked out immediately.

On the House side of the Capitol, Representative May, House Military Affairs Committee chairman, will start hearings on compulsory military training as soon as President Roosevelt indicates he is ready to bgein this phase of the defense program. Roosevelt has yet to express his views on the subject to Congress, although he is represented as favoring the general idea.

In its periodical summary of the Nation's business, the Chamber of Commerce advocated:

"Congress should remain in session, except for short recesses, during the present uncertain international situation, so long as urgent questions need consideration.

"In order to aaid national defense all possible retrenchment in other expenditures should be made. In all defense expenditures the fullest value should be obtained for each dollar spent.

"There should be registration of all aliens.

"No element of our economic life should profiteer. This principle should apply to investor, manager, laborer and farmer.

"We must encourage our productivity for defense purposes and for the needs of our people. Productivity is the key to our future; deterrents must be removed."

It pledges its full cooperation in the preparedness program.

Cabinet Hearings Tomorrow

Hearings on both nominations of Stimson and Knox have been set for tomorrow. There was considerable speculation whether the spectacular selection of Wendell L. Willkie to be the G. O. P. standard bearer in November would have the effect of moderating, if not actually blanketing, the early indicated vigor of the opposition in view of Willkie's attitude toward aiding European democracies.

Administration leaders expressed confidence that, while they might be subjected to considerable attack in the committees and on the floor, both appointments would be confirmed by large votes.

The fight in the Naval Affairs Committee, led by Holt, is expected to be harder than the battle against Stimson, though Senator Johnson, Colorado insolationist, has threatened to bring former War Secretary Woodring before the Military Affairs Committee for questioning on reports he was forced to resign because he opposed "indiscriminate aid to the Allies."

Projects in Three Groups

Col. Harrington said WPA national defense projects would fall into three groups—those which the Army and Navy would operate directly with funds transferred from WPA; projects sponsored by the War and Navy departments but carried out by WPA as part of State programs, and non-Federal projects such as municipal airports, National Guard armories, training areas and roads of military importance.

The Naval Affairs committees of both houses had before them bills to provde a drydock large enough to accommodate the largest naval or merchant ships built or building. The drydock would be constructed in cooperation with the Port of New York Authority.

3 Federal Agencies Are Shifted to New Jurisdiction Today

Three major Government agencies will open for business under new management today.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority and the Weather Bureau will become units of the Commerce Department under Secretary Harry Hopkins. The Food and Drugs Administration will be placed under the Federal Security Administration, headed by Paul V. McNutt.

The CAA hitherto has been an independent establishment and the other two agencies have been in the Agriculture Department.

President Roosevelt's reorganization order of last spring provided for the shifts, but the effective date was delayed until the advent of the fiscal new year, July 1.

Lost Planes Drop 24 Bombs in Alps

Bern, June 30 (AP).—Two bombing planes whose pilots apparently became lost or wanted to drop their load of explosives where they would do the least harm loosed 24 English trademarked bombs today into peat bogs and forest foothills of the Swiss Alps. No casualties were reported.

Military observers expressed belief that the planes were British whose pilots became lost on a raid aimed at southeastern Germany.

Only last Friday the British government assumed responsibility for damages and offered its regrets for a bombing in southwestern Switzerland on June 12.

Party Harmony Is Willkie's First Problem

G.O.P. Nominee Due In N.Y. Today; Will Resign Utility Post

By International News Service

New York, June 30.—Establishment of harmony among national Republican leaders and building of an organization to wage his campaign for the Presidency tonight were on the immediate list of problems for Wendell Willkie following his return to New York tomorrow.

The G. O. P. nominee is due to disembark early tomorrow morning from Roy W. Howard's yacht Jamaroy, after a week-end cruise off the Jersey coast and Long Island waters.

His first official act will be to meet with the directors of the Commonwealth & Southern Corp., of which he is president, and resign that post.

Need for harmony among Republican leaders is understood to be Willkie's first concern. In this connection, immediate efforts are expected to be made to heal the breach among G. O. P. leaders in New York State.

Leaders Backed Dewey

With the exception of Kenneth F. Simpson, ousted as a national committeeman, all of the Empire State leaders backed the candidacy of Thomas E. Dewey.

Willkie and an advisory subcommittee of the National Republican Committee are scheduled to meet in New York Wednesday when the naming of a national chairman will be discussed.

Observers tonight predicted that Willkie will retain John D. M. Hamilton, of Kansas, in the $25,000-a-year post. Hamilton managed the Landon campaign in 1936, and has since been active building new sentiment for the party and wiping out a heavy deficit.

Whether or not Willkie decides to retain Hamilton for another four years, it is expected he will deal a death blow to the old-line, ultra-conservative forces in the party.

Russia Reported Asking Hold in Dardanelles

tier, this being attributed in official quarters to fears that if Russie seeks to expand toward the Dardanelles, this country might be caught between conflicting Turkish and Russian interests.

An indication that Turkey is alive to such a possibility was seen in reports she was moving thousands of troops and hundreds of cannon toward the already heavily armed frontier region near Adrianople, on Bulgaria's southeastern border.

Showdown xpected

Ostensibly, they are to attend the Moscow peasant economic exhibit, but political observers attached significance to the fact that the party was headed by Sorito Yaneff, government mouthpiece and a majority parliamentary leader ho sometimes is employed as an unofficial diplomat.

These sources also expressed belief that sooner or later a showdown is inevitable between Germany and Russia. The belief prevailed that Germany and Italy already had given assurances that Bulgarian claims on the southern Dooruja area now held by Rumania would be satisfied at an eventual peace conference or by Axis pressure on Rumania.

Quarters close to the Bulgarian government reiterated that Bulgaria would not risk war for the Dobruja, although numbers of troops are concentrated on that front.

If the Red army should attempt to reach the Dardanelles, the Dobruja plains would be a natural pathway.

Bulgarian Pledge Reported

Copyright by New York Times

Sofia, June 30.—According to reliable reports Bulgaria has assured Yugoslavia that she ill not attack Rumania no matter hat happen. At the same time a source close to King Boris said that even if Hungary attempts to forcibly seize Transylvania, Bulgaria will not move.

An Italian informant states both the Italian and the German governments have urged Bulgaria and Hungary to restrain their revisionist aspirations temporarily to avoid precipitating a Balkan crisis for hich the Axis is not ready.

Neutral sources assert that both Rome and Berlin were surprised by the Russian move, contrary to general belief, and were not informed in advance by the Soviet.

No Present Sign of Change

General belief of diplomats in Sofia is that Bulgaria will continue to press her claims peacefully and avoid forceful action so long as the present cabinet remains in office. There is at present, no indication of a change. However, the army here is more violent than the government and new events might produce a new attitude.

Foremost among such events would be a further Russian march southward, but Turkey has been assured that this is not coming. Nevertheless, the Soviet now holds one of the three mouths of the Danube and may seek to control the entire delta before pushing toward the Dardanelles.

The Bulgarians fear Turkey wishes to seize certain strategic points in southern Bulgaria to improve the defensive position of Istanbul and the Turkish general staff fears a Russian move through Bulgaria.

Respite widespread military preparations, responsible Government leaders in the Balkans do not think the war is coming here now. They insist the Axis opposes it, and if England wants it she is not influential enough since the Turkish invocation of the escape clause in the Ankara pact. However, everyone admits that Russia continues to hold the key and nobody seems to know what the Kremlin is up to.

It is the belief here that the Axis has already ceded the eastern Balkans to the Soviet in a general partition which is to take place after the war, but it is possible that Russia may be moving precipitately while Germany is occupied with England and Italy is tied up in the Mediterranean.

Defense And Liberty

A reasonable and constructive policy of dealing with so-called fifth-column activities is taking shape in Washington. President Roosevelt has signed the bill requiring registration and finger-printing of aliens, but he proposes to use this measure to protect law-abiding aliens as well as to safeguard the Nation against illegal activities on the part of subversive elements.

The great majority of aliens are peaceful guests of the United States, abiding by its laws and respecting its principles. They have no reason to fear the registration that will now be required of them. It is clear from the address of Attorney General Jackson before the New York State Bar Association on Saturday that the Department of Justice is making a positive effort to protect alien rights. Vigilance against unofficial witch-hunting will go hand in hand with this closer check upon those who owe allegiance to foreign governments.

Solely from the viewpoint of our national interest, the Government has good reason to deal fairly with the 3,500,000 aliens living in this country. Any form of hateful treatment or repression, as Mr. Jackson points out, "would tend to make sullen enemies of those who wish to be good Americans." It would be the utmost folly to antagonize law-abiding aliens and drive them into subversive groups against their natural inclinations.

Attorney General Jackson is entitled to a great deal of credit for his clear thinking on this problem. He is fully aware of the need for greater protection against enemies within our gates. To that end the Department of Justice has redoubled its efforts to enforce the law against spies and saboteurs and to keep under surveillance aliens who have aroused suspicions. At the same time, the Attorney General gives assurance that the new registration law will be carried out in a friendly spirit, with scrupulous regard for individual rights.

Perhaps the most significant message in this address is Mr. Jackson's announcement that the Federal Government now has the alien problem fully under control. There can be no further excuse for State interference with this function. Vigilante groups who attempt to harass aliens have also been put on notice they are rendering a grave disservice to their country. For lawlessness and mob violence themselves are only another form of fifth-column activity.

"Our liberties stand in more danger from our own excitement," said Mr. Jackson, "than from our enemies." His alert and yet restrained approach to a difficult problem is an example that may well be heeded in every department of government in these critical days.

Rout For Politicians?

The delegates who nominated Wendell Willkie at Philadelphia probably divided their week-end between catching up on sleep and contemplating Shakespeare's truism:

> The evil that men do lives after them;
> The good is oft interred with their bones.

Mr. Willkie's nomination has been generally hailed as a remarkable achievement. It is said to open new vistas of opportunity to the Republican Party. Yet many of those who are jubilant over the outcome of the Philadelphia convention are heaping scorn upon the politicians who did the nominating. Mr. Willkie, it is said, is the people's candidate who was foisted upon an unwilling convention by the power of public opinion in spite of all the politicians could do to stop him.

The popular demand for Mr. Willkie at Philadelphia is not open to question. But it is well to remember that the votes which nominated him were cast by delegates on the main floor and not by visitors in the galleries. Most of these political delegates had been designated to attend the Philadelphia convention before Mr. Willkie entered the arena as a serious contender for the nomination. A large number of them were pledged to other candidates.

Mr. Willkie is the G. O. P. nominee today only because a majority of the politicians having the right to vote at Philadelphia went to his support when their obligations to other candidates had been discharged. Some professional politicians opposed him until his victory was certain. Others took advantage of their first opportunity to vote for Willkie.

In any event, the whirlwind campaigner from Indiana was nominated by a convention of politicians. Assuming that he is the most promising candidate that the G. O. P. could have chosen, the result would seem to reflect a good deal of credit upon the delegates responsible for it. In a country that believes in fair play even the politician should be given his due.

The Havana Conference

The meeting in Havana this month of representatives of the 21 American republics will necessarily be exploratory in character, providing opportunity for a frank exchange of views preliminary to consideration of any definite program of action.

The agenda published by the Department of State classifies the subjects to be discussed under the headings of neutrality, protection of peace and economic cooperation. This classification serves as a reminder that the problems before the conference are of two types—political and economic.

It would be a grave error to assume that adequate hemisphere defense must have as its complement some ambitious scheme for emancipating Latin America from economic dependence upon Europe. An inspired editorial appearing in a publication of the Reich foreign office voices a warning against such a procedure. It holds out a hope that a Europe "pledged to solidarity" will again offer Latin-American countries access to their natural markets, instead of leaving them a prey to destructive economic warfare.

Of course, this statement ignores the real issue, but it does raise a vital question for the Americas. It is undeniably to the interest of the American republics to reestablish and maintain trading relations with Europe. The problem confronting them, however, is whether this can be done so long as Europe is dominated by a Germany that uses economic power as a coercive weapon against the politically weak.

Effective defense against Nazi tactics calls for strong political defenses against any form of external aggression. If that can be provided by joint action of the American republics the danger that trading contacts will be exploited by the Nazis as a prelude to political penetration will be greatly lessened. A united political front backed by force would be the best, and indeed the only effective weapon, against the methods employed by totalitarian states.

The Americas are dependent upon European outlets for their exports. And Europe in turn needs Argentina's corn, meat and hides, Brazil's coffee and cotton, Chile's copper and nitrate and other products. Moreover, South American exports are to a large extent agricultural products not needed or wanted by this country. The United States has its own surpluses to dispose of, notably cotton, and these surpluses often compete with the exports of the nations to the south of us. As a result, the opportunities for increasing trade between the Americas are limited, although there is room for some expansion.

It seems obvious that the trade problems now confronting the nations of this hemisphere cannot be solved by setting up a gigantic corporation to handle all exports. A scheme of this sort would necessitate control of production over vast continental areas, to avoid accumulation of unsalable surpluses. It is a grandiose conception, but its impracticability is self-evident.

Trade, after all, is a two-way game, which is played because both sides benefit. We sometimes talk as if Germany had everything to gain and nothing to lose by cutting herself and her satellites off from the material resources of this part of the world. As a matter of fact, Europe has great need of the food and industrial raw materials which Latin America has hitherto supplied. In bargaining negotiations a united western world can make demands as well as receive ultimatums.

The economic pressure which Nazi Germany has exercised in her dealings with Latin-American countries has been extraordinarily effective because they have been vulnerable to intimidation. The moral is clear: united political action will provide the basis for effective resistance to economic exploitation.

The Salvation Army

Seventy-five years of remarkable service will be celebrated this week by the Salvation Army. This humanitarian movement, begun in a London tent by William Booth, has spread to 97 countries and colonies.

In India alone the Army maintains 5,590 centers. It ministers to the lepers in Madras, Cochin, Travancore and the Marathi country. In Great Britain and Ireland, the organization's 107 centers include hospitals, district nursing posts, homes for mothers and infants, receiving homes, inebriates' homes, children's homes, shelters and hotels. From South America to the Belgian Congo and in war-torn China, the Salvation Army gives to the lost and destitute a message of hope and redemption.

The work in Washington, started in 1885, is now carried on through 10 posts. The Men's Social Department provides food, lodging and, where possible, jobs for destitute men. Recreation centers supervise playgrounds, craft classes and a summer camp for underprivileged youngsters. The Family Service Department supplies food and medical care and rehabilitates entire families.

The Salvation Army has made its own place in our social scheme. Specializing in the regeneration of the outcast and the succor of the hopeless, it has unique achievements to its credit.

A Lesson For Us

In view of the immense superiority of the material resources of France and Britain and their empires, over those of Germany, it is now evident that wealth alone does not guarantee victory. But why did French and British industry fail to meet the test of war? That question demands the most careful examination.

We in America are inclined rather complacently to stress our high degree of self-sufficiency in essential raw materials and the technical efficiency of our industries. These are assets of inestimable potential value to a nation arming for defense. But, as the experience of France and Great Britain has shown potential strength provides no assurance that an attack can be successfully resisted.

The ability of Germany to wage effective war against the wealthy European democracies had been greatly underrated because undue stress was laid upon the possession of material aids to the conduct of war. Too little attention was given to the problem of effective mobilization for war of national resources—manpower included.

When the hostilities began Germany was said to be suffering from a shortage of labor, inadequate transportation facilities and scarcity of various essential raw materials. But German industry was already organized to wage war, and the people were inured to acceptance of the hardships essential to such warfare. That was not the case in France and Great Britain. Their industries were operating on a peacetime basis and the people were reluctant to make the sacrifices required to speed up production for war.

An article in the current issue of Fortune points out that only one munitions plant was in operation in England over the long Whitsuntide holiday and that the French did not seriously attempt to put their aircraft and munitions works on a 70-hour week until the front had been broken at Sedan.

Given more time, the British and the French would have translated their resources into effective instrumentalities of combat that might have checked German aggression. But the heads of the swifter-moving totalitarian state had no intention of waiting for the slower-moving democracies to make the needed adjustments. The Germans struck before the enemy had fully realized the necessity of establishing centralized control over industry to insure maximum production of war equipment with utmost speed.

The lesson this country can draw from the tragic experiences of the European democracies is obvious. It is not necessary to adopt a Nazi system to prepare for adequate defense. But democracy must certainly be made to function more effectively than it has done in the recent past.

The American Method

Italian newspapers, commenting on the Republican convention, are reported to have said that the American method of selecting a candidate is an "incomprehensible mystery." One need not take offense at this confusion, which doubtless is shared by many who live under political systems different from our own.

A person of fascist mind could not be expected to understand our system of open discussion, of bickering, bargaining, horn-tooting and vote-switching. Closer to the totalitarian pattern, perhaps, is the conclave in the smoke-filled room—which had no part in this year's choice by the G. O. P. For us the important factor is that the candidate was, as the Italian press observes, selected—not dictated.

Complaints are being made that Washington is honeycombed with nepotism. If it is true that Government offices are run mainly by kinsfolk, it's no longer any mystery to us why it's so difficult to get any action out of them.

"Congress has reduced the cost of becoming a citizen of the United States."—News item. Wish it would reduce the cost of remaining one.

Perhaps the prophet is without honor in his own country because his fellow-countrymen checked up on his prophecies.

"World conditions aren't so bad that they can't get worse," asserts a philosopher, of a sort. Maybe so, but the margin is fast becoming narrower.

There are many tough persons in this world to whom you cannot afford to be polite. They mistake politeness for weakness.

Europe's History

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No one making even a superficial study of the history of Europe can fail to note that that country has been in a state of chronic warfare manifested in periodical acute attacks, ever since any record has been kept. The different territories have been bandied back and forth all down the ages, and practically every generation requires a new school geography. The idea that America can do anything about it is a childish absurdity which can result in nothing but her own destruction.

Very recently we have had a clearcut example of this. Needless to remind anyone we received neither thanks, reimbursement, nor so much as honorable mention for our headless, hysterical venture. What we did receive were hospitals filled with insane boys, thousands of permanent cripples, and many gold stars for the young dead. Added to this was the total disruption of our business system, the utter collapse of morals, inevitably attending mass murder, and an accumulation of debt under which we are still staggering.

The Peace Issue

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The issues of the coming election are very simple, for they simmer down to whether we desire to send our sons to fight, be wounded, gassed or die on foreign soil, or remain at home being ever ready to defend our Nation against any attack.

Those who believe it wise to sacrifice their sons upon the altar of foreign wars, will vote the Democratic ticket. Those who feel it best to keep their sons on American soil, prepared and ever ready to defend this Nation, will vote the Republican ticket.

Drifting America

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: America is drifting on a mounting wave of hysteria toward involvement in the imperialist war in Europe, and toward the establishment of a Fascist dictatorship at home. To close one's eyes to these facts is to make the danger even greater and to bring the realization of these catastrophes even sooner.

That "preparedness" and democracy cannot go hand in hand has been proved in the sufferings of the American working-people. While President Roosevelt slashed WPA and other social services by a billion dollars in the name of "economy" billions were stampeded through Congress for instruments of death.

Airplane Motors

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Tragic is the one word that accurately describes the present Administration's failure to cooperate with the Ford Motor Co. in its plans to build airplane engines and aircraft for the defense of the American Nation. Here was a great opportunity for the Administration to show the people that it had faith in the President's pledge of 50,000 airplanes for the defense of the United States, but the National Advisory Commission for Defense, muffed it, simply because the Ford company refused to also build airplane equipment for England.

Dual Labor Leadership

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter writer is right when he says in his June 24 Post article that "executive self-interest is in the saddle and is riding hard." When you touch a man's pocketbook you most generally touch his heart. No matter what the organization—be it political, religious, fraternal, or otherwise—if the emoluments are substantial those who are in the saddle endeavor to perpetuate it. Duplication of work is not only costly but confusing. This applies to labor particularly. The duumvirate that pretends to guide labor in its various movements reminds us of the Capello twins—joined in body, but separate in thought and action.

But we will go a step further. Create a semiofficial house, not under the control of but sanctioned by the Government. Let it work under a constitution approved by Congress, but be self-sustaining, separate and free from interdepartmental interference or political domination. Make it a clearing house for all labor disputes. Then if no agreement can be reached let the matter be settled by some official board set up by the Government for that very purpose, where both capital and labor may have an equal chance.

Defends Bridges

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am at a loss to understand how a correspondent, in his letter to you dated June 15, is able to come to the conclusion that "Congress is possessed of all the necessary evidence to show that Harry R. Bridges has carried out all the communistic principles as laid down by the Communist Party of Russia."

As a matter of fact the report of Dean James M. Landis, of the Harvard Law School, the very best evidence which is in the hands of Congress, concludes that the evidence does not show that Harry Bridges is "either a member of the Communist Party or affiliated with that party."

Dean Landis reached this conclusion after holding hearings for 45 days on charges brought by the Labor Department that Bridges was subject to deportation because of his supposed Communist membership or affiliation. In analyzing the 7,724 pages of testimony taken at the hearings, Dean Landis came to the conclusion that Harry Bridges unequivocally distrusted "tactics other than those that are generally included within the concept of democratic methods."

ELEANOR FOWLER.

Fixity Of Mind

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Walter Lippmann's alarming warning to American capital and labor of the economic consequences of the totalitarian dominance of European conditions, and Dorothy Thompson's regrets for the absence of any forward-looking leadership at the Philadelphia convention, place The Post far in the lead in the functions of journalism in a democracy.

That better circumstanced people fail to see the social phenomena about them is characteristic, but that, today, men dare to seek leadership in national affairs by merely fault-finding proves the educational weakness of unfamiliarity with the classics, because great civilizations have perished for just such fixity of mind and habits of thought.

Nazi Aims And The U. S.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The United States cannot escape war! War is as inevitable for America as it was for Britain, France, Norway, and all the others. All these nations hoped that they might avoid war, or at least postpone it to a more opportune date. All these nations, to the very last, could not really make up their minds to believe in the inevitable. The major reason for their complacency and inertia—frankly called "decadence" by the Nazis—was their stubborn refusal to understand the diabolical and universal ambition of the Hitler movement.

Holland trusted to her dikes; France, in the Maginot Line; England, to the Channel. Many Americans still trust in the Atlantic Ocean. Together with Messrs. Liddell Hart and Gamelin, they believe in defensive arfare: "Let Hitler attack and then we will deal with him." Hitler will attack America as surely as he has attacked Britain and France. He cannot afford to wait until the United States has built up her fleet of 50,000 planes. Even if we assume that he does not intend to incorporate Latin America into the Greater European Reich, —an assumption on the part of some Americans that, in all modesty, I would call foolhardy on the basis of a long and thorough acquaintance with the Nazis—Hitler is compelled by cold military logic to make Brazil and Patagonia outposts for the defense of his empire, before the potentially hostile United States gets there.

In all probability, the United States will be drawn into the war as soon as the Allied governments and the remnants of the British fleet come to Canada to carry on the struggle from the Guianas, Bermuda, and Halifax. This may be expected within weeks rather than within months. Even if Britain should make peace on Hitler's terms without carrying the war directly into the Western Hemisphere, the United States must be prepared for a desperate and lone defense, probably before the snow flies. Unless the United States agrees to scrap her rearmament program, to share Latin America with Nazi Europe, and to grant Germans within the borders of the United States full political freedom to organize their bunds, an armed conflict with Hitler is inevitable in the very near future.

A world-wide blockade against American trade, the sterilization of American gold, the fomenting of unrest and revolution in Latin America, skillful attempts to demoralize the American home front through the use of export bribes—all these will be supplementary weapons in the well-prepared Nazi attack on America. Japan and Russia will be Hitler's allies in this supreme test, or nonbelligerent bystanders on the Fascist side. As to the military situation, a high Nazi military officer, whose particular duty it is to study American defense, said not so long ago: "America is an open country. One can walk right in."

The only question that remains to be answered is: Will Americans decide to make their own desperate last stand as long as they still have allies, as long as one or the other small nation in Europe may be persuaded away from the Axis, and as long as American planes can still find landing fields in Europe and Africa? Or will they wait until Hitler flings the gauntlet in their faces? Fifty "flying fortresses" today would accomplish more than five hundred of these planes could accomplish one month hence.

Foot Tourist In Mexico

No alligators here, no parrots, monkeys, sluggish rivers where the family laundry is beaten by stones. No, these are hills of Mazatlan.

"No, senor," said the voluntary guide—"No" is a word of countless suggestion in Mexico. "No, I cannot name these flowers. My father has said they are nameless. My father is a gentleman most gr-rand, senor."

Flowers are massed in profusion. Flowers are rolling with a breeze in formation—the flowers of Mazatlan. In another month of beating sun these west coast hills would be lusterless, dead, desolate. Today they pulse with life. Mexico!

"I tell you, senor," said the guide, a lad of 18 who apparently had worn callouses in lieu of shoes all his days, whose feet looked as dry as a lizard hide, "I tell you that some time I, too, shall become a gentleman most gr-rand. Perhaps I shall be presidente. Who shall say?"

It was the spirit of Mexico talking, braggadocio and ambitions intermingling. This waif who had, uninvited, attached himself to an American tourist bent on seeing the hinterlands of Mexico, seemed to typify the new Mexico. Here was a lad of learning—schools were everywhere—whose pink camisa was spotless, but whose feet resembled the horny texture of a reptile skin, a lad who wanted to be presidente.

"What makes you think you'd like to be presidente?" the American asked of Beto (His real name was Alberto). Beto had steered a wiry pack burro and the tourist through desert with its spiny denizens, over mountains, through parrot and monkey saturated jungle, gater-ridden swamp and up the slopes of volcanos. They had returned to Mazatlan, where Beto is sometimes a sort of messenger at the wireless station. "Any reason?" the American insisted.

"Oh, I am not decide—why." Beto grinned. "But seguro que si! I am become one great man from the telegrafico. (He meant wireless operator). Then perhaps I am become a general. From there—it is not so few kilometers from general to presidente," he pointed out.

Ambition! Throughout Mexico you find young men who have set their hearts on attainment. Beto is just one of them, but perhaps worth a dozen others in his own estimation. This Mexican population of males reminds one of youthful fervor in the United States, say in 1912, when ambitions were rampant there.

"No," declared Beto, plucking an adjacent flower with horny toes, "I am of the gente. My father is a gentleman from Spain, por supuesto que si! I am of the best. Do not all good caballeros bow low for my father and speak to him as a senor mas elegante? Absolutemente! Therefore, I am—what you call—going places also, senor. I am become the general, maybeso the presidente. Who can say?"

Seldom does anyone work quite so enthusiastically for so little as does Beto. Laziness? Not an ounce in his entire system. Perhaps sloth has fled across the border to Mexico's half-somnolent northern neighbor. Again, who knows? There is gusto in Beto's movements as he hobbles Lady Oppington, the burro, a name bestowed on the animal by Beto himself one day when he chanced to hear by radio the first lady of another land. Beto is Mexican, humorous, prideful, shoeless, hungry to learn, anxious to accomplish great things—with so little.

"No, senor," said Beto, opening a can of Argentine beef with deft fingers. "I am building fine es-schools, great houses, roads and beeg machines. These things are simple, senor, when that so powerful America, your country, makes the friendship and will not throw the crowbar in the wheels. Si! (The tourist quickly learns that Mexico is jealous of independence, wants to work out her own destiny without interference).

"America, she is seek," Beto explained.

They ate supper of beef, guavos and leathery tortillas, cold. Beto rolled a cigarette from American "makings" and handed it to the foot tourist.

"My father," he boasted, "he was beautiful gentleman. He is most kind, good, most valiante. All men must love him. He is most simpatico, senor. He belongs to a good son. I have heard him say so."

"Beto," the American inquired, "you have spoken highly of your father on every occasion. But you have never spoken of your mother. What about her? Is she simpatica, also?"

The young Mexican's manner immediately became vague. He inspected the flower vista which had purpled under swift approaching nightfall. He shrugged.

"As to that mama, I cannot say," he finally admitted. "I have heard my father say that once I had one mother. But how can I tell? My father, who is gr-rand, mas brilliante, has told me that he has married a woman. Quien sabe. It is too long ago, senor." Again he shrugged.

Stars came out to wink suddenly at Lady Oppington, an inquisitive American tourist and a barefoot Mexican boy who, even then in the fragrant hills of Mazatlan, planned to become presidente of his country.

Political Venture

By Ernest Lindley

Forces Behind Willkie

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY has embarked on an exciting political venture. There are no precedents by which to gauge Wendell Willkie. His nomination blasted all precedents. He knocked out or made tardy and reluctant allies of the professional politicians of the Republican Party. His nomination was refreshing to people who have been fed up for years, or recently have become fed up, with the timidities and parroting—yes, the behavior—of so many professional politicians.

There were potent forces back of Willkie even though, with his hastily assembled group of amateurs, he routed the professional politicians. Most potent was the support of businessmen—the financial backbone of the Republican Party. He has been their ablest spokesman—in fact, their only successful spokesman in recent years. Secondly, was the power of the press—both magazines and newspapers.

Never within my recollection has there been such a blitzkrieg of favorable publicity concerning any individual as the press created for Willkie in the few weeks preceding the Republican National Convention. This was not planned and directed from any central source. When publishers, who are first of all businessmen, saw even a chance to put Willkie across they went to work with the same vigor and enthusiasm that—it is to be hoped—the whole nation would respond to an armed invasion. In close alliance were sundry intellectual and articulate persons who recognized that Willkie is an educated and intelligent man. He is what many businessmen would like to be but few have the wit and learning to be.

AS A POLITICAL personality, Willkie must be classed with the two Roosevelts, Bryan, the late Senator La Follette, LaGuardia and the late Huey P. Long. All of these latter were more or less on the progressive side. Within this century American politics has had no real conservative who had strong popular appeal. Al Smith was considered progressive in the twenties, but his appeal did not stretch far beyond the urban area.

How conservative is Willkie? Nobody really knows. He has been the ablest spokesman for business interests. But he was brought up on an atmosphere of German socialism. As a young man he followed the banner of Bryan and the late Senator La Follette. Since then he has become a successful lawyer and public utility executive. With such success, won by their own efforts, many men become complacently conservative. Willkie certainly is not complacent. It is by no means certain that he is extremely conservative—that he is not, more of a progressive than, for example, Cordell Hull or James A. Farley or John N. Garner, or any of the other old-line Democrats to whom businessmen have been clinging during President Roosevelt's two terms.

It remains to be seen also whether Willkie can resist the pressure both of the professional politicians, on whom he must rely largely for the conduct of his campaign from now on, and of the businessmen contributors to the Republican Party. In 1936 I saw Alf M. Landon start out as an economical moderate progressive and end up preaching the doctrine of the American Liberty League, Herbert Hoover and Wall street. He gave way bit by bit, hardly realizing that he was giving way, under the influence of a reactionary brains-trust and the steady pounding of the chief financial backers of his party.

WILLKIE MAY BE a tougher man, or, since his hell-raising youth, he may have gone altogether over to the right wing, but what he says and does will require the closest inspection—all the more so because he has a beguiling personality and very considerablable skill in debate.

Willkie is a Republican gamble. He might sweep the country. He might go down to a defeat more ignominous even than Hoover's in 1932 or Landon's in 1936. Much depends on his own ability to keep his head and his feet after this sudden projection into the political arena.

His nomination may have put President Roosevelt on the spot. If the President does not accept a third nomination he will be accused of retiring because he feared defeat by Willkie. His successor as the Democratic nominee would start with that handicap. If the President runs again, he might be beaten. All the other possible nominees were unknown quantities. Willkie is an enigma.

Has the Democratic Party any personality other than Roosevelt's strong enough to stand up against Willkie? This question will plague every Democrat. Willkie may flop, but it is unlikely that he will have flopped before the Democrats meet in Chicago in mid-July. They must remain apprehensive, for, barring Roosevelt, none of their old leaders is a match for Willkie on the personality or forensics and none of their young men has had, or can expect, the laudatory press campaign which helped nominate Willkie and will be behind him at least until the election.

Goal of the Guild

I WOULD like to reveal the character of the journalism that must be expected if the American Newspaper Guild under Communist domination, as at present, should ever establish absolute authority over the American press through the closed shop. That is the goal of the Newspaper Guild.

The Guild Reporter is the official organ on this C. I. O. union and, naturally, is a partisan publication. However, it complains of lies and half-truths in writings critical of the Guild, and on that basis assumes an obligation to refrain, itself, from deception of its members and nonmembers through misrepresentation. In fact, as the official organ of a group professing to represent the best American journalism it should present the whole known truth on every question which it discusses. Failing to do this, it gives warning that, under Guild control, the whole journalism of the United States would be no better than that presented in the Reporter.

A typical issue, that of June 15, provides some items for discussion from this approach.

ONE ITEM, headed "A. F. of L. Memory Short," reports that the C. I. O. executive board appropriated $500 to the widow of Sam Gompers and would arrange to get her a job. She was "saved from starvation" by the C. I. O. after the A. F. of L. had "repeatedly" refused her pleas for a job or assistance." That story is incomplete. The A. F. of L. has another version of the case which relieves the A. F. of L. of the charge of ingratitude to Sam Gompers through apparent neglect of his widow. I will just state flatly that the Guild Reporter has suppressed that part of the story in order to smear the A. F. of L.

This issue of the Reporter also prints complaint that documents exposing the Communist control of the Guild were placed in the hands of newspaper workers in a shop where a vote was in progress on Guild affiliation. The revelations are dismissed as "the usual bilge" and "antiunion" propaganda. But, nevertheless, the workers having studied them, voted not to join the Guild.

That means only that the workers exercised their informed intelligence and asserted their right not to join. Nevertheless, there is a distinct note of complaint, as though these people should have been kept in ignorance of the facts.

IN THIS connection the Guild Reporter does not and never has mentioned the fact that the Communist element circulated the Communist Daily Worker among the employes in a Guild strike in Brooklyn. It was all right to shower those American workers with anti-American Communist propaganda, but it was "antiunion" to place in the hands of another group information exposing the Communist control of the Guild. The Reporter also fails to mention that an employer once was officially forbidden to distribute, even by mail, information concerning union leadership and to contrast that suppression with the bombardment of the Brooklyn workers with Communist propaganda.

Another item reports that a woman member, who was elected president of her Guild unit, was transferred from her job as secretary to routine duties where she would not occupy a confidential position. The Guild has demanded her reinstatement in the secretarial job, but the Reporter does not explain that in such a case the employer's confidence would be exposed to a person in opposition to his interests. The Guild itself holds that the interests of the worker and the employer are in conflict, and in the present case it is revealed that the conflict has been aggravated. The Guild further acknowledges its hostility to the employers by providing that members who reveal Guild secrets to employers may be expelled. Yet it would try to compel employers to intrust their secrets to Guild members. The Guild would have it that even an avowed Communist could not be relieved of confidential duties by a company engaged in secret works for national defense.

These instances, which could be multiplied by a thousand from the files of the Guild Reporter, are typical of the journalism which the United States could expect under a universal Guild closed shop.

Teuton And Slav In The Balkans

THIS STRANGE new world which is being hammered out in Europe on the anvil of war has, in certain particulars, more than a fleeting resemblance to the past. Witness, for instance, Russia's sudden incursion into the Balkans. That development is pregnant with far-reaching possibilities for the future. Yet it is a variation on a once familiar theme. It recalls "old, forgotten, far-off things and battles long ago."

For practical purposes, it makes very little difference whether the acquisition of Bessarabia and northern Bukovina by the Soviet Union was based on a prior understanding between Russia, Germany and Italy, or not. Official spokesmen of the Axis powers would have the world believe that the rape of Rumania was according to a preconceived plan. There are plenty of indications, however, that Germany and Italy were shocked by the timing and the extent of the Russian coup, if not by its nature.

THE STATUS QUO in the Balkans has been shattered beyond restoration. Russia is now in a position to threaten the Danube, an artery vital to Germany at all times, and particularly so at the present moment. The Soviet Union has also taken a significant step in the direction of the Dardanelles and the Near East, the objectives of that Drang Nach Osten, which played a great role in German policy before the World War and was revived by Hitler.

It is possible that Stalin will be content with gains already made and will go no farther. But there can be no certainty of this in Berlin and Rome, in Bucharest and Ankara. For having embarked on a policy of territorial expansion based on strategic considerations, Russia's dictator may find it difficult to stop.

If Russia is to be made secure against a possible German aggression it may not be enough, in the eyes of the Kremlin, to have secured domination over Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, to have regained Bessarabia and taken northern Bukovina. There is always the possibility to be taken into account that the Axis powers, if victorious, will attack Russia by sea, through Turkey, the Dardanelles and the Black Sea.

SO FAR as the immediate situation is concerned Russia's move of last week is the obvious sequel to the collapse of France and the possibility that the defeat of Great Britain by the Axis powers may not be far off. It does not in the least follow that it was undertaken to ease the pressure on the latter country although it may indirectly have such a result.

If Russia had any real interest in preserving the British Empire as a bulwark against Hitler she could have shown it at the time of Italy's entry into the war when she had to decide whether to give the green light to Turkey to join the Allies. Actually the Kremlin vetoed such action by the Ankara government. Turkey now finds herself in a position of acute dependency on the Soviet Union and not a little worried by that circumstance. For with France out of the war the Allied army in the Near East has crumbled away; Syria has been left unprotected; should Great Britain be forced to clear out of the Mediterranean, Turkey's position might soon become parlous.

Nonetheless, Russia's coup is not without certain potential usefulness to the beleaguered British. If it results, as is possible, in a crumbling of the precariously maintained structure of peace in the Balkans it will bring about a curtailment of the foodstuffs and raw material shipments, including shipments of oil, from that region to Germany and Italy. And it would also compel the Axis power to keep reserve forces of men and planes to deal with possible developments in that region.

FROM THE long-range point of view the greatest significance of the Russian move is that Russia has now reverted to an old policy which helped keep the Balkans in a highly unsettled state in the past and is likely to produce turmoil in the future whatever the outcome of the fighting in the west may be.

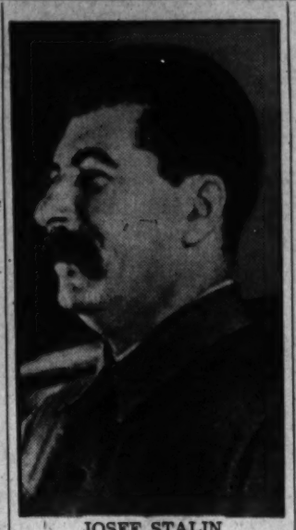
Just seventy years ago Gen. Fadeiev, one of the forerunners of the Panslavist movement in Russia wrote a book "Opinion on the Eastern Question" in which he argued that Russia's chief opponent in Europe as not Great Britain and France, her enemies in the days of the Crimean war, but Germanism.

The next year saw the publication by Nicholas Danilevski of a volume. "Russia and Europe" which became the bible of the Panslavists. It was there argued that the goal of Russian endeavor should be Constantinople and in line with that objective Russia should take over Galicia and the Ruthenian parts of Bukovina and Hungary.

Galicia fell to Russia last year as her share of partitioned Poland. The northern part of Bukovina, with its large Ruthenian population was annexed by Russia last week. Will Ruthenia, which Hungary secured from Czecho-Slovakia after Munich, be the next to go? It is the only Ruthenian—i.e. Ukrainian—area not under Russian rule.

In the meantime, Hungary is clamoring for Transylvania and Bulgaria envisages the possibility of regaining, with Russian help, the lost region of southern Dobrudja. Italy and Germany, however, are apparently putting pressure on the Budapest and Sofia governments to bide their time, holding out to them the hope that their territorial ambitions will be fully satisfied once the Axis has won the war.

The last thing Germany and Italy want today is an explosion in the Balkans. That is why Hitler and Mussolini are standing by while Stalin repeats in the Balkans the same ruthless tactics they have employed elsewhere. But the current display of energy by the Kremlin makes it peremptory for them, if Stalin is to be held in check, to win the Battle of Britain and win it speedily. Otherwise the day of reckoning with Russia may be fatally delayed.



JOSEF STALIN
In moving into the Balkans he is reverting to an old Czarist policy, says Barnet Nover in his article today

Nazi Industry Hurt, British Say

night reported four British air raids on Germany and German-held territory within 24 hours.

Abbeville Hangar Bombed

British bombs struck a hangar at Abbeville, near the French coast of the English Channel Saturday afternoon, it said, set four German aircraft afire and damaged others.

Widespread attacks on transport, industrial and military objectives Saturday night in Germany, Belgium and Holland ith "damage done to all objectives" also was reported.

In a renewed assault this morning on the Nazi air base at Merville, grounded German aircraft were bombed the ministry said, and this afternoon Royal Air Force bombs left rolling stock ablaze at a railroad yard north of Abbeville.

Six Planes Lost

It acknowledged loss of six British planes on these forays and said that, in addition to German planes destroyed on the ground, five Messerschmidts were shot down.

German aerial forays over Britand yesterday Royal Air Force military damage, according to British reports.

A joint communique of the air and home security ministries said British fighter planes' resistance prevented any concentrated Nazi attack and listed casualties as two killed and eight injured.

Nazis Claim Successes

[In Berlin, however, a high command communique said explosions and fires, including flaming tanks at the ports of Cardiff and Bristol, were observed by Nazi fliers raiding "harbor facilities and munitions works in England and Scotland."

[Successful raids also were made on British airfields at Lincoln, Nottingham and York, it said.

[A German radio announcement said 16 persons were killed and 11 wounded by British bombs dropped Friday night near Wahn, 10 miles southeast of Cologne, but that bombings last night did little damage.

[The high command said British planes bombed nonmilitary objectives in northern and western Germany and one British plane machine gunned a firefighting unit trying to extinguish a residence fire. Loss of one German plane was acknowledged. Four British planes were claimed shot down.

[The radio announcement said most of the bombs last night fell in fields and meadows near Weiler, Erp and Borl, in northwestern Germany.]

Damage Called Slight

British agencies acknowledged that German raiders were "over the southwest and near Bristol Channel" for several hours Saturday night.

Although high explosives fell on land in the Bristol Channel area, ualties and no material damage.

In southwestern England, they said, half a dozen bombs fell in the center of one town, blocked a road and damaged a wide area, but inflicted no casualties.

24 Bombs Hit Village

Twenty-four bombs hit villages in southeastern England far removed from any industrial center, these sources reported, but caused only broken windows and deep pits in cornfields and pastures.

Each night for a week, Royal Air Force fliers have struck at munitions works, aircraft factories, oil dumps and railway junctions in Germany. They even have made daylight attacks on industrial centers and parked airplanes.

British Pick Targets

British sources declared that the Royal Air Force, having achieved aerial initiative despite the miles added to bomber routes by the fall of France, are able now to select targets most worthwhile to attack.

On the other hand, Britons declare that Nazi raids on this country, admittedly a curtain raiser for the "big show," have failed to achieve important results.

Appearance for the first time of fighter patrols over Germany during the past week, they contend, is evidence that British successes have forced the Germans to withdraw fighters from other fronts to cope with the behind-the-lines attacks.

CR-42 had its fuel tanks riddled, burst into flames and fluttered to the earth while another was badly damaged. Two R. A. F. planes failed to return.

Two Italian raids on Port Sudan yesterday caused no material damage. A tri-motor Fascist bomber was shot down. The wreckage of an Italian plane, was washed up on the beach at Mersa Matruh. The British have continued successful reconnaissances.

Libya Front Active

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, June 30.—The war communique issued tonight announces that "considerable activity" on the Libyan-Egyptian frontier, where Italian troops have repulsed attacks of motorized enemy columns. The bulletin shows that in this sector the Italian armed forces continue to remain on the defensive while Italian diplomacy is taking stock of the aftermath of France's collapse and its repercussions in the Mediterranean and Near East.

The Italians are especially interested in Egypt, whose attitude is thought to have prevented so far a large-scale Italian offensive against the British forces stationed in this territory. There seems to be an intention on the part of Italy of doing nothing that would authorize Egypt to enter the war on the side of Britain and this, perhaps, explains why the Italian forces on the Libyan-Egyptian frontier have until now remained on the defensive.

Developments, however, are expected very shortly in view of the different situation arising in the Near East as a result of the pledge given by Gen. Eugene Mittlehauser, commander of the French Middle East army, to obey the decisions of the Petain government. The neutralization of Gen. Mittlehauser's army in Syria will, it is thought, weaken the position of the British forces massed on the Suez Canal zone and in Palestine. It will also, according to the Italians, influence the attitude of Turkey, which finds herself deprived of a powerful force near at home in case of complications in that sector.

Italy Biding Time

The general opinion is that Italy is biding her time in the Mediterranean. Italy seems to have adopted a strategy of immobilizing British forces in the Mediterranean to prevent them from aiding the home forces.

The Italians are convinced that wars are won on the national territories and not on the colonies. The collapse of the French Empire has strengthened this belief and therefore they feel certain that should England be conquered, all British possessions in the Mediterranean will follow the example of the French and abide by the decisions of the home government.

On the other hand, there are some who believe that a simultaneous attack by Germany against the British Isles and by Italy against the British-controlled territories in the Mediterranean should not be excluded. They argue that the British Empire may go on fighting even if the mother country is beaten and that no time should therefore be lost in preventing the British fleet in the Mediterranean from joining the home units.

Is Praised After Death

The event that has touched Italians more than anything else was Air Marshal Italo Balbo's death. The newspapers dedicate several columns to his life, vying with each other in extolling his achievements—a striking contrast with the one-paragraph items, buried in the inside pages, which have recorded his doings in recent years.

According to informaiton reaching Italian circles today, Marshal Balbo left Tripoli (remainder of sentence deleted by censor). The purpose of his trip was to make an inspection among the Libyan (remainder of paragraph deleted).

He was about to land when several British planes appeared from (remainder of paragraph deleted).

Japan Seen Eying East Indies While Russia Is Occupied

San Francisco, June 30 (AP).—Japan, fearful of Russia for centuries, probably is taking advantage of the Soviet Union's turned back to cast possessive glances at French and British holdings in the Orient, Ernest O. Hauser, an authority on the Far East, said today.

"Japan always will have to consider the unsolved Russian problem at her back door," said Hauser, former research associate of the Institute of Pacific Relations in New York.

"The Japanese always have been afraid of big Russia, and their move in the south probably is timed with Russia's preoccupation in Europe."

Russia is extremely powerful in Vladivostok, the Pacific port, and along the Amur River, borderline between Siberia and Manchoukuo, he said. The flying distance from Vladivostok to Tokyo is only some 750 miles.

Left virtually orphaned through Dutch capitulation to Germany, The Netherlands Indies would be a rich strike should the Japanese move in.

And Japan in the East Indies would mean a major link out of Great Britain's "far eastern Maginot Line" reaching from Australia through British Borneo and Malay to India.

For A New America

By Dorothy Thompson

An Unheard Speech

MR. WILLKIE stands on the Republican platform. It is very weak timber on which to stand. The good American earth is firmer.

At the convention I listened for a voice. I listened for a voice which would say what my ears, just one pair of American ears, wanted to hear. If it had spoken, I think it might have said something like this: Men and Women of the United States of America:

In the gravest days of this republic to make a bid for the leadership of this Nation is a serious responsibility. It is a responsibility that no man should lightly seek, and from which, if his soul is awake and aware, he will recoil. Half the world is engaged in a great civil war, testing whether any nation, conceived as ours was, in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal, can long endure.

If, therefore, we seek the leadership of the Nation in this hour, it must be with humility, and with the utmost dedication to a gigantic task. No man is to be envied who sets his foot upon the path to the White House in these times.

Yet there will be sources of great strength behind him, if he lets them get through to him. Those sources of strength are in the myriad souls that are crying out to us: Save America! Let us listen to what they are crying out to us. They are crying, Save America—Save her for the present and for the future—Save her for the purpose for which she was born; the lifting and ennobling of man upon this earth. Preserve her and rebuild her! Keep flying the banner of the brave and the free. Make it the banner of the New World, built by the children of a world in collapse—the Old World. Show us how to use our energies and our resources, our vast unused capital of money and goods and men, our great untapped reserves of manual and mental and spiritual energy, that we may make, and make speedily, a paradise for men upon this heartbroken earth, and a paradise that we can defend forever.

This is what the people of the United States are demanding that political leadership should do. This and nothing less is what political leadership must undertake to do. We must liberate the energies of this continent, for regeneration and for defense.

THE AMERICAN NATURE, the American tradition, the American way, is not to regiment men and resources into a rigid army commanded by party bureaucrats and ununiformed Gestapos. The great American word is Freedom. But it is not our task to free our resources in order that each man may scramble for his own privilege, but to free them that each individual and each organization may realize themselves as individual players in the great symphony orchestra of a common effort.

Whoever becomes President of the United States today as a candidate of a great party must seek only to serve the whole people of this Nation—the cotton picker of the Alabama plantation, the farmer on his farm, the youth battering vainly at the doors of opportunity, as well as the organizers of industry, who in the last years have been baffled and bound by ill-considered theories and confused means gropingly used to promote necessary and desirable objectives.

Whatever party can find the key, liberate the energies and save America need not worry about its future. Its future is inseparably linked to the future of the United States of America. The future of our youth, the future of every industrialist, the future of every farmer, the future of our workers are all inseparably linked to the future of the United States of America.

We should waste little of our energies in this campaign upon recriminatory attacks upon each other, whatever our party may be. Let the dead past bury its dead. None of us is all-wise; none of us has had such foresight that he can be arrogant about the failures of others.

THE NEW DEAL, for all its idealism, is inadequate to the tasks at hand and anead. Let us give credit to its social ideas. It has faltered in social reality. But let us not repeat its mistakes, and subject our program to petty partisan considerations of political preferment. Let us not try to keep ourselves in power by trying to buy the American people. We do not need to buy them. We only need to attract them, and show them what to do. They are eager to have their heads and hearts and hands unleashed.

In a few short weeks a world has passed away. We must therefore look at ourselves and at our Nation and its problems with fresh eyes. Much of what all of us said yesterday is no longer valid, for the premises on which our words and thoughts were based are no longer there.

Yet we were not born today, and though our program and performance must be adapted to a new situation, the things in which we believe, the body of our national faith is more valid than ever in history. Men are still born free and still seek equality and happiness. Government of the people, by the people and for the people is still the hope of this earth. Freedom of speech, of press and of assembly, freedom of enterprise, freedom to own property, freedom to live one's personal life in privacy—all these freedoms have not lost their validity because they have been locked up in concentration camps or trampled into earth by marching men. They live on this soil and they live in millions of hearts everywhere on this unhappy earth. They will live until the last human soul has perished on this globe.

Our party must make it absolutely clear that we shall defend these freedoms, and defend them where they must be defended—against their enemies. These freedoms are instruments to preserve freedom. They must not be turned into instruments by which foreign powers invade our press, our assembly halls and our corporations to divide this Nation and plunge it into strife. They must not be used as a means of promoting class hatred and racial fury, letting loose the dogs of war in our midst rather than across the seas.

WE SHOULD MAKE it clear that the Communist Party will be outlawed under our Administration, because it is an instrument of a foreign government; and that the bund will be outlawed for the same reason. But we should deal with this problem at the source, and not by persecuting deluded WPA workers. And we should grant to all Americans whose party line is not laid down in Moscow, Berlin or Rome, the right to advocate what they will, as honest, independent men. Nor shall we interpret freedom of enterprise to mean freedom to betray this greater freedom for any investments or opportunities abroad.

We should give our oath to the people of the United States that never while we are in office will any other flag be carried in our streets, or any uniforms not our own be worn.

We should give our oath that never will there be a Nazi, a Fascist or a Communist movement camping on the White House lawn or in the halls of government.

We should swear that never will men live in terror because of their race.

We shall not protect our institutions by a defensive, but by an offensive war. But we shall wage that offensive against the leaders and not against the little fellows, for they will come with us when they see where we are going.

THE CHIEF REASON why the fifth column is a menace is because all our own columns are not mobilized, but are seeking their own interests.

The beginning of our defense program is spiritual integration.

For 1,200 years, in victory and in defeat, France has been a great and independent nation. Today France is beaten to her knees.

For more than 800 years, Great Britain has been a mighty power. Today she is overcome with disaster.

Why has this happened to two great nations? France was beaten in part because she did not have enough machines, but she was also beaten because men dropped their guns upon the field of battle. Why did they drop their guns and abandon whole mechanized columns? Because their leaders had wasted their energies in petty bickerings; because their leaders loved their own political jobs and their own foreign investments and their own dividends more than they loved the nation. Because their leaders were blind to the social discontent amongst the people. Because of the incredible complacency of those leaders, who up to the last moment were prepared to settle things with a deal.

Let us not make the same mistake.

Let us have, from now on, neither an Old Deal nor a New Deal, but a New America.

TODAY, to a degree that could not even be imagined two months ago, machines and mechanized equipment are essential to win a war or defend a nation. But machines are driven by men, and no country can defend itself whose soldiers and citizens do not fight their several battles with complete solidarity and conviction.

This hemisphere, as the last refuge of the Rights of Man, must be equipped to repulse not only one mighty power but a combination of hostile powers. America must arm herself, using whatever means are necessary for this task, with a joyful willingness to sacrifice and on a scale and with a speed that will surpass the expectation and the imagination of all potential enemies of this country. America must arm herself in spirit and in might. We must make a nation which every American of every race, creed and economic condition will die to defend.

We shall look to our defenses, to our social defenses and to our material defenses. And I have absolute confidence that if we do so, there will pour forth that spiritual energy without which nothing great can be done.

America is facing the greatest moment of her history; she is facing one of the great moments in the history of the world. She is not yet awakened, either to her peril or to the sublime grandeur of her destiny. We shall either fulfill on this hemisphere the hopes that mankind has always had of us or we shall perish off this earth.

We shall not perish. We shall fulfill those hopes. There is no time to lose.

Let us begin—today.

FELLOW CITIZENS: It does not greatly matter who is President of the United States, so long as he is an honest and able man. We need no Fuehrer. We are self-governing. But it matters very greatly that the people of the United States who feel the importance of this hour should get together in the greatest pressure group in our history—the pressure group for America.

In response to your many letters, I have therefore made this move. Let us find each other and then find millions more.

Balkans Facing Hunger After Food Seizure by Soviets

Budapest, June 30 (AP).—Russia seized the only bumper crop of wheat and corn in the Balkan area by occupying Bessarabia, and the rest of the region faces a precarious food situation this winter.

Late frosts, torrential rains and floods reduced this year's yield of wheat and corn in Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Old Rumania by an estimated 35 per cent. Only in Bessarabia are flourishing crops reported.

Fruit crops also were badly damaged by hail. Prevailing crop conditions are expected to result in a serious food situation to the Balkans, especially if exports to Germany must be continued on the old level. Most of the Balkan countries now are using only dark bread.

Hitler Inspects Maginot Line

Berlin, June 30 (AP).—Adolf Hitler made a personal inspection today of the Maginot Line—$500,000,000 system of fortifications which failed to save France.

The German high command said the Nazi chancellor examined "various heavily armed works of the Maginot Line which were incapable of resistance by new German weapons in the shortest time."

Hitler visited forts in the region of Mulhouse and Upper Alsace, across the Rhine from Germany, in German-occupied French territory.

Allies Supply Near East Through Iraq Railroads

Basra, Junction Of British Transportation Plan

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, June 30.—The British have completed a network of railroads through Iraq, linking the remaining lines of the old Berlin-to-Baghdad railroad, so that they can facilitate the transport of food and military supplies to all Allied bases in the Near East, according to information received here today by an official at the Iraki pavilion at the World's Fair.

Foreseeing the possible stoppage of supplies through the Mediterranean to the Near East, the British rushed completion of the railroad, the official said.

The new railway has been in operation for the last two weeks, the official said, the main junction being at Basra, on the Persian Gulf. Cargoes from India and other parts of the Far East are unloaded at Basra, placed on freight cars and shipped by rail to Baghdad where they may be taken by motor lorry across the desert to Damascus. The usual route, however, will be direct from Basra to Mosul, thence to Nissibin and south to Aleppo in Syria and Palestine. From Palestine, materials may be sent by rail along the coast to Egypt.

The new railroad in Iraq is mostly single gauge track and connects Kalat Shergat, along the line from Baghdad, with Mosul; and Nissibin, west of Mosul, with Ras Elain, leading to Aleppo.

Shifting Sands Prove Engineering Hazard

British engineers were forced to contend with shifting sands in the Kaiser Wilhelm II for a Berlin-to-which German engineers were unable to cope successfully 30 years ago. Laying of the tracks over several hundred miles of difficult terrain required months of arduous labor.

Ironically enough, the dream of Kaiser Wilhelm II for a Berlin to-Baghdad railroad which was started by Germany in 1889, has been completed by the British at a time when Great Britain and Germany are again at war. If these were times of peace, the Iraki official pointed out, a traveler could leave Baghdad by train and proceed directly by rail to Istanbul, then to Sofia, Bulgaria, where he could board a train for Berlin or Paris.

American ships, now forced to keep out of the Mediterranean, can sail around Africa up to the Persian gulf and drop anchor outside Basra. Egyptian importers and exporters, facing huge losses because American shipping is barred from the Mediterranean, have been seeking a new trade route to and from the United States. The Iraki official said it was likely that the new railway system will effect a considerable saving to Egyptian merchants. Egyptian imports and exports will probably be transported by rail all the way to Basra.

Oil From Persian Gulf Can Be Brought to Basra

Should the oil pipeline from Mosul to Haifa be damaged and fuel cut off from the British units stationed in the Near East, oil from the Iranian oil company, near the Persian gulf, will be brought to Basra and shipped by rail to wherever it may be needed. The completion of the rail road also places increased emphasis on troop movements in the Near East.

During the World War, the Turks used the uncompleted railroad to move troops toward the Bosporus and Mesopotamia. Now the British will be able to expedite the movement of troops and supplies through the Near East. The Turks were greatly hampered in their efforts against the British Expeditionary Forces in Mesopotamia during the World War because the railroad extended only as far as Nissibin, troops being forced to march the rest of the way to Baghdad.

The original railway to Iraq from Turkey before the World War was essentially a German enterprise and formed the keystone of German activities in the Near East, especially in the Ottoman Empire. It constituted, however, a menace to British interests as well as to French and Russian in Anatolia and Syria. After many disputes, the French, Germans and British agreed to make a settlement in 1914 but the war altered the situation.

After the World War, the near eastern railway fell into three parts. Turkish, Syrian and Iraki, but remained uncompleted until the British finished the task.

When the Allies went to war with Germany last September, Iraq severed diplomatic relations with the Reich and interned all the Germans resident in the country. Its army of 100,000 well-trained troops and small but efficient airforce were placed on a war-time footing to supplement British forces already stationed there. The British have built concrete machine gun and anti-aircraft emplacements every 100 yards along the pipeline from Mosul and also have established seaplane bases along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers and at the Persian Gulf.

Hitler Visits Battlefields Of World War

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, June 30.—On the occasion of the anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Versailles Friday, Reich Chancellor Adolf Hitler visited the "old German city of Strassburg." The Fuehrer is making a tour of France's western battlefields.

En route to Strassburg from Kehl yesterday the commander of the German army which broke through the Maginot Line, General of Artillery Dollman, welcomed Hitler on the Alsatian bank of the Rhine.

Hitler made a sightseeing trip through the city, spent quite a while in the Strassburg cathedral, then journeyed to the battlefields in the Vosges.

Boom Times Come To Nova Scotian Fleet

Canada Prepares Defenses For Expected German Attack

Officials Look for Nazi Fleet On This Side of Atlantic in Effort To Cut Off Britain's Richest Supply

By the Associated Press

Ottawa, June 30.—France's surrender to the Germans brings Europe's war much closer to Canada, the giant who lives across the Great Lakes from Uncle Sam.

Any threat to this British dominion is indirectly a threat to its southern neighbor, but this one is more than that, because it is a threat to the St. Lawrence River, gateway to the industrial hearts as well as the breadbaskets of both Canada and the United States.

Canadian officials expect that one of Hitler's next moves, in his effort to drive Britain to her knees, will be to send ships and submarines into this side of the Atlantic to cut off the convoys and blockade the British Isles.

Every precaution has been taken against this possibility. Newfoundland and Iceland, strategic points on transatlantic routes, have been occupied by Canadian soldiers. Canadian ships patrol the waters in this neighborhood. Canadian planes patrol the skies, alert for aircraft and submarines. Canadian guns guard every square inch of water for miles around Halifax harbor. And battleships of the British navy are constantly snooping around.

As a granary, Canada makes Europe's Ukraine—which Hitler considers a treasure house—look like a one-horse farm. In 1938-39, the Dominion exported 165,000,000 bushels of wheat, twice as much as all the lands along the Lower Danube and almost five times as much as Russia. The most that Russia and the Danubian countries together ever were able to produce beyond their own needs was 203,000,000 bushels; Canada's top was 406,000,000 bushels.

Bacn and ham and cheese, foods on which England relies, are sent from here by the millions of pounds. Oats, barley, potatoes, tobacco, eggs, poultry and fruit go out in smaller amounts. The fish exports are famous.

In the raw materials of war, Canada is also well stocked. It is the world's largest producer of nickel, which makes steel tough. It is third in the production of copper and zinc and fourth in lead, the three other most important ingredients of munitions.

Its oil reserves have been growing larger with the years. It has more asbestos (important in machine warfare) than any other part of the world.

In a long war, gold is important. Canada has lots of gold.

Electric power is abundant in the rocky woodlands of this dominion. Power means phosphates and nitrates, which mean high explosives.

In sort, Canada is the richest territorial prize on the face of the globe today, except for the United States. It is the biggest chunk of the British Empire (27 per cent).

British Forbid Export of Jewelry

Brazil Expects A Nazi Trade Blitzkrieg

Americans There Fear Germans Will Out-Barter the U. S.

Copyright by New York Times

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, June 30.—The commercial blitzkrieg of propaganda that will strike Latin-America as soon as peace is signed is no laughing matter, according to American interests in Brazil.

Whether or not German trade agents can make good their boast of deliveries in October and November, a large American importer said today, Germany will need no great efforts to dislodge American trade here. He attributes this to the American exporters' demand for cash in New York and says Americans take their export trade too lightly.

"Americans build up profitable markets abroad and then throw them overboard as soon as the domestic market is good," he declared.

The argument is advanced by some that American exporters fear that their drafts would not be paid for lack of available foreign exchange in Brazil. It is suggested that these may be a repetition of the experience no few years ago, when $30,000,000 was blocked, awaiting exchange. Bank of Brazil officials declare, however, that they do not expect such a repetition.

To guard against repetition of such a situation business men in Brazil suggest an exchange agreement between the Export-Import Bank and the Bank of Brazil to insure exchange to cover all American exports to Brazil. They also urge measures to finance exports from the United States by helping American exporters to grant long-term credit in competition with Europe.

Lady Newspaper Readers Find They Miss the Ads

New York, June 30.

IN ALL the pother over our new afternoon newspaper, PM, which carries no advertisements, Colin McNabb Hall, caddy for Miss Hughes, remarked today, the reaction of many of the town's ladies has been especially interesting, though quite expected.

They take the absence of big department store ads, with the pretty cuts and the descriptions of the frockies or undies, as a personal affront. PM, devotes several pages to store sales and prices, but the girls don't get any bell out of a simple line like "Berman's Bazaar is selling burlay nighties, formerly priced at $118, at $117.95."

They want to see the nighties, and read of their gentle caress on the nocturnal skin! When the little woman wrestles for the first section of the Sunday paper, it isn't because she aches to read of the latest European burglary, but to study the enormous ads.

In this respect, the new paper is a flop among the frails. In all respects its birth stirred up tremendous clouds of dust, especially among the professionals. It peddles for a nickel, it is tabloid in size and about the shape of one of the women's magazines. It suffered something awful from over-ballyhoo before its birth, and whooped over its enormous staff of 151 picked journalistic geniuses (all for 32 small pages) and nothing on earth could be as superb as most of us expected it to be.

There are some high-class ladies on the staff. Elizabeth Hawes, the designer, is in charge of the women's departments; Margaret Bourke White tops the photographic staff, and little pal Cecelia Ager is the movie critic. But many feminine buyers think it is "another nickel magazine" and not a newspaper at all. And if Publisher Ingersoll and his herd of blooded journalistic stock don't ever run any nice big store ads with pretty pictures and ecstatic blurbs, the girls are going to walk out on them and buy those quaint old big newspapers anyway.

SPOUSE ABOUT TOWN—The prettiest girl shows at the fair this summer are not in the fun zone, but in the Fashion Building, and they don't cost a penny, and you can tell pop, too. You can't beat these free exhibitions for an hour of young feminine beauty. The rayon people have 40 minutes of fashion show climaxed by some inspired guy draping gowns on girls quicker than you can drop a thimble, and then, right across the hall, the silk crowd puts on the cutest ten minutes you ever saw. Our chum Gerry Morris staged it. The curtain parts to show the shopgirl's dream of a Park Avenue penthouse boudoir, with a beauteous brunette doll in the pink silk bed. Her big mamma comes in, the girl languidly pops out in her nightie (silk) and one by one puts on the various things (all silk). The grace with which she puts on her stockings is astounding. Finally, complete with dress, hat and handbag, she goes out to dazzle the town.

From my post in the front row (I hung on to it for a half hour) I noted she was offered stockings in what a girl told me were pidgeon blue, seafoam green, and crimson, but the cutie was smart and chose a flesh tone to match her tan.

Classic or Sentimental—Two Moods for Night

Either theme, the classic (left) or the sentimental (below), is important for after-dark diversion. Selma Meyers, a Washington girl, posed in both gowns, either one a decorative addition to summer dining and dancing. Possibly Selma's statuesque proportions incline her a trifle toward the classic lines.

Shimmering white rayon satin fashions the simple yet timeless gown above. Skirt and molded bra top are fluidly pleated to a smooth waistband, creating a silhouette of both poise and movement. At right is a green and white sprig printed organza with green taffeta corselette.

Learn to Dance The 'Lindy Hop'

WHEN you haven't learned a step in ages you can feel so bewildered with a strange crowd doing new dances! Being an onlooker is no fun—at home or on vacation.

Don't get the idea, though, that you can't catch up quickly. There's the Lindy Hop, for instance, a gay young dance if there every was one—and stacks of fun. By following easy diagrams, practicing a little, you'll soon be "Lindy-Hopping" with the best of them.

Try the Lindy Left Turn, first practicing alone. Then, with a partner start in the open position and on Count 1—lift left knee and take short step back on ball of foot. 2—Lift right knee step in place. 3—Step forward on left foot, knee straight, turning right to face partner in closed position. 4—Bend left knee. 5—Lift right knee, take short step back. 6—Close with left foot. 7—Step back on right foot, knee straight. 8—Bend right knee.

Dance the Lindy Hop to lively fox-trot music, counting four beats to a measure instead of two as in the fox-trot. And, instead of swinging the leg from the hip as in the fox-trot, in the Lindy Hop you lift the knees and take short steps on the balls of the feet.

And why not spruce up your whole repertoire of dances, learn new waltz as well as new Conga steps . . . make your crowd sit up and take notice?

You can easily if you practice with the instructions and diagrams in our 40-page booklet, Social Dancing Self-taught. Shows how to do a ravishing tango, a wicked rumba, an up-to-the-minute Conga, a romantic waltz and Westchester, a gay shag, fox-trot and Lindy Hop. Has basic steps, variations. Gives pointers on posture; leading, following.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, Social Dancing Self-taught, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Lily Pon's Dessert Recipe Aids French Food Relief

FRENCH cooking to many persons means something elaborate, expensive and very intricate in preparation. But this is not true of the food eaten daily in the French homes, but rather of the dishes concocted by chefs.

America is giving in many ways to French relief and for refugees from other nations. One way in which a number of widely known people are aiding the cause is the contribution of their favorite French recipes to a leaflet now being sold for a dime. The dimes are sent by the French Relief Food Committee to provide milk for the unfortunate children in Europe.

Among the contributors are Mme. Lily Pons, who is on the relief's board of directors. There is special significance attached to her creme brulee recipe. This dessert was served at her request at a surprise luncheon for Andre Kostelanetz. Her Connecticut neighbor, Herman Smith, who prepared the luncheon, did not know when Lily Pons asked him to be sure to include the delectable creme in the menu, that the event was to announce the secret marriage of Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz.

Few foods deserve to be called divine, but one spoonful of this French creme will tell you it is a sophisticated dessert, and no ordinary one. I sent my dime to join many others in this cause and here is the recipe that Clementine Paddleford, Food Markets Editor, New York Tribune, sent me for making it. I tried the recipe immediately and recommend it to you heartily if you want a really de luxe dessert. The recipe follows:

Creme Brulee

Place ½ cup powdered sugar in a heavy pan and melt over low heat. Let the sirup become a rich brown. Add to the sirup, 4 cups milk, 1 tablespoon minced preserved lemon rind and ⅛ teaspon salt, stirring constantly until smooth. Remove from heat. Stir 3 unbeaten eggs and ¾ cup granulated sugar until thoroughly blended and sugar is dissolved. Pour the hot milk mixture slowly over the eggs, beating vigorously. Cook over hot water until mixture coats a spoon. Strain over 3 tablespoons gelatin that has been dissolved in ½ cup cold water. Stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to stiffen then beat until fluff. Pour into a mold of sherbet glasses and chill until then beat until fluffy. Pour into a mold or sherbet blasses and chill until chopped pistachio nuts over top. Serves six.

Trim Curves And Laugh Off Summer Heat

Fat Acts as Blanket Hindering Escape Of Excess Warmth

By Ida Jean Kain

WE have it on the best authority that women are 5 degrees cooler than men and that the way for both to keep comfortable is for the men to wear fewer clothes in summer and for the women to wear a few more in winter. Nothing was said about women wearing fewer clothes at any season!

But, without any statistics on the subject, we contend that there may be another good explanation for this difference in temperature—and that is the fact that women generally appear to be slimmer! There is no question whatever but that fat acts as a blanket in hindering the escape of excess heat from the body. That is the reason fat folks feel the hot weather more than anyone else.

To forestall any objections that there are fat people who are always cold in the winter, we'll give the reason for that: Overfatness leads to flabbiness of the musculature and to poor circulation so that the fat person feels both the cold and the heat.

Start Slimming Now

It is a little late now to start the summer slim, but this is the best time in the world to start a slimming program. For one thing, the hot weather makes a dent in your appetite—you don't crave the rich, heavy foods that keep your weight up! In fact, you may be under the impression that you have to "force" yourself to eat . . . Well, don't force yourself to eat too many high-calorie foods.

Expressed in terms of calories, food is fuel and the more calories the food contains, the more fuel it contributes. With the thermometer hovering around 98 degrees in the shade, you don't need much fuel to keep your body temperature up to 98.6. Leaving out of the menu some of the high-calorie foods will not only help you to keep cool, but also to lose weight. There's nothing wrong with that combination!

Hot Tea Cooling

The old Chinese custom of drinking a cup of hot tea to cool off was not a bad idea—tea without sugar or cream contains no calories, and, although the temporary effect is to make you feel warmer, the actual result is an increase in the efficiency of your cooling system. Iced coffee, with large quantities of cream and sugar, is considerably more "heating" than hot tea with lemon.

Eating any kind of food—fat, protein or carbohydrate—is followed by an increase in the heat production of the body and the extra heat liberated makes us warmer. This is particularly true, however, of protein.

For menus that are low in calories and high in vitamins, you can't do better than take advantage of the fresh berries, melons and green vegetables that nature has provided. If, in addition, you will cut down on the mayonnaise, cream and desserts, you will find it amazingly easy to take off 1 to 2 pounds per week without feeling hungary.

Avoid Buying 'Dogs' to Hang In Your Closet

How many dogs do you have in your wardrobe? "Dog," a term used in the clothing trade, means a costume that somehow just isn't right. It doesn't hang right, or the color makes your skin look sick, or it highlights the wrong part of you, or you plain don't like it. Usually you wear a dog about twice, then you hang it in your closet and feel guilty every time you see it.

"Maybe if I'd buy a flower for it," you say—but it's no use. You might as well give the thing away. You'll never be happy in it.

It takes a lot of shopping experience to avoid buying dogs, and experience, somebody must have told you, comes high.

Not quite so high, however, in summer. Summer gives you your best chance to find out, without going broke, how you and fashion fit each other.

Even while you experiment, keep these two fundamental rules in mind: Dress your age, and dress your size. It decidedly doesn't make you look younger to wear "cute" clothes. Too many flowers and ruffles and little-girl tricks only serve to emphasize the fact that you're grown-up now. On size, avoid skimpy clothes. They look cheap, as if the dressmaker didn't have quite enough material to do a good job. Buy bathing suits and shorts that are long enough to cover any bulges. Buy dresses wide enough across the shoulder blades. Buy sweaters—with care. If they're tight, you'll look overstuffed. Maybe a shirt and jacket would be better for you than a sweater anyway.

Thimble Buttons

Helen Gilbert isn't so partial to sewing but she does use sewing implements to decorate her sports clothes. On her canary yellow blouse, she accents the blouse with buttons fashioned like little glass thimbles.

Wife Enjoys Wage-Earning to Help Beloved Husband Get Ahead, but Wonders if Their Infant Son, The Apple of Their Eye, Is Being Penalized

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 20 years old and, in spite of my age (even, I think, because of it), I have been very happily married for 2½ years. My husband is a fine, upright, ambitious young man, and I love and admire him as much as is humanly possible. He is now 24. We have a son, ten months old, who is the apple of our eye and I feel that our first duty is to him.

My husband has a good position for one of his age and experience, and it affords him unlimited opportunities for advancement, if he can meet the educational requirements. Due to financial difficulties, he left school to work before going farther than the ninth grade. But he immediately continued in night school. He was forced to lose time, for various discouraging reasons, but he graduates this June.

Now, he wants to complete his education at college. And, at the present time, we cannot afford this unless I find work. I have a temporary job in a doctor's office, and as I have always had a burning desire to be a nurse, I absolutely enjoy working. But my husband feels that the woman's place is in the home.

Now, here is our problem: Would I be neglecting the baby, or mentally retarding his development, if I worked for a year or two in order to give us a good start? We think more of our son than of anything else. My mother would care for him, but I feel that he needs me. What should we do?

BEE.

Sense of Security Does Most for Baby

DEAR BEE: I believe that a baby's happiness and healthy, totalgrowth are not so dependent upon who gives him physical care as upon (1) the sunny emotional atmosphere of the environment in which he lives and moves and has his being; (2) on his sure knowledge that he is loved, and (3) upon joyous association, some part of every day (if possible) with his parents.

I believe that infants instinctively sense whether they are being nurtured in an atmosphere charged with conflict, tension, anxiety, etc., or with the more stimulating currents of happiness, serenity, affectionate fellowship, etc.—and that their positive development derives as directly from harmonious environmental undertones and overtones as a plant's development derives from favorable climatic conditions.

Thus, we come to my conclusion, apropos of your dilemma, that your infant son will be most benefited by whatever course of action brings to the marital relationship the most substantial amount of productive (or dynamic) peace, order and security. According to this view, it would be very shortsighted to minister to your baby's physical needs, 24 hours a day, at the expense of crippling your husband's professional progress—if his advancement is, indeed, contingent upon special education which he can only obtain with your help, and if he would accept such aid in an appreciative, cooperative spirit.

However, there is the counterpossibility, hinted in your letter, that he doesn't want you to be a wageearner; that your continued efforts in that direction might be more a source of distress than of encouragement to him. For you say, "my husband feels that the woman's place is in the home." And this suggests that you might be running contrary to his wishes in hanging on to your job.

As you describe him, he appears to be an ambitious, industrious, manifestly capable and professionally indomitable man, who knows what he wants and where he is going, and who will eventually achieve his goal, regardless of delay and obstructions. That kind of man appreciates a wife who complements his nature by her thorough femininity, rather than one who seeks, in pseudo-masculinity, to supplement his campaigns of aggression upon the citadel of worldly success.

And in addition to what your husband's basic preferences may be, there is your own statement, that you "feel (the baby) needs me." As a rule the mother who feels that way has a deep-seated emotional need to be with her baby. Her need (or yearning) to care for her child is greater than the child's actual physical need of her constant solicitous supervision. So it seems that you might not only be flaunting your husband's preference, but betraying your own nature as well, in going to office when you could as well (or better) be at home.

On the basis of your somewhat contradictory remarks, I feel safe in saying that you are free to choose the course of action which (a) may most help your husband; or (b) most please him. Because, in so doing, you will be indirectly making the greatest contribution to the baby's welfare. The ideal family relationship is that in which the husband and wife come first with each other; and who, with one mind and one heart, turn their attention secondly to their children.

Today's Health Talk

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Healthiest Feet of All Are Those Of the Barefoot Boy, Surveys Show

The feet, like every other part of the body, should be given care at all times, but it seems in the spring and early summer they need more care than usual. This year abnormal temperatures throughout nearly all sections of the country and hard rains cause many feet to ache, especially when rubbers, overshoes and heavy footwear are discarded.

In children the prevention of foot defects should be stressed, and it is the objective of the National Foot Health Council to point out the necessity and proper method of doing this. In school examinations in parge cities an average of 76 per cent of boys and girls of high school age were found foot defective, some with corns, others with ingrown nails, some with weak arches and many showing marked tendencies to the development of large joints, hammer toes and bunions. Corns and ingrown toenails are not serious in themselves, but they probably mean that proper footwear is not being used.

Correct Footwear Stressed

The healthiest of all feet are found in those who go barefooted. True, they have calluses, but these are not the same as corns. For children at this time of the year nothing could be healthier than to encourage them to go barefooted around the house, in the yard and on beaches. Any cuts or abrasions that they get should be treated antiseptically, but these are minor disadvantages compared to the advantage which is gained in the strengthening of the feet, improvement in arch support and functional efficiency.

Another objective of the council is industrial foot care through the advancement of programs directed to men and women whose employment keeps them on their feet. The program stresses, first, correct footwear and, second, proper foot care.

Not a Limited Luxury

Chiropodists and podiatrists are now quite scientifically trained and have a century of service behind them. The first chiropody office was opened in Boston in 1840. This year the National Association of Chiropodists will observe the centennial during its annual convention in Boston.

Foot care is not a luxury limited to a few; it can be enjoyed by persons in all walks of life and at all ages. Throughout this land there are foot clinics, many of them in first-class hospitals, where chiropodists and podiatrists are available to care for the foot problems of men, women and children regardless of their circumstances. Don't neglect your feet. Don't wait until they have become a major problem. Too often minor defects go untreated and disregarded until they become of crippling proportions.

It is not unusual for foot troubles to react on the entire system. Many women who are fatigued by a shopping trip get that way from faulty foot posture.

Oatmeal Cleanser

Hollywood, Calif. — The latest grandmother's beauty secret to be revived, and by glamorous Ann Sheridan, is a pore-cleansing mask made of oatmeal, shavings of a soap with an oil base, and orris root for perfume. To four cups of the meal Ann adds a half cake of the soap and one spoonful of the perfume. The mixture moistened with warm water makes a quick-drying mask that Ann finds wonderful for cleansing, closing the pores and whitening the skin.

Paints, Too, Must Follow Style Trend

New Violet Tones, Lemon, Pale Green, Now Popular

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor

THERE are all sorts of trends in fashions, but it wasn't until recently that we discovered there were fashion trends in paints.

Eleanor Morris

Our informant is Eleanor Morris, color expert who has just taken over the local job of consulting and "styling" for a widely known maker of paints. These are house and interior paints with color personalities which run in cycles just as do fashion colors.

Summer Colors Revived

According to Miss Morris, this summer's colors are revived from the Mauve Decade when, almost a half century ago, purples and lavenders flourished. This year the smart new violet tones are given pungent contrast by use of lemon or lettuce green. Green, however, is one color on the decline in American taste after having held first place in popularity since Colonial times, when everything was either dove gray, ivory or green. Since then every house in America has had at least one floor, or anyway one room, done in apple green—replaced now by crisp yellows, mauves and blues.

Fresh from college and art school in New York, Miss Morris is surprised to find so much activity in repainting vacation homes in and around Washington. Householders aren't nearly as punctilious about giving their summer cottages coats of paints in the spring as they are right now as they seem to prefer spending their vacations puttering around with mixing colors, primer paints and brushes. Oddly enough, men are as enthusiastic about smartly styled decorative colors as the woman of the house. Miss Morris says it is not unusual to find Dad forsaking sailboat or golf during July for a round of paint restyling. (One reason may be the quick one-hour drying process the smarter enamels now possess.)

Gives Definition of Restyling

Questioned as to what "restyling" in paints really means, Miss Morris obliged with this definition: "To restyle is to paint in such a way as to bring out good architectural design or camouflage poor designs to make small rooms appear big through use of light, airy colors; or to scale big rooms down through use of dark, subtle colors. Effect upon emotions is one result of color styling—somber browns and murky blues giving a sobering effect; pale pastels producing the effect of all sweetness and light."

Mrs. Harrison Williams, famed New York social leader, was cited by Miss Morris as having created the fad five years ago for all white rooms, while the Duchess of Windsor aroused interest in the French traditional colors, creams, taupes and mahogany tints. As for the Washington woman, the paint cycle has turned toward deep, rich winey tones for formal town houses, with gayer blue greens, yellows, coral and azure blue for the summer hideaways.

Business Women Lie Less, Psychologist Says

New York, N. Y.—"Women are more apt to tell the truth in business than men are," declares Dr. William Moulton Marston, psychologist famous for his invention of a lie detector in an article in the current Movie Mirror. He adds however, "In social situations, women are much more apt to lie than men are."

In the article titled "Should Women Tell Men the Truth," Dr. Marston analyzes the answers of several popular movie stars. He concludes that this question, which probably originated before the Sphinx was a debutante, is most easily answered by telling as much of the truth to each man as he is entitled to know—no more.

Month of Brides Ends With Rush to Altars

Record Seen as Capital Churches Report Crowded Schedules on Final Day; Three Top-Flight Weddings Listed

By Elizabeth Henney

DUE TO THE FRANTIC RUSH of Washington lassies to get under the wire as June brides this year, Capital churches did a capacity business all during the week-end. Taxis spilled rice every time their doors were opened and the little white grains crunched like gravel under the feet of every casual passenger. As a wind-up of what will probably prove to be the greatest bridal June on record, Saturday witnessed a crowded schedule in practically every church in town.

Three top-flight weddings of the day were those of Miss Carolyn Bliss Osgood to Richard Rick; of Miss Janet Callender, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. George R. Callender, of the Medical Corps, to Lieut. Jackson Franklin Morehead, also of the Medical Corps, and of Miss Frances Ann Dowden, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Dowden, to Thomas McCormick.

It will be a home in the teeming tropics that Mrs. Rick will preside over, for her husband's residence is Panama City, Panama. The former Miss Osgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whitney Osgood, of 225 Rosemary street, Chevy Chase, Md, and Mr. Rick, son of Mrs. Edward Rick and the late Mr. Rick, of Reading, Pa., were married in the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church on Saturday afternoon at 4:30. The Rev. William A. Keese officiated. Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, wife of the Chaplain of the House of Representatives, played the nuptial music, including "Ave Maria" and "Ich Liebe Dich."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in chantilly lace over ivory satin, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and a long fan train. Her full-length tulle veil fell from a Breton cap and she wore a double string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Bridesmaid Wears Yellow Marquisette

Miss Gretchen Kimmell, of Jacksonville, Fla., was maid of honor. She wore yellow marquisette, the skirt formed of tiers of ruffles to the waist, and fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. Her large matching horsehair and taffeta hat was trimmed with long streamers and she carried yellow roses and delphinium in a yellow basket hat.

Edward Rick, of Lancaster, Pa., was the best man. Ushers were Harry Whitney Osgood jr., of Portland, Me.; William Martin jr., Philadelphia; James Redcay, Montclair, N. J., and Donald Cramer, Reading, Pa.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. When the couple left on their wedding journey the bride was wearing eggshell crepe with a Roman striped girdle and trimming, large brown hat and matching accessories. They will sail for Panama on August 2.

Many Out-of-Town Guests Attend

The bride was graduated from William and Mary College and the Temple Secretarial School of Washington and is a member of Gamma Pi sorority. Mr. Rick was graduated from the Engineering School of Lehigh University and is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rick jr., of Lancaster, Pa.; Miss Helen Rick, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. James Rick, jr., and Mrs. C. R. Schlechter, aunts of the bridegroom, all of Reading, Pa.; Mrs. Edward W. Stearns, John B. Stearns, Miss Barbara Rich, Miss Peggy Anthony and Miss Margaret Dunaway, all of South Orange, N. J.

Wade H. Elllises Give Party At Virginia Estate

Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis entertained at luncheon yesterday at Rippon Lodge, their estate in nearby Virginia.

Among the guests were Justice and Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Jones, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie and Mrs. P. Lee Phillips.

Blakes to Live In McLean, Va. After Jaunt

Miss Nellie King Was Married, June 8, To Arlington Man

Mr. and Mrs. Barrie William Blake, who were married June 8, will live in McLean, Va., after a motor trip through the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee and a visit to Florida.

The bride, the former Miss Nellie King, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard John King of Washington, and Mr. Blake is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Blake of Arlington, Va. The couple was married in the Great Choir of the National Cathedral, the Rev. Henry J. Miller of Arlington officiating.

Mr. King gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown of white embroidered organdie was made with a square neck and puffed sleeves and was trimmed with lace. Her veil of white illusion was fastened to a tiara of waxen orange blossoms and she carried an arm bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Miss Mary Irene King, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were three other sisters, the Misses Doris, Vivian and Mildred King, and Miss Lois Blake, Mr. Blake's sister. They wore organdy frocks in a peach pink shade with large pink hats and carried pink roses and yellow snapdragons. Peggy King, young niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing blue organdy trimmed with ribbons and carrying pink roses.

Robert Blake was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Charles Ernest Moorefield, Robert Emory Kirwan, Douglas A. Smith and Lieut. Walden A. Sundell.

Service Unit Maps Organization Plan

Now that the American Women's Voluntary Services, Inc., has opened permanent headquarters on the second floor of a pleasant old house at 1805 Connecticut avenue, Mrs. Gale McLean, who is in charge of the Washington unit, is busy with organization plans.

Organization was formed primarily to effect cooperation and solidarity of women throughout the nation; to stimulate enrollment in all existing societies already working for local and national aid and to create a desire in all women to give efficient service to their country.

Women are urged to enroll, even an hour a week, to sew, to knit, to cook, to drive a car or type a letter. Enrollment costs nothing. "Volunteer and help keep America American," is the slogan of the organization, which now has 16 units in various parts of this country.

Weatherman Gives Jane Eustis Gift Of Perfect Day for Wedding Ceremony

THE WEATHER MAN is trying his best to be kind to Washington this summer. Perhaps he thinks that the war-distressed diplomats remaining at their posts should at least have a comforting breeze while they work, or perhaps it is his wedding present to the brides of late June.

At any rate lovely Jane Eustis had a perfect summer day for her wedding at Old St. John's Church, to George Y. Wheeler, and for the reception which followed in the garden of the 1925 F Street Club. Everything about the wedding seemed quite perfect, especially the way in which the bride and bridegroom said their responses. They simply turned faicng one another and said their vows, not to the officiating clergymen, but directly to each other. It was most impressive and quite touching.

At the reception, after she had done her duty in the receiving line, Jane danced happily with her father while the bridegroom was having his picture taken with his mother. Two prettier mothers-in-law than Mrs. del Mar and Mrs. Eustis couldn't be imagined, and they came in for a large share of attention at the reception.

THE BUFFET TABLE was set in the garden and it was there, surounded by her friends, that the bride cut the wedding cake. Mrs. Ralph Worthington was greatly interested in the proceedings, having had two brides in her own family not so long ago. One of them, her daughter Ethel, now Mrs. William Coad, was with her and looked so pretty with a fluffy white bow on her dark straw hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Clarke were there, she wearing a gay summer print and sun glasses, and saying that she plans to go North in August to visit her mother, Mrs. Hiram Bingham.

Mrs. Randall Hagner, whose son was an usher at the wedding, was accompanied by her sub-deb daughter Bella, hatless and in a becoming Alice blue frock. Nearby was Mrs. Hagner's other daughter, Mrs. "Mike" McConihe, in conversation with Mrs. Eugene Carusi and Billy Mitchell.

OTHER GUESTS were Stellita Stapleton in a cool green and white print, she is keeping the family home on Mass. Ave. open for the summer in order to continue her Red Cross work, ever-popular Mrs. John R. Williams, Mrs. Joseph Flack in a gray and yellow print becoming to her Titian hair, Patricia Prochnik in crisp white dotted Swiss worn over pale blue, Mr. and Mrs. John Reyburn 2nd, Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, Mrs. McCeney Werlich and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Richardson of New Orleans.

The last glimpse I had of the party was of one of the ushers, in resplendent morning coat and white spats, lying on his back under the car which was to take the bride and groom away. He was tying tin cans (fetched by the club's Miss Mary Cummings, at his earnest request) underneath the car.

Mrs. Frederick. H. Bugher and her son Frederick will spend the summer at their home in Hot Springs.

James Parks will go to Long Island to spend the Fourth with Peggy Wagner and her family.

JOHN WALKER 3RD and Lady Margaret Walker are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, their first child. Mr. Walker is the head of the National Gallery and his wife is the former Lady Margaret Drummond.

John Foster, of the British Embassy, is a most hospitable man. The other night he asked a number of friends to a buffet supper and to listen to the final balloting of the Republican Convention, at his house on Tracy place.

Guests gathered intently by the radio and declared that they would not go home until a candidate had been selected. English Pamela Whatley, to whom all this was new and fascinating, inquired how long a convention like this could go on. When someone replied that a nominating convention had once balloted for three weeks our host turned a little pale and said bravely, "Well, as hospitable as I am—." But a few minutes later the nomination of Willkie saved the situation for him.

Prochniks Mark 30th Anniversary Of Their Wedding

A welcome cable from their eldest daughter in Cairo, Egypt, brightened greatly the thirtieth anniversary yesterday of the former Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik.

Observing the day quietly the former Minister and his wife spent yesterday on a trip to the country. Most of their children are out of town at the moment, but there will probably be a complete gathering of the clan next December in Boston, when Mme. Prochnik's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. James, celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Frances LeCompte Spalding, whose husband is attached to the American Legation in Cairo, cabled her family that she and her four children will fly from Cairo to Bagdad soon, and will sail from the latter port for the United States on an American liner. Mrs. Spalding, the former Miss Loranda Prochnik, expects to spend the summer at Squam Lake, N. H. Her children, who will accompany her, are Elizabeth, Frances, jr., and the twins, Edgar Sheldon and Peter Frederick Spalding.

Miss Brown Betrothed

Mrs. Willa Murle Brown announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Katherine Louise Brown, to Roger E. Needham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Needham, of Princeton, Mass. The wedding will take place on August 31.

Miss Brown is a graduate of Western High School, Washington School for Secretaries and Columbia Technical Institute. She also attended George Washington University and the Dowd's school for fashion modeling in New York City.

Mr. Needham attended Norwich University and the United States Naval Academy. He transferred from the Academy to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, graduating there in 1936. He has been employed as junior engineer with the Potomac Electric Power Co. since coming to Washington three years ago.

Mrs. C. Maxwell Scrimgeour entertained at a tea in honor of her sister yesterday.

Luray Girl Betrothed

Mrs. Richard Berry of Luray, Va., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jean Evelyn Berry to Clinton Waddell Gary, of Newport News, Va.

Couple on Honeymoon, To Make Home Here At the Westchester

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Amos Sweeney, who are now on their honeymoon to Niagara Falls, Boston and New York City, will make their home at the Westchester in Washington.

The former Miss Barbara Crosser, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert Crosser, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mr. Sweeney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Sweeney, of Waterville, Ohio, were married Saturday at the home of the bride's parents in Cleveland. The Rev. Adelbert Higley, of Calvary Baptist Church, officiated at the 3 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace fashioned with a full shirred bodice, sweetheart neckline outlined with petals of lace, and sleeves puffed at the top and fitted tightly from above the elbow. Her veil was fingertip length and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Bride's Cousin Matron of Honor

Mrs. Herbert Olson, cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. She was gowned in salmon pink lace, her gown fashioned like that of the bride and she carried talisman roses. James Sweeney, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and there were no ushers. Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Not taking an active part in the wedding (which was attended only by the two immediate families) two of the most important witnesses of the ceremony were Mr. Sweeney's auburn-haired daughters, Isabelle, 8, and Nancy Jean, 4. They wore identical ankle-length bouffant dresses of nile green net.

Both Mothers Attractively Gowned

The mother of the bride was gowned in beige lace and wore a gardenia corsage and the bridegroom's mother wore flowered chiffon with a pale blue background and a corsage of red roses.

When the couple left for their wedding journey the bride was wearing a black-striped silk marquisette with white Irish lace collar and cuffs and a black-and-white silk jersey hat.

The bride was educated at the George Washington University. Her father has been a member of Congress since 1913. Mr. Sweeney attended Toledo University and George Washington University Law School.

Many Guests From Out of Town

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. William Duff, Miss Annabelle McLeod, Mrs. Homer Pittenger, Mrs. William Buell, Mrs. John O'Meyer, and Miss Margaret Paterson, of Washington; Mrs. David Littleton (great-aunt of the bride), of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Latin and Dr. and Mrs. William Baird, of Toledo, Ohio.

The bride is the younger sister of Mr. Sweeney's first wife (Justine Crosser Sweeney) whose children, Isabelle and Nancy Jean, have lived with the Crossers since Mrs. Justine Sweeney's death two years ago.

Gallaghers Visiting Seashore

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Gallagher and their young son, Bernard, Jr., left Saturday for Atlantic City, where they will spend the next few weeks.

They will return to their Wardman Park apartment about the middle of July. Mrs. Gallagher is the well-known writer, whose pen-name is Phyllis Moore Gallagher.

Notes of Society

Maj. N. A. Guimaraes, Minister of Transportation of Rio de Janiero, Brazil and Bernardo Bellingrodt of the same city, are at the Ambassador Hotel in New York.

Harllee Branch, vice chairman of the Civil Aeronautics authority, and Mrs. Branch, who make their home at the Wardman Park Hotel, left the latter part of last week for Pawley's Island, S. C., where Mrs. Branch will spend the summer. Mr. Branch is expected back in town shortly, and will make visits to the island during the summer.

Mrs. William E. Borah, widow of the Senator, has arrived at the Biltmore Hotel in New York, with her sister, Mrs. Ben Bush, of Moscow, Idaho, who has been visiting her in Washington.

Arthur Bradley Campbell is at the Ambassador Hotel in New York, from Newport, R. I., where he is passing the season, having leased Chetwode the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor. He is accompanied by his nieces, the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, of Washington, who are also spending the summer at Newport. The Misses Meuser will be presented to Society there later this season.

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward and her niece, Miss Florence Ward Cauthen, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips at Phillips Hall, Butler, Pa. Mrs. Ward spent last week at Barclay Hotel in Philadelphia where she attended the Republican Convention.

Mrs. Henry McHarg, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Bramley, of Washington, are at the Vanderbilt Hotel in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Capehart are at the Hotel Biltmore in New York, from Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Nix, who divide their time between their home in San Antonio, Tex., and Washington, are here for a visit and are staying at Wardman Park Hotel.

Surprise Betrothal Shower Honors Nina Montgomery

A surprise shower luncheon was given Thursday at the Talley-Ho in honor of Miss Nina Montgomery whose marriage to Henry O. Fisher took place on Saturay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester S. Williams, in Chevy Chase, Md.

Those who attended the luncheon were Mrs. Chester S. Williams, Mrs. Allan Wilson, Mrs. Gertrude Broderick, Mrs. Mildred Allen, Miss Maryan Monfort, of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Miss Beatrice Comeau, from Tokyo, Japan.

Culpeper Horse Show Thursday and Friday Will Draw Big Crowd; Entry List Is Record

THE CULPEPER HORSE SHOW and Racing Association will top all sporting events in Virginia this week, when they hold their two-day show Thursday and Friday. Always held at this season the Culpeper Horse Show draws the largest crowd of almost any in the country. Throngs thoroughly enjoy the 14 usual horse show classes, three flat races and steeplechase that are called off each day. The show begins at 9:15 each morning and the races are called at 3 each afternoon. They have a larger entry list this year than ever before and Culpeper promises to put on two of the best days of sport ever seen.

Among those exhibiting will be Mrs. "Jock" Whitney, who won the championship of the show last year with her Spring Hope, and whose picture is on the program for this year's show. If Mrs. Whitney is not here to show her good string, they will be ridden by Raymond Haymaker and other competent riders. Other horses of Mrs. Whitney entered include The Bear, who won the championship one year at Culpeper; Spring Hope, Faithful Heart, Bon Diable, Bon Nuit, Airy Spirite, and a new one this season, Strong Tea.

MRS. DOROTHY LEE, of Middleburg, will show Speed Demon, Clover Seed, Strong Man, and Spanish Spear. Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh will show her wonder pony, Victorian III. Ernest Redmon is taking over some good ones from his noted stable. Dr. Lewis N. Allen will show Clifton's Lad. Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggen Perry are showing, and others include Mrs. Cary Jackson, Mrs. Fay Ingalls, Edge Wood Farm, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Church II, Horace Moffett, North Fletcher, U. S. Randle and many more.

Society will turn out in full force at Culpeper over the Fourth, and there will be much entertaining for the many visitors —luncheons, cocktail parties, dinner parties and each night a large horse show dance will be given at the Pot and Kettle Hall, just outside of town, where there is swimming and all sorts of entertainment for guests.

OFFICERS OF THE Culpeper Horse Show and Racing Association are: T. Weedon Armstrong, manager show department; J. Douglas Swan, manager racing department, and John S. Thornton, secretary and treasurer. The committee includes such well known sportsmen as P. M. Browning, Mrs. Melville Church II, Manley W. Carter, Morris Clark, G. Elliott Doyle, Percy Drury, Oliver Durant, Joseph B. Fray, North Fletcher, Clyde B. Johnson, Arthur Miller, R. M. Menefee, W. W. Osborne, Charles B. Payne, U. S. Randle, W. A. Spilman, Miss Julia Shearer, Arthur D. Scott, M. B. Waugh, and Clinton W. Yowell.

The judges will be Thomas C. Assheton, Port Chester, N. Y.; John W. Morris, West Cornwall, Conn.; Jack Prestage, Watertown, Conn.; J. H. Guitar, Warrenton, Va., and Forrest Ward, Hollins, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Carhart and their two children, Miss Marion Carhart and Amory S. Carhart, jr., of Warrenton, left last week for South East Harbor, Me., where they will spend several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Doeller, and their son, William E. Doeller, jr. of Prospect Hill, left a few days ago for New York and from there they will go on to Narragansett Pier, where they have taken a cottage for the summer months.

Howard Fair, of Warrenton, who has been living in Philadelphia for two seasons, where he has been coaching most successfully and playing on the Bryn Mawr Polo Team, has been called to Canada for military service. Mr. Fair was in Warrenton last week, where he judged the pony show classes. He is from Canada, and came to Virginia about 15 years ago to make his home. He and Mrs. Fair have many close friends throughout Virginia.

Y. W. C. A.'s Kamp Kahlert Opens 16th Season at Sudley, Md.

Kamp Kahlert, Y. W. C. A. summer camp for teen-age girls last week opened its sixteenth season, which will continue until September 2, with Miss M. Florence Dunlap as director.

Kamp Kahlert, located 37 miles from Washington at Sudley, Md., on the West River, offers a program of swimming, sailing, rowing, canoeing, archery, baseball and tennis. The water activities are supervised by life-saving instructors. Miss Margaret Hamilton, physical education director at the Binghamton Y, is in charge of the waterfront.

Mary Sartwell and Henrietta Howard, seasoned campers, have charge of sailing, with supervision by Paul Kirchner. Eloise Kelehorn, of George Washington University, helps with water activities and archery.

Miss Louise Hatch, a "third termer" is the program director. She is the educational counselor at Kansas City High School. Optional interest groups include creative writing, dancing, music, clay modeling, sketching and marionettes. This year the camp has a new craft house which will add to the types of crafts carried on.

The craft house is the gift of the Chevy Chase, duPont and St. Albans chapters of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Catherine Hallock, University of Pittsburgh, and former counselor in Epworth Woods camp, will have charge of Camp Craft. Miss Myrtle Rush, Friends University, Wichita, Kans., is the counselor in arts and crafts. Assisting in swimming, arts and crafts will be Katherine Grunert.

Miss Jane Wright, who has just graduated from Winthrop College, is in charge of dramatics and modern dancing; Miss Rachel McMaster, of Penn State Teachers College, supervises the music and Miss Betty Skipton is in charge of the business girls' activities.

There are special activities open to advanced campers, which include "How to Live Comfortably, Happily and Safely Out-doors," canoe trips and out-door cooking. A preliminary counselor training course is offered to girls 16 years and over with camp experience. Coeducational projects with the Y. M. C. A. and Boy Scouts are open to campers in this group.

The "Bitsies," the 10-year-old group, are among the most popular of the summer campers. The capacity in this group is limited. Junior campers are from 12 to 18 years. There are seven junior cabins, each supervised by two counselors.

Business girls and women also have a part in the camp. They have their own living quarters, apart from the younger girls. Senior week-ends are a feature for the working girl in the summer. Senior Cabin and Chevy Chase Cottage, overlooking West River, accommodate the seniors.

Miss Brownye Middleton, science teacher at Alice Deal School, is in charge of the office and registrar. Miss Mabel Jobe, Wilson Teachers College, is again on the counselor staff. Ann Davis, of George Washington University, president of the Kamp Kahlert Kouncil, is a general counselor in sketching, art, crafts and waterfront.

Miss Martha Phillips, graduate of Georgia State College for Women and a teacher at Blythe, Ga., is dietitian. Diana Patch, Nancy Summers, Jerine Wann, Nyleve Palmer, Betty Edmonston and Alice Griffith will help in the kitchen and office.

Henrietta Pell, City Teachers College and University of Chicago, is a counselor.

There will be a special July 4 week-end at the camp. The girls will leave the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. and return on Sunday, July 7.

P. E. O Forms Evening Unit

The District Chapter of the P. E. O. Sisterhood, including 17 chapters, has been working for the Red Cross on Wednesdays from 9:30 to 12:30 at Linthicum Hal, and now is forming an evening unit. This will meet at the hall, 3116 O street northwest tonight and on subsequent Monday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30.

Miss S. Elizabeth Reynolds, is State president of the P. E. O. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Jacob is in charge of the Red Cross unit.

Fete for Finn War Orphans Set Tomorrow at Tulip Hill

Tulip Hill, famous Maryland country home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Flather, overlooking West River near Galesville, tomorrow will be the scene of a midsummer festival, to be held in the mood of the annual celebration in Finland of midsummer day, for the benefit of the American League for Finnish War Orphans.

From 3 p. m. until 7 p.m., the historic 200-year-old home will hold open house and display its beautiful gardens. Committees of Washington, Annapolis and Baltimore ladies have completed arrangements for the gathering. One or two committee members will be stationed in each room to escort guests and to explain the history and romance associated with each hall.

Procopes Will Be Guests of Honor

Minister of Finland Hjalmar J. Procope and Mme. Procope will be the guests of honor. With admission at $1, all proceeds will be turned over to the Finnish War Orphans' League, for the support in Finland, without any administrative expense deduction, of some of the 20,000 children orphaned during the recent war with Russia.

In the spirit of economy now necessarily practived in Finland to meet postwar reconstruction and rehabilitation requirements, the committees have spread word of the benefit festival in novel economic fashion. Each committeewoman has appointed herself as a publicity committee of one to broadcast by word of mouth the news of the festival. With the cooperation of one of the automobile clubs, reproductions of a map showing three routs to Tulip Hill have been distributed in an effort to make easy the pathfinding job.

The Mid-Summer Festival will be held under the joint auspices of the District of Columbia Committee of the League and the Annapolis and Baltimore committees. The Washington committee is being organized under the chairmanship of Mrs. Emil Hurja.

First Lady Among League's Patrons

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who adopted the first Finnish war orphan through the league, and Mme. Kyosti allio, wife of the President of Finland, are patronesses of the American League for Finnish War Orphans. The national officers are Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, chairman; Mrs. Emil Hurja, vice chairman; Mrs. George Pettengill, vice chairman; Mrs. William Prescott, treasurer; Mme. Erkki Mikkola, secretary; Miss V. Van Somoren, organizing secretary; Mrs. W. Warren Barbour, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith, Mme. Hjalmar J. Procope and Mme. Risto Solanko, committee members.

Tulip Hilf is only 30 miles from the Capitol in Washington, through the beautiful Maryland tobacco country. At the crossroads on the highway between Owensville and Galesville, guests should turn left, and the red brick gate to Tulip Hill is on the right approximately two-tenths of a mile from the crossroads. All friends of Finland will be heartily welcomed.

New Make-up Colors

SWEEPING up from under the Equator, the current South American wave brought forth a wide source of new make-up colors for summer. Quick to grasp an adaptable color trend, the cosmetic manufacturers dipped deeply into the color and style lore of all these neighboring countries and re?created these shades in lipstick, rouge, powder and fingernail polishes.

Blazing pinks, staccato red and burnt browns are duplicated nicely in an assortment of make-up shades. Even eau de cologne and perfumes have the verve of the Latin climate and temperament. "South American Red" rouge and lipstick has the same giddy brilliance and warmth of the native flowers. It harmonizes well with suntanned skins.

An exotic scene—reminiscent of many tropical flowers—comes in the new South American cologne dusting powder. Packaged as a set, this "Floral Fantasies" duet contains the matching fragrance of cologne and dusting powder. It comes in a pale blue box with pink-bow knots as a fastener.

Also showing the South American influences are one firm's offering of fingernail polishes. "Red Banana," a true red, was inspired by the multi-colored head shawls of Peruvian women. The brilliant, flaming, scarlet hausos that Chilean cowboys wear sweeping from their shoulder is found in "Fez Red" nail polish.

Lawn Furniture

Quite the most satisfactory lawn furniture, all things considered, is that made of Chinese peel because it's comfortable to sit on, light to move around and actually benefitted by rainy weather.

Mary Pickford Sees Gay Girl Replacing Glamour Type

Superlatives describing sex appeal change from year to year. During the last quarter century the mode of feminine charm has run the gamut of Sweetheart Mary Pickford, Vamp Theda Bara, Flapper Colleen Moore, "It" Clara Bow, Aloof Greta Garbo, Glamour Heddy Lamarr. Tomorrow the Gay Girl—personified by Myrna Loy—will supplant these types in the movies and in men's hearts.

This is the prediction of Mary Pickford, America's first sweetheart, who is returning to Hollywood soon to resume production of several new pictures.

"Men are getting tired of the Glamour Girl," Miss Pickford told an Associated Press reporter recently. "She looked beautiful, but that was all. Wonderful figure, exquisite clothes, exotic effect, but always surrounded by a fence, always a little somber, she dared not show a sense of humor lest she spoil the effect. She doesn't fit the picture any more.

The new Gay Girl will have both physical and mental appeal. Good to look at, but not necessarily a raving beauty. Natural hair, simple smart clothes, not much make-up, will characterize her.

Campbells Entertain Pen Women

Husbands Present For Party Marking 43d Anniversary

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, president of the District Branch of the League of American Pen Women, and Mr. Campbell yesterday afternoon entertained the members of the league and their husbands at the annual Founders' Day tea, celebrating the forty-third anniversary of the local organization. Mrs. Emma Trepel, the only living founder, was guest of honor.

She received with the hosts and carried an old fashioned bouquet of yellow roses and blue delphinium, carrying out the Pen Women's colors—gold and blue. She wore black lace. Mrs. Campbell wore a pink chiffon gown and an old-fashioned corsage of for-get-me-nots and sweetheart roses. With them was Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, newly elected national president, who wore flowered chiffon.

Past Presidents Are Hostesses

The past presidents were hostesses and alternated in the receiving line. They included Mrs. Aaron Newman, of Alexandria; Dr. Frances Moon Butts, of Chevy Chase; Mrs. Theodore Tiller, Mrs. William Walton Badgley, Miss Marguerite Merigold, Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler and Mrs. Helen Orr Watson. Miss Winifred Willard, the vice president, also acted as hostess.

The program included a talk by Mrs. Triepel on the early days of the league and an account by Mrs. Tiller of her experiences as the first president. Mrs. Evelyn Norcross Sherrill read her poem, "To Our Founders." The music consisted of two songs, the words of which were written by Ida Elaine James, a member of the branch, and the musical setting by Elmo Russ. They were sung by Miss Bernadette Crouch, accompanied by Miss Minna Niemann.

Mrs. Gasch concluded the program with a brief talk on future plans of the national organization.

Executive Board Serves Tea

Tea was served by members of the executive board in the garden. These were Mrs. Richard Disney, Miss Katharine Wootten, Miss J. Juene Carter, Dr. Mary Meek Atkeson Moore, Mrs. Leroy W. Tilton, Mrs. Angela Barr, Mrs. Rosamond Gaydash, Mrs. Annabel Lawyer, Miss Mattie Richards Tyler and Mrs. Philip Clancey.

Mrs. Mathilde Kolb Bartlett, a member of the branch who has won many prizes on her flower arrangements, was in charge of the decorations.

Orchids for Men

Hollywood, Calif.—Edward G. Robinson, inspired by his role in "Brother Orchid," is wearing a white baby orchid as a lapel boutonniere. This is the American revival of an English custom and after Mr. Robinson wore an orchid with his evening tails to a recent function, many of the male movie contingent began to follow suit. The small flower has been christened a "Brother Orchid" in honor of its reviver.

Miniatures Offer Really Fine Hobby

Require Little Space and Are Very Decorative

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

WE MIGHT as well get set for an era in miniature. For the recent vogue of miniature rooms has started all sorts of people to collecting minute objects . . . and a very satisfactory hobby it is, since it requires little space to accommodate treasures in miniature.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne's exquisite miniature rooms have been the immediate inspiration for the vogue, for over 1,500,000 people saw them on exhibit in San Francisco last summer, and it is expected that even more will see them in New York this summer.

Surprisingly enough, the fans include many men, one of whom, when asked what brought him back again and again to the Thorne rooms, replied: "It's the hardware that gets me." For every tiny hinge and latch and mechanical detail is as perfectly reproduced as the delicate crystal chandeliers, the needlepoint rugs, the paintings and the art objects. Another point that men, including Alfred P. Sloan, the General Motors tycoon, find fascinating, is the exact scale of every detail in these perfect architectural models.

Uncle Began It

Mrs. Thorne's rooms include replicas representing all the important design periods from the twelfth century down to the present time. These are as accurate historically as they are architecturally. Asked about what started her interest in miniature rooms, Mrs. Thorne will reply that it began when she was a child in Chicago and her uncle, Admiral Albert Niblack, of the U. S. Navy, brought her little treasures he picked up on his travels around the world. Later Mrs. Thorne continued her collection, then started making miniature rooms to house her tiny objects.

When she didn't have all the things she needed to furnish a room she made them. Now she employs many skilled cabinet makers, metalsmiths, weavers, artists and craftsmen of all sorts to make reproductions for her models. She finds accessories easier to collect than furniture, hence most of the furniture is made up especially, as are all the draperies, upholsteries, bedspreads and such things.

Altogether Mrs. Thorne has made an art of her doll houses, and has created a group of models that are unquestionably museum pieces.

Teatime Sticks

Here is a new tea dainty: Pat rich biscuit dough until it is 1-3 inch thick. Cut into finger lengths and wrap around spears of pineapple, wiped dry or thoroughly drained. Lightly spread with melted butter and prick the tops. Bake seven minutes—until well browned—in a moderate oven. Stack up hot and rush to the tea table. The sticks can be made ready for baking, stored in the refrigerator for an hour or so and then baked as needed.

New Budget Act Tax Laws Take Effect in Va.

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., June 30.—The $177,000,000 biennial budget act, a new safety code, an alcoholic beverage tax program originally estimated to yield in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 a year and a Diesel motor fuel tax bill will be among important enactments of the 1940 General Assembly becoming effective tomorrow.

About 75 per cent of the Assembly's 1940 output of the new laws went into operation June 22, but July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal period, was made the operative date of a small group.

Some will not become effective until January 1, including the Unemployment Compensation Commission "merit rating" bill, estimated to reduce employers' pay roll tax payments by perhaps a third, and extensive amendments to the 1938 outdoor advertising law.

Illegal, Says Attorney General

The budget act will become effective except for several amendments vetoed by Gov. Price. Attorney General A. P. Staples held the veToes illegal and the matter now rests with the Supreme Court of Appeals, which will not pass upon the issue before its September term in Staunton.

Among the contested amendments is one providing for a legislative director of the budget, an office which two General Assembly committees filled Saturday by electing J. H. Bradford, former budget director and now chief of the section of records and control.

The comptroller has served notice he would not recognize the new position, insofar as payment of the $6,000 a year salary is concerned, until the Supreme Court passes upon the vetoes.

Mine Safety Aided

The mine bill, continuing the division of mines under the Department of Labor, includes many new safety provisions, including requirements for rock dusting and prohibitions against "dobie" shots.

The Diesel motor fuel tax act makes fuel used in Diesel-propelled motor vehicles when used on the highways subject to the same 5 cents per gallon tax applicable to gasoline.

The alcoholic beverage tax bills—which will contribute to a price increase ranging up to as much as 38 per cent in some instances—impose a 1 per cent tax on the selling price of liquors and wines and boost the per bottle beer tax by half a cent on that selling for more than 10 cents.

The premarital test law, requiring serological tests as a prerequisite to the issuance of marriage licenses, will become effective August 1.

Marriage Bureau Sets Record in Winchester

Winchester, Va., June 30.—All records for marriage licenses issued here in one day were shattered Saturday when 142 couples obtained their papers at the city and county clerks' offices.

Both offices were congested and it was necessary for some to stand in line nearly an hour before they could make application. Many were from Pennsylvania.

It is expected there will be a letup a month hence when the Virginia law requiring a physical examination as a requisite for licenses goes into effect.

Police Shift, Biggest Yet, Hits 69 Men

Three Captains Are Transferred; Marks Goes to Fourth Precinct

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday announced the transfer of three captains, ten lesser officers and 56 privates in one of the most drastic shake-ups in Police Department history.

The changes, predicted exclusively in The Post Friday, were not confirmed by the police chief until yesterday.

Thursday Major Brown announced the demotion of an acting lieutenant and the transfer of two lieutenants, a sergeant and 19 privates.

Outstanding shift announced yesterday was the transfer "to the sticks" of Capt. Sidney J. Marks, commander of the Twelfth Precinct. Capt. Marks was made commander of the Fourth Precinct and 14 privates under him were moved to other posts.

The shake-up at Twelfth Precinct followed the fatal shooting there three weeks ago of two policemen. In a dispute over a reprimand, Pvt. Otho L. Blackwell shot Sergt Charles F. Cummins and a few minutes later was killed by a bullet from his own gun.

Capt. Marks will be replaced by Capt. Oscar J. Letterman, commander of Fourth Precinct. Capt. Harvey G. Callahan, present chief clerk, will return to his old position, commander of the First Precinct. He was graduated Saturday from the FBI-conducted National Police Academy.

Lieut Lawrence R. Beall, of the Tenth Precinct, will be promoted to captain and placed in charge of the property clerk's office.

Other promotions include Sergt. Loraine T. Johnson, of the Traffic Division, who becomes a lieutenant in Tenth Precinct; Private Daniel F. Donohue, of Tenth Precinct, who becomes a sergeant at No. 9; Detective Sergt. Earl P. Hartman, promoted to lieutenant and transferred from the detective bureau to administrative headquarters, and Detectives P. C. Wheeler, of Fourth Precinct, and R. E. Talbot, of Third Precinct, promoted to detective sergeants.

Other transfers include those of Lieut. John L. Norris, from Eleventh to Twelfth Precinct; Lieut. James E. Silvea, from First to Eleventh Precinct; Sergt. Maurice F. Prestele, from Twelfth to First Precinct, and Sergt. Marion B. Payne, from Ninth to Twelfth Precinct.

The promoted officers will be sworn in this morning at Maj. Brown's office.

Capital News In Brief

Old Gag—New Victim

Falling victim to a much-used "flim-flam" trick cost Mrs. Eliza Harris, colored, of 1232 Eighth street northwest, her savings of $700.

Mrs. Harris told police a woman claiming magical powers of healing came to her door and asked if there were anyone ill. Since everyone in the household was well the visitor displayed her powers in another manner by persuading Mrs. Harris to wrap the $700 in newspapers.

The package of money was then placed in a locked box in the bedroom after the visitor had "blessed" the package and promised Mrs. Harris the money would grow. When the visitor left Mrs. Harris examined the package and found the money had done just the opposite by diminishing to nothing.

Blaze Damages Houses

Firemen fought flames for three hours yesterday before extinguishing a blaze that badly damaged two frame houses in the 600 block of E street southeast.

The fire is believed to have been started by vagrants in a vacant house at 634. It spread across the roof to 636 next door. Residents at 636 were out, but one of them, J. G. Pizza, returned just in time to thank the departing firemen.

$500 in Jewels Stolen

Nearly $500 in jewels were reported snatched late Saturday night by two colored men from Charles V. Stanton, manager of a jewelry store at 1349 U street northwest.

Stanton told police he was carrying the jewels in a black typewriter case, and that the robbery took place as he was walking along the 500 block of T street northwest. The loot included five gold watches, four diamond rings, a pair of earrings and a gold watch chain. The robbers fled through an alley.

Auto Owner Slugged

Lawrence Taylor, colored, 47, of 117 G street northeast, was nursing a bump over his right eye yesterday because he had the misfortune to surprise another colored man who was busily engaged in trying to enter Taylor's automobile.

Taylor told police he asked the surprised man what he was doing to his car. The stranger replied by striking Taylor over the head. Taylor was treated at Freedman's Hospital.

Swim Suit, $42 Stolen

John Bucher, 23, of 432 Tenth street northeast, was unable to go swimming yesterday and forget about the robbery at the gas station where he works, because the thief stole his swimming suit as well as $42 hidden in a repair kit.

Bucher said the safe at the gas station, located at 140 Florida avenue northeast, locked automatically just before he was ready to close late Saturday. He placed the repair kit with the bills and his swimming suit underneath a shelf. The kit was gone when the station was opened yesterday. It was the fourth robbery at the site in as many months.

Catholic Guilds Rally At Services

Msgr. G. B. O'Toole Says Freedom Does Not End Obligations

Assembled in local parks for Catholic Evidence Guild services, large audiences yesterday afternoon and evening heard inspirational messages from lay and clerical leaders of the faith.

Speaking in Franklin Park, the Right Rev. Monsignor G. Barry O'Toole, Ph. D., S. T. D., professor in the Catholic University School of Philosophy, contended that God has given man free will but not freedom, and insisted that because "man is free to disregard his obligations does not mean that he is free from obligations."

"Free will is our most important prerogative. It is free will that makes us self-determining agents—the masters of our own actions. Without free will we would not be the originators of our own conduct but mere puppets of forces external to ourselves like men shoved forward by the pressure of the crowd behind them," he said.

Another speaker, Daniel Egan, declared, "Such forces of evil as Communism, Naziism and Fascism should hold no fear for those of us who are not too proud to invoke the aid of Mary, the Mother of God."

Describing mass as a way of thanking God, Flavian F. Wilson told the crowd in Public Library Park during the afternoon:

"We in America have many things for which we ough' to thank God. We are not involved in a destructive, death-dealing war. Our homes are not saddened by constant danger and the death of loved ones. We have a free country. We are permitted to live in peace and seek our happiness. It is true we have difficulties, but they can be solved. We must all work together with a good spirit toward that end."

"An important factor in our twentieth century disregard for the rights of individuals has been mobilization," Frater Marcellus Scheuer, O. Carm., said at Franklin Park in the afternoon.

"When we begin to consider man as a mass, especially as a mass to be needlessly hurled against other masses, we are apt to overlook the fact that each individual man is a precious being in the sight of both heaven and earth," he declared.

PATRIOTIC SESSION—Ushers Mary Ogden (left) and Lenora Tait escort Mrs. Faustine Dennis, past national president of the Women's Overseas Service League. Mrs. Marion E. Stenger Begins Series Of Talks Before Overseas Service League; Fled French Capital With Two Sons

Mrs. Marion E. Stenger, who fled from Paris recently with her two sons (one with a leg in a plaster cast), and who shared the submarine scare on the steamer Washington, began last night to tell of Europe's havoc to her comrades of the Women's Overseas Service League.

Since sailing on June 8, she has had no direct word from her husband, J. J. Stenger, who is connected with the American Embassy in Paris. She believes that their vacated home 10 miles from Paris may have been destroyed.

Last night, at the league's patriotic rally at the Wardman Park Hotel, preceding the opening of its twentieth convention today, Mrs. Stenger heard a man sing the "Marseillaise." And under the emotion stirred by that music, she talked to a group of friends in the hotel lobby about the land that has been her home since the World War.

"Knowing France as I do, it is unthinkable to me that the French people will long remain under the domination of Germany," she declared. But she would not guess when or how liberation would come.

Remembers Refugees

Someone spoke of the "millions of refugees." But she did not remember them in the mass.

"I remember a man and woman who rode into a summer resort near Bordeaux with the dead bodies of their two children in the car," she said slowly.

"I remember the face of a Belgian officer, who wandered about in a sort of daze, because he had lost his wife and five daughters."

She would not even discuss her own family's deprivations. "They are just trifles, compared with things like that," she added.

Mrs. Stenger said that the choking of roads with refugees and the many resulting complications were undoubtedly a factor in France's collapse. "But even as late as June 8, when we sailed, no one seemed to think that could possibly happen," she added.

Mrs. Stenger and her sons, Jerome J., 15, and John Richard, 14, are visiting in McLean, Va., in the home of Mrs. Charles E. Randall, who enlisted with her in World War work years ago. Because of a "bone condition" in the younger boy's leg, the Stengers were delayed a day or two in leaving Paris for Bordeaux, but managed to get away on May 18.

Mrs. Stenger will crystallize the contrasts between the World War and the present conflict in her address at the league's service luncheon tomorrow at the Mayflower Hotel.

A brunet who looked quite Parisian in her little cocked white felt hat and her jaunty black and white checked suit, Mrs. Stenger last night told how she went abroad from her Boston home more than 20 years ago to do work with the National Catholic War Council.

Program Patriotic

Dr. Barclay Acheson, who was to fly down from New York, did not arrive as scheduled for his speech at the rally. But the program went on with patriotic movies and music—topped off by reunions and reminiscences in the lobby. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest S. Rutherford, of Washington, who were a musical entertainment team in France during the other war, revived some of the old songs.

Earlier in the day the league placed wreaths at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson at Washington Cathedral and at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery. In the afternoon league members in white dresses and blue berets attended a memorial service at the Church of the Epiphany, honoring 347 women who gave their lives overseas during the war. Dr. Ze Barney Phillips, chaplain of the United States Senate, conducted the service.

Approximately 200 women had registered yesterday for the four-day convention of the organization, which has approximately 2,000 members including women who served as nurses, ambulance drivers, canteen orkers and entertainers.

Parade Precedes Carnival Tonight At St. Gabriel's

A parade through the Petworth area at 7 p. m. today will prelude the opening of the St. Gabriel annual carnival on the church grounds at Grant Circle this evening, which will continue through next Saturday night.

Bands and units of patriotic and fraternal organizations will make up the parade which will follow a route west on Randolph street to Georgia avenue, north to Kansas avenue, northeast to Buchanan street, thence east to Illinois avenue and south to Grant Circle.

Features of this year's carnival will be 50 booths, a ferris wheel, and children's rides.

D. C. Woman Seeks Divorce in Rockville

Samuel Earl Dustin, of Fairland, Md., is named defendant in a suit for an absolute divorce filed in the circuit court, at Rockville, by Mrs. Sadie Elizabeth Dustin, of Washington, who charges in her petition that she was deserted three years ago.

The plaintiff also asks to be awarded custody of the couple's only child, Allen LeRoy. The marriage of the couple took place at Burtonsville, Md., January 16, 1932, it is stated.

God to Stop Hitler, Says D. C. Pastor

Rev. John A. Trader Cites Fate of Past Conquerors Seeking To Dominate World

God, with the cooperation of man, ultimately will stop Hitler, the Rev. John A. Trader yesterday assured his Lewis Memorial Methodist congregation.

Delivering a sermon based on a question submitted by a member of his church on "Why Doesn't God Stop Hitler?" the cleric said:

"God cannot stop Hitler without disrupting our moral universe, until we let Him, and will stop Hitler when we cooperate to bring about his end."

"Other conquerors have arisen before in the history of the world," he continued, "but their reign always has been temporary and out of the disorganization resulting in the world there has usually been born some new and higher concept of human relationship.

"The cynic has oft buried the advocates of righteousness and bowed God out of his universe only to find the idea more persistent than ever. Thus out of this modern manifestation of hate, God shall bring to pass ultimately His own holy will."

One finds real meaning in life through self forgetful service to others, and in development of a living, personal faith in God, the Rev S. Paul Schilling, new pastor of Brookland Methodist Church, declared yesterday morning.

"One major difficulty with those who are bored and disillusioned with life," he pointed out, "is their self-centeredness, their preoccupation with their own desires. This way leads to futility, hopelessness and despair. On the contrary, those who find the richest joy in life are those who lose themselves in the pursuit of worthy ends and in doing so actually find themselves.

Survey to Aid Poor Tenants Begins Today

Month's Experiment Aimed at Relief Plan For Indigent Families

A month-long experiment aimed at devising aid for Washington families who are unable to pay their rent will begin in the Landlord and Tenant Branch of the Municipal Court this morning.

Mrs. Florence Conlin, a social worker, will sit at each session of the court during July to make notes of problems confronting indigent tenants.

She will investigate some of the cases by visiting the homes of defendants to gather information on how they might be aided by Community Chest and other agencies.

The experiment will amount to a month's survey of the landlord and tenant situation in Washington, said Mrs. Louisa S. Roberts, executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies.

The council will join Presiding Judge George C. Aukam, of the Municipal Court, in directing the social worker's activities, and the work will be financed by the Community Chest.

The problems of the 50,000 tenants who pass through the court each year, said Mrs. Roberts, have been under discussion for some time. This month's experiment was requested by Judge Aukam.

Hold-up Nets $25

A gunman of medium height, "badly in need of a shave," last night held up his fifth store in four days and escaped with $25.

The victim was Abraham Haft, operator of a delicatessen at 3557 Georgia avenue northwest. In the store at the time were Haft's son, Leonard, and a customer identified as a violinist at a downtown theater.

The marauder, as he pocketed the money, waved his blue-steel revolver at Haft and asked him sympathetically if he was insured.

"No!" Haft exclaimed hopefully, "I'm not."

The gunman shook his head sorrowfully.

"That's too bad," he said, closing the door behind him.

Church Club to Meet

The Washington Church Press Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Washington Federation of Churches Building, 1749-51 N street northwest. Church publicity workers of all faiths are invited to attend.

Luther Place Church Offers Pulpit to Dr. C. B. Foelsch

Sunbury, Pa., Clergyman Invited to Take Place of Dr. Carl Rasmussen, Who Resigned To Teach at Gettysburg Seminary

The congregation of historic Luther Place Memorial Church yesterday extended a pastoral call to Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, leader of Zion Lutheran Church, Sunbury, Pa.

Acting on recommendation of the pulpit committee and church council, headed by Fred W. Konemann and Albert A. Grorud, respectively, the members urged that Dr. Foelsch succeed Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen.

The latter has resigned to become professor of Systematic Theology, at Gettysburg Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., and the formal announcement was made at yesterday morning's service. He will assume his duties about September 1.

Chairman Konemann said that Dr. Foelsch's five-year pastorate at Sunbury has been unusually successful. During that time he reduced the church debt from $130,000 to $32,000 and had initiated many membership and general congregational advances.

Forty-nine years old, Dr. Foelsch previously served pulpits in Wilkinsburg, near Pittsburgh, and Charleston, S. C. He is chairman of the social service committee of the United Lutheran Church in America.

He and Mrs. Foelsch have three children, one of whom is a student at Gettysburg College. He is a native of Iowa and was graduated from Wartburg College in that State. If he accepts the call, his duties will begin about September 1.

In the resignation of Dr. Rasmussen, Washington loses a prominent clergyman. He is former president of the Washington Federation of Churches and of the Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church, and at one time served on the board of the Central Y. M. C. A.

Growth has been obvious at Luther Place since Dr. Rasmussen took charge a decade ago. Over 1,700 new members have been received, the communicant membership has increased from 250 to 820, the general indebtedness has been greatly reduced, and other progress noted.

The Gettysburg Seminary officials asked Dr. Rasmussen to join the faculty about a year ago.

In order to prepare himself for the new position, Dr. Rasmussen last August sailed with his family for a period of study at the University of Lund, Sweden. The war's outbreak interrupted his plans, however. He studied for a short time at the University of Copenhagen, Denmark.

The clergyman has two children. One, Mary Elizabeth, is a student at Gettysburg College, and the other, Carl, jr., was recently graduated from Paul Junior High.

James W. Conner Ordained Deacon At St. Mark's Rites

James W. Conner, of 23 Seventh street southeast, recent graduate of the Union Theological Seminary at Alexandria, was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church yesterday at services in St. Mark's Church, on Capitol Hill.

The Right Rev. William McLelland, D. D., of the Easton, Md., Diocese, acting for the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, was in charge of the services and presented the young man with a New Testament. The Rev. Robert J. Plumb, rector of St. Mark's, presented him for ordination, and the Rev. Clyde Brown, diocesan missioner, read the litany.

Dr. William R. Moody, of Baltimore, former rector of St. Mark's, delivered the ordination address. Mr. and Mrs. Wilver Conner, the young man's parents, were present.

Conner was educated at Robert Brent Elementary and Eastern High schools and Wilson Teachers College.

D. C. Willkie Group Plans G.O.P. Drive At Session Today

Plans for a "Willkie to win" drive among voters in Washington and environs will be discussed by the Republican nominee's supporters here today.

The Willkie Washington Committee will discuss election activities at an executive meeting to be held in the headquarters in the Hibbs Building, 725 Fifteenth street northwest, it was announced by Haven B. Page, local chairman.

The Willkie Washington Committee was formed June 17 and conducted "an active and extensive campaign . . . among the District delegates to the Republican convention," it was said.

Members of the executive committee include Roger Robb, former Assistant United States Attorney; Dr. Fred C. Fishback, surgeon; Reeve Hoover and S. Blackwell Jones, business counselors, and E. Courtlandt Parker and Gregory S. Prince, attorneys.

26 Summer Schools Open Today

116 Playgrounds In Full Swing; Camp Program Also Under Way

As hundreds of children start back to classes today for the opening of the summer vacation session in 26 public school buildings, more hundreds will head for the nearest playgrounds whose season goes into full swing.

The majority of playgrounds are already in operation, but Lewis R. Barrett, coordinator of recreation, said that activities in all the 116 locations are due to be under way today. Even for children who spend their mornings at summer school a long stretch of play time looms up—for the large playgrounds are extending their customary 6 p. m. closing to dark.

Sixteen schools for white pupils and 12 for colored open the summer term, which will extend to August 9. Holidays for July 4 and 5 will be made up by Saturday classes, July 13 and 20.

Of the 16 camps operated by Community Chest, five are opening their season today: Boys Club of Washington at Camp Reeder, West Hatton Farm; Mount Victoria, Md.; Girl Scouts' Camp Fay Flather, at Mount Solon, Va.; Salvation Army's Camp Happyland, Chopawamsic, Va.; Christ Child Settlement, Camp Bel Alton (colored), Bel Alton, Md.; Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A., Camp Clarissa Scott (colored), near Highland Beach, Md.

District Guard To Display Guns

Battery C, 260th Coast Artillery (anti-aircraft), District National Guard, will stage a demonstration tonight with a 3-inch antiaircraft gun and a .50 caliber machine gun at Fourteenth street and Park road northwest, in connection with its drive for recruits. An 800,000,000 candlepower searchlight, set up in front of the Woodward building downtown, will participate in the military display.

Officers and noncommissioned officers will explain the mechanism of the guns and searchlight and will receive applications for enlistment. Capt. Perry O. Huff is battery commander and tonight's demonstration will be in charge of Lieut. R. M. Beall.

F. W. Hill, Jr., Sets Up Independent Law Firm

Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the District Bar Association, has established an independent law firm. Associated with him in practice will be Augustus P. Crenshaw 3d, formerly of the staff of the District Board of Tax Appeals. Their offices will be in the Woodward Building.

Hill formerly was a member of the law firm of Barbour, Garnett, Pickett & Hill, which has been dissolved by mutual consent.

Col. Brindley to Speak

Col. A. R. Brindley, vice-president of Goodwill Industries, will address the organization's chapel exercises at 8:15 a. m. Wednesday in the auditorium, 1218 New Hampshire Avenue.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

The Earle Executes Coup In Booking New Hit Film

'All This and Heaven Too' at Regular Prices; Variety Club to Fete Veteran Capital Showman; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THE BIG NEWS for picturegoers this first morning in July is that the Warner Brothers production of "All This and Heaven Too," costarring Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, will be presented at the Earle Theater, beginning Friday, July 12, as a regular, continuous-performance attraction, at the usual scale of prices and with a stage revue in addition.

BELL

Because of the superlative drama afforded by the film version of the Rachel Field novel, the distinction of its cast and the fact that it consumes two hours and 21 minutes of running time, the Warners' first pronouncement was that "All This and Heaven Too" would be presented throughout the summer only as a "road-show" feature, or, at best, not more than three times a day at an advanced scale of admission charges. That rule still holds in many key cities. Washington, however, has been made an exception.

Not only will there be no curtailment of the full "road-show" running time of the feature at the Earle, but Managing Director Harry Anger also is blue-printing a "Top Hat and Tails" stage revue that will augment what bids fair to be one of the season's most generous amusement bargains. In the living portion of the bill, it is being bruited about that the Roxyettes again will place their necks in jeopardy by executing a tap-dance on stilts. Most of us can unhinge a few joints in the simpler of the tap routines on the flat of our feet, but those Roxyettes!

There would seem to be ample ground for congratulations to Zone Manager John J. Payette and his associates in the local Warner organization for having talked the high command out of the notion of "road-showing" "All This and Heaven Too" in the Capital. The idea had its inception, of course, in the huge success that attended the revolutionary showings of David O. Selznick's "Gone With the Wind," but a "GWTW" is something that happens only once in a lifetime. Others who attempted to follow in its solid gold footprints met with catastrophe. In out-maneuvering the home office—if that is what was done—the Earle management exercised splendid judgment and a high quality of showmanship that ought to pay rich dividends.

Another melodrama from the thrill-dipped pen of Lizzie May Elwyn, who gave the Roadside Theater "The Miner's Daughter," a hit of the 1938 season, will be the third of the barn theater group's productions this year. It is "Sweetbrier," or "The Flower Girl of New York," opening next Monday night, July 8, for the customary fortnight's run. Don't ask us who Lizzie May Elwyn is—or the Roadsiders, either. While they did the research work, not I, no trace of this playwright can be turned up in any of the theater's biographical works, histories of the drama or memoirs of famous theater folk. There is no record of any of her dramas ever having had a New York production. Maybe she was Shakespeare, or Lord Bacon, or somebody.

A week from today, in the Willard Room of the hotel of that name, the Washington Variety Club will hurl an informal luncheon into the teeth of Dr. William P. Herbst, dean of Washington's motion picture exhibitors. The prandial pastiming will serve a two-fold purpose. It will celebrate "Doc" Herbst's seventy-second birthday and signalize his completion of 30 years of showmanship in the National Capital. Dr. Herbst is head of the Circle Amusement Co., operating the Circle and other theaters in this city. He started out to be a pharmacist, but soon gravitated to "show business" and has been at it ever since. Rudolph Berger, local manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Eddie Fontaine, serving in like capacity for Paramount, have been named "kings for the day" by Chief Barker Sidney B. Lust.

So now we know what his become of Sibyl Bowan, supposed to play the Capitol stage back there in March, or some such time. A nicely chiseled tablet from the West Coast tells the story in these words: "Hollywood's latest sensation, SIBYL BOWAN, America's foremost impressionist, appearing nightly at Grace Hayes Lodge, 11345 Ventura boulevard, Hollywood, Calif." Sorry to have missed our old friend Sib, but look who's here—Sheila Barrett!

Speaking of the Capitol, if you have missed Ralph "Curley" Fox, the hairless horseman of the orchestra's drums and traps, this week, he is out fishing for whales at Nantucket . . . Back Friday.

Dots and Dashes

All Warner Brothers neighborhood theaters will hold special holiday matinees on Thursday, July 4, beginning at 1 . . . They will bear down on the real meaning of Independence Day—which won't do any harm at just this time . . . Judy Garland will sing two songs in "Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante," following "New Moon," at the Palace—one old one and one new one . . . The old one is "I'm Nobody's Baby;" the new, "Alone"—which amounts to practically the same thing—by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed . . . It is only because of the length of the bill that the Capitol is opening its doors this week at 10 a. m. . . . Back to the regular 10:45 business, come Friday . . . When the Roxyettes present their "Apple Blossom" number at the Earle, beginning next Friday, they will assault the olfactory nerve as well as the eye and ear . . . The scent of apple blossoms will be wafted throughout the auditorium while they cavort.

Word-to-the-Wise Note

Sara Allgood In Capital on Twofold Visit

Abbey Theater Star To Appear Locally In Play and Film

By Richard L. Coe

Sara Allgood, "Mrs. Haggerty," of "Storm in a Teacup" to some, "Juno Boyle," of "Juno and the Paycock" to some others is in the Capital news this week for two reasons. Tuesday evening the well-loved star of Dublin's Abbey Theater will appear in the first of two performances in Lennox Robinson's "The Far-off Hills," in the Catholic University Theater, and on the same evening her best-known film, "Storm in a Teacup," will be revived for a week's engagement at the Little Theater.

Like her theatrical figures, Miss Allgood has an infectious love of living. No matter how squalid the background of her stage or screen characters, one always recalls that a common characteristic of them all was a sort of rollicking vitality. But out of character, that voluble lady has an unexpected prettiness, an attraction which must have delighted Dubliners of 30 years ago when the Abbey Theater was new and struggling. That prettiness made it no trouble at all to believe Minister from Ireland Robert Brennan, as he mused about the Miss Allgood he knew thirty years ago during luncheon Saturday in Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller's rolling garden.

Unexpected Identification

The morning had brought a pleasant happenstance. Sitting in a Connecticut avenue beauty shop, Miss Allgood had been checking up on her lines for the Catholic University production. A few booths away a colleen from the old country pricked up her ears. Yes, those were Lennox Robinson's lines and surely that could be no one but Sara Allgood, of the Abbey, rolling them off. And, of course it was. Miss Allgood was very pleased about that.

It's impossible to imitate—let alone set on paper—the authentic richness of the Allgood voice. Simply say it's soft, melodic Irish and let it go at that. She talked of "Madame, Will You Walk?" that posthumous Sidney Howard play in which she appeared with George M. Cohan last season at the National. The Playwrights' Company will produce it in New York this fall with Sir Cedric Hardwicke in the Cohan role, a part Mr. Cohan never liked and which never agreed with him, either. During the last six months Miss Allgood and Barry Fitzgerald appeared for the first time together in New York in their original roles in "Juno and the Paycock," which won for her two honors. The New York drama critics' poll called hers the finest feminine performance in a season which included chores by the Misses Hayes, Cornell and Fontanne. The Drama Guild did likewise.

At the moment there's this production by the Drama and Speech Department of Catholic University for tomorrow and Wednesday evenings on the university campus. There's a chore of screen testing for Twentieth Century-Fox. And who, by the way, ever thought of wasting time for a screen test of a veteran of a dozen films?

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, June 30.

REALTY DEPARTMENT: A Washington notable, who was leaving the Capital for the summer, decided to sub-lease his house in Georgetown. He advertised in the realty section, and in due course received an offer. Before signing the lease, the new tenant asked whether there be any objection to bringing a lawyer for final approval of the document, and an appointment was set . . . At the appointed hour the new tenant arrived with the lawyer—a justice of the United States Supreme Court.

POLITICS: After the 6:30 recess was called, at the Republican Convention Thursday, Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota brushed by a group of us downstairs and cornered Alf Landon. He then took Landon aside, into an open freight-elevator, and there bartered for Kansas' vote in behalf of Willkie . . . Gov. Vanderbilt, of Rhode Island, passed by—and noticed the youthful Stassen, the convention's keynoter who is too young to be a candidate himself, trading with the man who once was the Republican nominee . . . "In politics," said Vanderbilt, "the past and the future determine the present."

SOCIAL NOTES: Mrs. J. P. McEvoy visited the Vandenberg headquarters to chat with Vandenberg's daughter, Mrs. E. J. Pfeiffer . . . A wandering delegate entered the room and looked around. The candidate's daughter extended her hand and introduced herself: "I'm Miss Vandenberg. Can I do anything for you?" . . . "You sure can, honey," the delegate beamed. "I'm lonely. What're you doing for dinner tonight?"

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: Jack Robbins, the music publisher, tidied up his office, preparing for the expected visit of Jimmy Roosevelt, who was coming to discuss his new movie enterprise. During a last minute inspection of the office, Robbins spied John LaTouche, one of the authors of "Ballad for Americans" . . . "Stick around and meet Jimmy Roosevelt," the publisher invited . . . "Sorry," LaTouche explained, "but I have a date with Vernon Duke, to work on a new composition" . . . Robbins looked, with disgust, at LaTouche, and said: "Stop being a genius—and start being social."

SPORTS DEPARTMENT: Walter Johnson, the veteran baseball star, visited the C. B. S. headquarters at the convention. Louis Ruppel, C. B. S.'s publicity director, greeted him: "Hello, Walter, I hear you're running for office?" . . . Johnson nodded . . . "On the Republican ticket?" asked Ruppel. Johnson nodded . . . "For Congress?" Ruppel continued. Johnson nodded . . . "Think you can win?" was the next question. Johnson shrugged . . . "If that's all the talking you'll ever do in Congress," Ruppel complimented, "we're all for you."

FASHIONS DEPT.: Jed Harris, as is his custom, had no clothes on when one of his friends visited him in Hollywood . . . "That's a helluva way to go around, naked," Jed was cautioned . . . "Well, I was'nt epecting anybody," the producer answered . . . "But why are you wearing that black tie?" Jed was asked . . . "Oh, that," he explained, "that's in case anybody dropped in."

LOCAL NEWS: H. C. Hopson's former lawyer, Brownback, who is under indictment in the Association of Gas & Electric case, secured permission to leave the jurisdiction, to go to the Republican Convention . . . Elizabeth Arden's sole comment about convention ladies was: "Most of them look like bags" . . . "Information Please" will have a new sponsor after November 15 . . . RCA's new camera-size radio was a sellout the first day . . . Harcourt Brace will publish the diaries of the late William E. Dodd, who was Ambassador to Germany . . . Mathea Merryfield, the Broadway dancer who has been performing in Europe, now cannot be located.

WAR DEPARTMENT: Senator Pepper, of Florida, read a report that a member of the German Embassy staff had challenged him to a duel . . . A few minutes later the Senator was observed fingering a small object in his coat pocket . . . "What's that?" he was asked . . . "Nothing but a slingshot," he said, "just in case one of those Goliaths comes around."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriett Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, June 30 (INS).—The very popular Richard Greene goes back to work at last after four months of inactivity due to illness. He'll star in "Not for Glory," the story of Capt. Don Alcock, the British aviator who, with Lieut. Arthur Brown, made the first transatlantic flight in 1919. The two war pilots flew from New Foundland to Ireland in an old Vickers bomber, an amazing achievement. They were also pioneers in campaigning for increased air strength in England.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

On July 8 Greene and Brenda Joyce, who will be his leading lady in "Not for Glory," depart for New York as passengers on a stratoliner making its maiden voyage. From New York they go to Baltimore for the premiere of "Maryland." Thus it will be about the middle of July before they are back in Hollywood and ready to face the camera at Twentieth Century-Fox.

Alfred Hitchcock, rotund master of suspense, goes to RKO Radio to direct two pictures. Studio has arranged to borrow him from David O. Selznick, who brought him over from England to direct the sensationally successful "Rebecca." Hitchcock has just completed "Foreign Correspondent," for which he was loaned to Walter Wanger. His first for RKO will be "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," Norman Krasna's original romantic comedy starring Carole Lombard. Immediately after he'll direct "Before the Fact," a psychological study of a murderer, which should be right up his alley. An English mystery novel, it is credited to Francis Iles, although rumor has it this is a nom de plume—some say for James Hilton.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: C. B. De Mille has cabled Madeleine Carroll in Madrid requesting her to return in time for the August 1 premiere of "Northwest Mounted Police," in Ottawa, Canada. He has reservations for her on the clipper and if she doesn't use them there's no telling when she'll be able to get back . . . Cesar Romero left the hospital last week . . . Brenda Marshall is home from a visit to the boy friend, Bill Holden, on location in Tucson, Ariz., with the "Arizona" troupe . . . Liz Whitney, ZaSu Pitts and Liza Wilson drove up to Newhall and spent the afternoon with former great cowboy star, William S. Hart, who lives in retirement on his ranch. Seems Liz and Bill are pals and she visits him often.

Carole Lombard and Clark Gable are planning to buy a ranch in Arizona for a between-flicker hideout . . . The Andrews Sisters went Hollywood t'other day—they spent the afternoon dunking themselves in Edgar Bergen's pool. . . . Romantic diners-by-candlelight at the Trail o' the Cock: Dick Foran and his socialite heart, Jayne Larkin . . . My favorite movie star, Daisy, the personality pooch of the "Blondie" series, may go on a flying cross-country P. A. tour for the Red Cross. Trainer Rennie Renfro has offered her services.

Gene Raymond leaves Monday for San Francisco to make an appearance in connection with his comeback film, "Cross - Country Romance." He'll stay on a couple of days to see the fair, but will be back to spend the Fourth with ers for the home team at the Hollywood Ball park. Lewis Fred Brisson among the root-Jeanette . . . Roz Russell and Stone, too . . . Jon Hall, hospitalized after that explosion on the "Kit Carson" set, was allowed to go home today.

That's all today. See you tomorrow — oops! Sorry — I mean L. O. P. will see you tomorrow.

Trans-Lux

As a respite from the avalanche of war pictures, the Trans-Lux Theater for the current week offers some splendid action on the floor of the Republican National Convention, topped by excellent shots of Wendell L. Willkie, nominee of that body.

On the other side of the Atlantic, Anzac troops are shown arriving "Somewhere in England." German bombers crash on the soil of English coastal towns and the King decorates the latest British heroes. Queen Elizabeth makes her regular visit to the hospitals, closing the war shots.

Back to the United States, the scenes remind old-timers of the days of 1917. Best shots are from the Canal Zone, where the air forces, sea forces, Infantry and Coast Artillery are ready for the worst. The actual laying of the electric mines at both entrances to the canal is an interesting feature. Other military preparedness views include the Army recruit drive, thrilling anti-aircraft maneuvers and the fighting planes of Uncle Sam over the Pacific. The Alaskan clipper service is inaugurated, the new Diesel airplane motor demonstrated, the Plattsburg recruits are examined and the 45,000 civilian pilots go into training.

The short subjects feature "Unusual Occupations," showing Gene Autry training his horses. "Sky Game" has to do with the sport of duck shooting, and "Parlor Buckaroos" is the saga of the dude ranches of Montana. "The Ugly Dino" is the cartoon.

BEEHEIMER'S THEATERS

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 30.

Even before Hollywood decided that comedians were worth their weight in gold, Bob Hope started his personal appearance tour, which has not only broken but shattered records wherever he played. In New York they hoped for $40,000. They got over $50,000. And it's been that way in every city. His wife is doing a swell job of singing. Jerry Colonna kills them, and Cobina and Brenda are a knockout.

HOPPER

Bill Goodman does a minor "Helizapoppin'" all by himself—walks on and off the stage carrying a glass of water. And when they finally ask why, he says, "Oh, there's a fire in my room—I'm just trying to put it out."

Bob's no fool—he went only on a percentage basis, so he's not only willing but ready to do seven shows a day. He'd do 12 if they could get the audiences in and out of the theater in time. Guess he learned to save his money when, as a newsboy, he serviced John D. Rockefeller, in Cleveland, Ohio.

The oil millionaire gave him a dime, Bob couldn't change it, and said, "I'll trust you—you're one of my regulars." The answer was, "Get the change. I'll wait." It was then Rockefeller said, "Let me tell you something I hope you'll remember. Whenever you can get the cash, never give a man credit."

Only last week Darryl Zanuck put in a production call for "The Life of Andre Maginot," the fellow who built that line. The story was to be his biggest picture this year. The picture's been canceled since that line has fallen.

Poor Charlie Laughton, after working months over his Italian dialect and getting it down pat, has to change it to Portuguese. As Charlie says, "I don't even know what they look like, let alone what they sound like." Anatole Litvak certainly turns out wonderful pictures, but uses up an awful lot of film. He shot 800,000 feet for "All This and Heaven Too."

Jimmy Cagney, who plays a prize fighter in "City for Conquest," trained for six weeks and took off 8 pounds. But his trainer lost 18!

The locket Betty Davis wore 'round her neck at the opening of "All This and Heaven Too" was an exact duplicate of one she wore in the film, but contained a miniature of her on ivory, inscribed, "To Bette from Bob," and was given her by Bob Taplinger, Warner's publicity head.

Like Samson who lost his strength when they cut his hair, Dottie Lamour has lost her distinction since she's cut hers. Dorothy, who's asking an enormous price for personal appearances, sings free at the suggestion of Greg Bautzer, and did a two-hours' songfest at the Sphinx Club.

Reds Trample Cubs Twice Before 27,000 Fans

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Boston, June 30.—The managers who picked the American League's All-Star team muffed one when they named Dutch Leonard as one of the pitchers . . . They forgot to name a catcher who could handle Leonard's knuckle ball . . . Bill Dickey, of the Yankees, and Rollie Hemsley, of the Indians, have had no experience with knuckle-ballers . . . And Frankie Hayes, of the A's, the third catcher, is always benched by Connie Mack when Paul Caster, the team's knuckle-ball ace, is pitching . . . Catcher Johnny Brucker gets the job on those days . . . The nomination of Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller, of the Yankees, to outfield positions on the All-Star clubs apparently was a courtesy . . . A half dozen outfielders are outhitting 'em, and the second-best outfielder in the league, Barney McCosky, of the Tigers, got no mention . . . Joe Cronin, who was named manager of the team, was not named as a player on the selections of the league's managers.

POVICH

One of the first acts of the bank which took over control of the Chicago White Sox was to cut the salary of the clubhouse boy $30 a month . . . Retrenchment no doubt . . . Charley Gelbert's come-back is one of the finer stories of baseball . . . After his hunting accident in which his right heel was shot off, he could not walk for months . . . At first he was limited to walking ten steps a day . . . He then ran a dozen steps, then 50 yards . . . Mrs. Gelbert encouraged him to keep training for a come-back and with her moral support he learned how to run again . . . Boston writers have cooled toward their former darling, Ted Williams, who could do no wrong last season . . . This year he is morose, petulant and just a teensy-weensy bit jealous of Jimmy Foxx' home runs . . . In the Boston press boxes, Foxx is still No. 1 Red Sox and Williams has gotten himself in dutch . . . In the White Sox dressing room is an artist's conception of Bob Feller, Ken Keltner and Rollie Hemsley wearing baby-bonnets following their crybaby revolt against Manager Oscar Vitt.

* * * *

Yankee Stadium is the worst park in the league for Jimmy Foxx who never did hit well in the House that Ruth Built and who has made only one hit in 22 times at bat there this season . . . "It's the shadows cast by the high stands and the poor background in center field where the white-shirted bleacherites sit," says Foxx . . . The Yankees have apparently lost their drawing power . . . On the recent Western trip they were outdrawn by several thousand customers by the Red Sox . . . The quoted price of $6,000,000 on the Yankees is $2,000,000 more than Walter O'Hara, the race-track tycoon, says he could have bought the club for last spring . . . Postmaster General Farley's interest in buying the Yankees may be restored if the Democrats are beaten in the November election . . . Notre Dame is selling its season football tickets on the installment plan . . . And is accepting $3 payment on $10 tickets . . . Big league scouts in the Midwest are tripping over themselves in an attempt to sign Bill DeCorrevont, Northwestern's football star, who hit .406 for the Wildcats' varsity nine . . . Scouts are exhibiting new interest in Big Ten baseball since it produced Lou Boudreau, Cleveland shortstop.

* * * *

The shame of the All-Star game is that players who refuse to pay the $10 contribution to the old ball players' charity fund are permited to take part in the game . . . One of the American League's best pitchers who has figured in several All-Star games, has consistently refused to contribute his ten bucks despite the fact that his salary has been more than $10,000 a year for eight years . . . Tommy Bridges' sister, Nancy, recently was named "America's Personality Girl" in an advertising models competition . . . The soureest note of the 1940 season in the majors was the revelation that Shortstop Eddie Miller, of the Bees, perhaps the highest salaried player on the club, was ordered by a court to pay $25 a month to the support of his mother . . . Nice going, Eddie . . . We hope you bat .029 . . . Ben Chapman, of the Indians, reveals that he will wear glasses . . . But there is no hope that he will see himself as others see him.

* * * *

Joe Krakauskas is happy again . . . He truly believes that he has regained his fast ball . . . "I haven't had as much stuff since 1938," he says jubilantly . . . Mose Grove, the guest of honor at a "Grove Day" banquet in Boston, bought tickets for the Fenway Park Clubhouse boys at $5 per copy . . . Lou Comiskey, jr., 14-year-old part owner of the White Sox, is studying for entrance to Notre Dame, where he wants to play football . . . Gerald Walker, in leftfield, is the only Washington player who has not been moved from the position in which he started the season . . . Walker's rating as No. 3 run-producer in the league is something of a feat inasmuch as he has hit only three home runs . . . The Nats haven't hit a homer in a week, incidentally . . . Herbert Hoover gets an assist in developing the three DiMaggios . . . All of them got their starts in the National Boys Club movement in which the former President has always been an active director.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 30.—About the only thing the average sports writer can do competently in a hurry is forgive Max Baer.

Max comes to town, whispers sweet nothings in our large red ears, comes out to a place like this to go through a mildly energetic training siege, talks a terrific fight—and we forget that we were calling him a quitting bum a few weeks before, and wishing fervently he'd stay in retirement.

CONSIDINE

We watched the unfolding of this miracle of perpetual pardoning here yesterday. A group of us decided in the car coming up here that we wouldn't be swayed this time from our reasonable belief that Baer has no real appetite for the game any more, that he is back in the swim only because there is easy dough to be made among the nondescript "challengers" for Louis' title, and that if Galento opens any or many cuts on his face Tuesday night Max might be inclined to retire—much in the manner of the Nova fight.

Max was in the ring, getting his mouthpiece from Issy Klein, when we came in. R. called out our names and directed us to the press bench. In the other corner was a globular figure who—at first fright—seemed to be Galento.

But it was Bingo Joseph Banovic the old middleweight who has eaten himself up to 235 pounds. Now he has achieved one of the world's strangest jobs, that of a stand-in for Galento. Whenever a fighter is matched against Galento, the fighter hires Bingo Joe as a sparring partner to get used to being mauled by a short, strong fat man.

Baer boxed three rounds. He looked fairly good, when he was serious, especially when he'd shoot a short right to the sparring partner's ribs after Banovic would hook a La Galento. But he clowned a lot, as he is certain to do Tuesday night.

When the session was over he and Banovic put on a hilarious burlesque of a rassling match, including an airplane spin with Banovic soaring around on Baer's shoulders, and a somersault out of the ring by Banovic. Then he peeled off his headguard and gloves, skipped rope and strode off to his undressing room.

We followed him back there, and found him in magnificent physical condition and even better voice. The man's physique, what with those incredible shoulders and tapering waist, make it difficult to believe that he could lose a fist fight. And the white-faced passion of his new-found Galento hatred cast a pall over the smelly little room after each unprintable curse he handed down on the Italian's head.

"I've never felt this way about a man," he muttered. "I'll kill the (censored) like I slaughter a pig on the ranch. He's northing but a gut, stuffed with sausage, and how do you know he's got so much heart? Louis hit me oftener and harder than he hit Galento. If I had taken one more punch from Louis he might have killed me, and then everybody would have said 'that Baer sure was a game guy.' But I didn't take the punch, so I'm a yellow dog.

"I can see this fight plainly. I'll rush out there and meet him and hit him with everything I've got until he goes down. And if he gets up I'll knock him down again. I'll crack that beer barrell belly of his. I can't see this fight going more than a couple of rounds. And when they count him out, let the tramp's own guys pick him up. I picked up Schmeling and all those other fellows I cooled. But I'd let this guy lay there until he rotted."

Then he explained all over again, for the benefit of Cy Peterman, a visiting journalist, the reason for his new anger. Seems that Galento is showing a pornographic picture of two bears to friends and word got back to Max. We tried to force ourselves to see that this righteous anger was a device Baer is using to whip himself into a fighting lather—a difficult job in the old days and an even more difficult one today, when he has money in the bank and a family he obviously loves. But it was no use.

Vern Kennedy Socks Tebbetts, Tiger Catcher

Alleged Personal Remarks Net One Cut, Swollen Eye

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 30.—Vernon Kennedy, St. Louis Browns' pitcher, walked into the Detroit clubhouse before today's double-header and socked Catcher George Tibbetts in the left eye.

KENNEDY

Kennedy, formerly a teammate of Tebbetts at Detroit, reportedly was incensed over personal remarks made to him by the Tiger catcher during yesterday's games.

Detroit players separated the pair and Kennedy left the room. Later as Tebbetts passed the Brown's bench, headed for the Tigers' dugout, he remarked to Kennedy:

"What do you say we go outside where we can get something done?"

Kennedy jumped up and both went to the Browns' clubhouse, had removed their spiked shoes and were ready for action when players of both teams rushed in and held them apart.

Manager Del Baker, of Detroit, said he would not ask that Kennedy be penalized for his action.

Tebbetts, whose eye was slightly cut and swollen, said:

"Nothing can be done against him for coming into our clubhouse, for I was in theirs, too."

Kennedy, who sat in the Browns' bullpen most of the first game, said the matter was "a closed incident."

Dempsey, Fat, 45, Returns to Ring Tonight

Jovial Jack to Meet Rassler Luttrell In 'Feud' Fight

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, June 30.—A jovial Jack Dempsey stuffed on Georgia peaches and barbecue and smoked only four cigars today on the eve of his "feud" fight with that bad man of wrestling, Cowboy Luttrell.

Twenty-five pounds heavier than his old ring weight and 45 years old, the Manassa Mauler will see tomorow night how much remains of his old ferocity, delicate timing and fist dynamite.

But Jack was enjoying himself too much to take very seriously questions about his designs on Joe Louis and whether or not he thinks he can duplicate the feat of the old master, Bob Fitzsimmons, who came back after a seven-year lay-off to whip some tough ones.

When the New York restaurateur pulls on 6-ounce gloves for a regulation ten-rounder tomorrow night it will be the first time since he hung up the gloves after King Levinskey decisoned him in 1932.

"Let's wait until after this fight and see how I feel before we talk about Louis," he said in his machine-gun manner of speaking.

How about training for the grudge bout with the Texas wrestler?

"Oh yeah," he grinned. "I got a shave and a haircut and cut down to two cigars a day. I'll take that guy in the first round."

At Warm Springs before photographers snapped a hundred pictures of him, he laughingly borrowed a young woman's overcoat, powdered his face for a "shave."

At the foundation dinner he was master of ceremonies and explained to the patients that the grudge with Luttrell resulted from the wrestler bucking him during a wrestling match he was refereeing.

Griffs Leave 23 Stranded On the Bases

23,000 See Visitors Outhit Hosts in Both Games to Finish Road Trip; Walker Homers

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

Boston, June 30.—The Nats' road trip ended today. Brace yourself for further details. It was like this: Boston 6, Washington 5 (first game); Boston 5, Washington 4 (second game). Twenty-three thousand Red Sox fans attended the services.

The pity was that they didn't pay off on hits today. It seems that the Nats collected 13 hits in the opening game to the Red Sox's six. And in the second game they outhit Boston 11 to 7. If there are any shadowy figures moving about Fenway Park tonight, they are probably the 23 men the Nats left on base in the doubleheader.

It was a painful sort of double defeat for the Nats. They staged a two-run ninth inning uprising in that first game, knocked Lefty Grove from the box and had the tying run on second base when Pinch-hitter Jake Early abused the title role by striking out.

The sad fact is that Early also left the tying run on base in the ninth inning of the second game with a weak tap to Relief Pitcher John Heving who had been his nemesis in the opening game. That second game was wrenched away from the Nats, incidentally.

Young Walter Masterson had matters fairly well under control until the eighth inning, including a 4-to-2 lead. He had been pitching four-hit ball to that point, but the Red Sox suddenly came up with a three-run attack to the delight of the 23,000, wiped out Masterson's lead and made away with the ball game.

Masterson put a run on base at the start of the eighth by walking Catcher Glenn, but he struck out Pinch Hitter Stanley Spence. Lou Finney drove a double to left at this point, and then Masterson's luck went bad. Buddy Myer stumbled as he fielded Cramer's grounder, and Cramer beat it out for a hit that scored Glenn and put Finney on third. Ted Williams tied the score at this point with a two-bagger to right. Strategy called for Foxx to be purposely passed and then Jim Tabor fetched the winning run home on a slow tap to Buddy Myer.

There were signs that the Nats would tie the score in the ninth when Travis led off with a double to the rightfield corner. Myer moved him to third on an infield out, but Charley Geibert obliged the Red Sox with a harmless grounder to Tabor, and Early grounded weakly into the box.

Back in the first inning the Red Sox put two hits behind a walk to Finney and scored twice. The Nats tied the score at 2 to 2 in the second inning after Myer doubled to right and Gelbert singled. Eventually they filled the bases with two out but Bonura was no help.

Nats Come Home After Poor Trip To Face Yankees

A Staff Correspondent

Boston, June 30.—The Nats entrained tonight for Griffith Stadium, where they open a long home stand tomorrow with the fourth-place Yankees as their first opposition.

During their stay in Washington, the Nats will be hosts to all of the other seven clubs in the league.

Manager Bucky Harris reserved Southpaw Ken Chase from the Boston series for the assignment tomorrow against the Yanks. Manager Joe McCarthy has indicated that Red Ruffing will be his pitching choice.

The Nats ended their road trip today with a dismal record of 6 victories against 11 defeats. They have won 6 of their last 10 games. Washington fans will get their first glimpse of the Nats' revised lineup, which shows Charley Gelbert at shortstop, Cecil Travis at third base, Buddy Lewis in rightfield and George Case in center.

Kenyon Ace Defeats Talbert, as Hunt Surprises Guernsey

Haverford, Pa., June 30.—Tourney favorite Don McNeill, Kenyon College ace, and Joe Hunt, Navy's Davis Cup star last year, reached the final round of the National Intercollegiate Tennis Championships today after disposing of their semi-final opponents in stiff matches at the Merion Cricket Club.

Hunt scored the biggest upset in the play thus far when he eliminated defending champion Frank Guernsey, of Rice Institute, 6—4, 7—, 4—6, 6—4, in today's penultimate battle. All the sets were torrid affairs, with Hunt's perfect backhand and chopping forehand strokes proving the superior weapons.

McNeill, seeded No. 1, eliminated sixth-seeded Bill Talbert, of the University of Cincinntai, in a rugged five-set battle. The scores were 6—2, 4—6, 6—2, 6—0.

McNeill took advantage of his apponent's inexperience and forced the Ohio youngster to commit many errors.

Stiff breeze that swept across the clay courts bothered all the players today. Lobs and seemingly easy placements were blown out of bounds or caught in the net.

Riggs, Marble Capture Titles

Cincinnati, June 30 (AP).—National Champion Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, grabbed the men's singles crown in the Tri-State Tennis Tournament her for the fourth time by defeating Arthur Marx of Los Angeles, fifth ranking junior star.

Riggs won with score of 11-9, 6-2, 4-6, 6-8, 6-1.

With the same powerful drives which carried her into the finals, Alice Marble defeated Gracyn Wheeler 6-3, 6-4 for the women's championship. Both are from Los Angeles. The crown was held last year by Catherine Wolfe, of Elkhart, Ind., who was defeated in the quarter finals.

Tavern Nine Wins Double-Header

The Odd Fellows baseball team turned in two easy victories yesterday, beating Fort Dupont by scores of 12-0 and 11-3, at the Suitland diamond.

Vander Meer Wins For Indianapolis; Gives Up but 6 Hits

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, June 30.—Johnny Vander Meer, who pitched two consecutive no-hit, no-run games for the Cincinnati Reds in 1938 before he lost his control, won his first start today for Indianapolis, of the American Association—a six-hit, 5-to-3 victory over Columbus in the seven-inning second game of a double-header.

He was optioned last week to the Indians, a Cincinnati farm.

The 6-foot left-hander walked three men and six of Columbus' blows were for extra bases, but he struck out ten batters and his fire ball was in the groove most of the time.

Cooke Net Victor In N. J. Singles

Orange, N. J., June 30 (AP).—Elwood T. Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., the Nation's sixth-ranking player, annexed the New Jersey men's tennis singles championship today with a straight set victory over Hal Surface, of Kansas City, 6—2, 7—5, 6—4.

Cooke then paired with Frank Bowden, of New York, to beat Ladislav Hecht, former Czecho-Slovakian Davis Cup player, and Owen Anderson, of Los Angeles, 6—4, 1—6, 6—2, for the doubles crown.

Surface extended Cooke only in the second of their singles final. The Kansan gained a 5—4 edge, but was unable to hold service in the tenth game. After the break, Cooke continued winning play to take the set.

Center Market Wins

Center Market nine traveled to Sykesville, Md., yesterday and returned with an 8-3 victory over Springfield A. C. Green held the host club to four scattered hits.

Spot of 2 Goals Helps Cavalry Win at Polo

Fort Myer Team Beats Fauquier-Loudoun, 8-6, Opening Series

The two-goal handicap allowed Third Cavalry polo team, of Fort Myer, by the Fauquier-Loudoun quartet yesterday at Potomac Field proved the inning margin, the Cavalry men inning, 8-6.

It was the first match of a home-and-home series for the rivals, Fort Myer next meeting the county team on the Middleburg (Va.) field July 7. A regular schedule will be maintained between the foursome from then on.

Though never able to overcome the advantage given Fort Myer, representatives of the Fauquier-Loudoun district twice came within a single goal of knotting the count during hostilities. That occurred in the third and fifth periods.

Overcome Five-Run Deficit in Nightcap For Victory; Walters Wins 10th Effort

By International News Service

Cincinnati, June 30.—The Cincinnati Reds performed in championship style today to take both sides of a twin bill from the Chicago Cubs, 7 to 4 and 7 to 6, before a crowd of 27,000.

Aided by Bill Nicholson's circuit clout in the third with two on, the Cubs pulled into a 6-to-1 lead in their half of the nightcap fourth. The Reds, with the aid of Frankie McCormick's homer, then went to work to score two in the fourth, two more in the fifth, tie up the game in the eighth and shoved across the winner in the ninth. Elmer Riddle, who replaced Shoffner in the ninth, was credited with the victory. Larry French, who started the opener and entered the nightcap in the eighth, was charged with the loss.

Bucky Walters became the first National League pitcher to win 10 games this season when he outlasted a flock of Cub hurlers in the opener. Walters had one bad inning, the fifth, when Jim Gleeson lifted a homer over the centerfield wall with the bases filled to tie the score.

The Reds broke up the game in the seventh when they scored three more. Linus Frey accounted for three of the early runs by slamming homers in his first two trips to the plate. The second circuit clout also brought in Bill Werber. Vance Page, who replaced French in the sixth, was charged with the loss:

Leonard on All-Star Team; Nine New Faces to Appear

Gomez, Gehringer And Grove Missing From Selections

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 30.—The old guard of American League baseball stardom will give ground to new and younger luminaries when the circuit's all-league team clashes with the National League in the eighth All-Star game July 9 at St. Louis.

Twenty-five players were named today to the American League squad by the eight circuit managers. They will be managed by Joe Cronin, pilot of the Boston Red Sox. The list shows nine players selected to the all-star squad for the first time and also is marked by the absence of such former greats as Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, Robert Moses Grove and Charley Gehringer

4 Newcomers From Tribe

Four of the nine new stars will come from the Cleveland Indians: Pitcher Al Milnar, second baseman Ray Mack, shortstop Lou Boudreau and third baseman Ken Keltner. The other new players will be pitchers Emil Leonard of Washington and Yanks and Ted Williams of Boston.

The No. 1 veteran on the squad will be James Emory Foxx of Boston, elected to every all-star squad since the game was inaugurated in 1933. Bill Dickey, New York catcher, will be on hand for a seventh time, while it will be No. 6 for Tommy Bridges slender Detroit mound ace. In addition to Bridges, Milnar, Leonard and Pearson, Manager Cronin will have such star flingers as Bob Feller of Cleveland, Buck Newsom of Detroit and Charley (Red) Ruffing of New York. It is likely Feller will draw the opening three-inning assignment.

Yankees Place Seven

The world champion New York Yankees may be faltering this season but they still topped all clubs for men placed in the squad, getting seven on the team to six for Cleveland. In addition to Ruffing, Dickey, Pearson and Keller, the

Woodmont, Anacostia Golf Teams Win; Quantico Ties Keenwood

Belle Haven Beaten by Mansfield Hall; Penna and Barnett Break Even With Spencer, Doerer at East Potomac; Columbia Duos Tie

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

District golf clubs had a successful day in team match competition yesterday, winning two out of four matches and tying one against out-of-town competition while in the only intracity encounter Beaver Dam doubled the score on Argyle, 32 to 16.

Woodmont's two-day meeting with Lakeside golfers of Richmond found the locals on top by the one-sided margin of 67½ to 16½ while Anacostia's strong public links lineup continued its winning streak with an 18½-to-5½ triumph over the Ocean View Club, of Norfolk. Charles Schulman's hole-in-one featured the Woodmont match.

Kenwood members broke even with the visiting delegation from the Quantico Officers Club, 16½ each, while the only loss of the day was suffered by Belle Haven, 21-9 defeat at the hands of the Mannsfield Hall team at Fredericksburg, Va.

BEAVER DAM

Joe Balestri's one-over par 73 was the best score turned in among the Beaver Dam-Argyle players as the hosts avenged a one-point defeat suffered at Argyle by doubling the score.

In the playoff for the Cliff Spencer mixed Scotch foursome cup, Mrs. Jack Palmer and H. Hildebrand defeated Alice Kay and Miles Sterns, 1 up.

Mrs. Peggy McCarty posted low net of 72 in the weekly ladies tournament, shooting a 93 and deducting a 21 handicap. Mrs. C. V. O'Brien was second with 104-28, 76, while other winners were: Mrs. C. T. Frownfelter, 94-14, 77; Mrs. William Kerr, 102-24, 78; Mrs. Ora Emge, 94-12, 82; Mrs. C. B. Hartman, 119-34, 85, and Mrs. Charles Griffith, 108-23, 85.

Mrs. McCarty, Mrs. Frownfelter and Mrs. P. M. Miller were also winners in the blind draw, blind bogey event. Forest Thompson and Jerry Burch were in the prize list among the men.

BEAVER DAM, 32; ARGYLE, 16

Joe Balestri and Jim Gipe, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for R. C. Jewell and Fred Murray; John Miller and Eddie Bean, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for Tony Willmett and Bill Flannery; Forst Thompson and Jean Bassett, Beaver Dam, scored 2½ points to ½ for Nolan Gibson and D. L. Myers; Ed Heimer and Fred Stringer, Beaver Dam, scored ½ point to 2½ for P. L. Williams and Richard Mothershead; Jack Palmer and Edgie Johnson, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for W. S. Lephew and Bert Langhenry; Bill Rea and B. Boucher, Beaver Dam, scored 2 points to 1 for Shirley Chamblin and M. L. Moore; R. L. Thompson and Doug Mattison, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for Reas and McLeod; C. E. Purdy and Bill O'Brien, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for L. O. Johnston and William Fox; J. A. Woodside and Pop Rodgers, Beaver Dam, scored 0 points to 3 for Paul Hazen and Fritz Mannino; A. M. Woodside and Weisenberger, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for Aubrey Dooley and Henry Chick; Bill Rochelle, sr. and jr., Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for Stearns and Beard; Pat Pozarity and Dick Milbourne, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for Ray Lawrenson and Phil Brousseau, Argyle; Kerr and Griffith, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for Beall and Ray Amsden; S. A. Markowits and Smith, Beaver Dam, scored ½ point to 2½ for Fossen and Ralph Sterling; Chick Heimer, jr., and Byers, Beaver Dam, scored 3 points to 0 for Ray Gable and A. B. Cole; Sam Blaze and R. E. Heimer, Beaver Dam, scored 2½ points to ½ for Lake and Burgess.

KENWOOD

George Diffenbaugh's 68 led the Kenwood team to the 16½-to-16½ draw with the Quantico Officers Club in the first half of a home and home match.

Three tied in the blind bogey play at Kenwood, R. G. Peebles, 79-0—79; A. D. Kane, 97-18—89, and D. C. Hair, 94-13—69. J. C. Humphrey scored 87-10—77 for second, while three others tied with net 71, Jack Keele, 74-3—71; G. H. Phillips, 85-14—71, and E. S. Marlow, 76-5—71.

KENWOOD, 16; QUANTICO, 16½

George Diffenbaugh and J. E. Hutchison, jr., Kenwood, scored 3 points to 0 for Danny Burton and Gen. Moses; P. J. Hopkins and W. F. Stickle, Kenwood, scored 1 point to 2 for Capt. Pollard and Mills Brown; V. G. Myers and Dr. L. V. Gaffney, Kenwood, scored 2 points to 1 for Col. Harris and Maj. P. K. Smith; F. U. Haines and R. Barry, Kenwood, scored 0 points to 3 for Maj. Cooley and Comm. Lehman; R. H. Fuchs and L. N. Shade, Kenwood, scored 1 point to 2 for Capt. Hopper and Capt. West; W. O. Woolley and P. J. Alverson, Kenwood, scored 0 points to 3 for Maj. Whaley and Capt. Savage; Maj. Foster and H. S. Rhodes, Kenwood, scored 2½ points to ½ for Lieut. Emerson and R. J. Peebles; Joe Vance and Dr. C. E. Coulon, Kenwood, scored 2½ points to ½ for Dr. Carli and Dr. Hayworth; Charles Valle and R. A. Weaver, Kenwood, scored 1½ points to 1½ for Lieut. Smith and Lieut. Williamson; A. D. Kane and M. A. Miller, Kenwood, scored 0 points to 3 for Capt. Cook and Chief Gunner Lilly; Dr. E. B. Frank and Charles Wright, Kenwood, scored 3 points to 0 for W. O. Berger and Paul Lion.

WOOD MONT

Charles Schulman's hole-in-one on the short seventeenth topped off Woodmont's decisive 67½-to-16½ victory over the visiting Lakeside golfers as the Richmonders went home with one of the worst beatings in the 20-year history of the series.

Schulman used a six-iron in scoring his first ace on the 144-yard hole. Golf matches Saturday afternoon and yesterday morning were followed by social affairs each day.

Woodmont, 67½; Lakeside, 16½

Howard Nordlinger and Milton Harris (Woodmont) scored 8½ points to ½ for Leon Nelson and Henry Gunst, jr.; R. A. Phillipson and Ed Wortman (Woodmont) scored 8½ points to ½ for Jack Myers and Sylvan Rochchild; Ed Meinlker and Vic Zeva (Woodmont) scored 8 points to 1 for R. I. November and I. B. Gaelski; W. G. Tich and Cabot Feidman (Woodmont) scored 3½ points to 5½ for Charles Haltzer and Charles Thalheimer; Ralph Goldsmith and Al Goldstein (Woodmont) scored 9 points to 0 for Mitchell Katz and Dave Constine; Willard Goldheim and Charles Schulman (Woodmont) scored 4½ points to 4½ for Ed Wallerstein and Henry Gunst, sr.; Jules Winkleman and Leonard Jacobs (Woodmont) scored 8 points to 1 for Ed Levy and E. S. Wallerstein.

ANACOSTIA

A visiting amateur of the Ocean View team, Joe Blum, was low scorer in the match at Anacostia with a 66, while host pro, Bill Carson, was just a shot back on the par 68 course. The victory was the second of the season for the locals over the Norfolk team. The Anacostia team, currently leading the public links play for the Bill Davis Trophy, will try out-of-town opposition again next Sunday against the Daingreen (Md.) Naval Officers team.

Anacostia, 18; Ocean View, 3½

Bill Carson and Jump Hazleton (Anacostia) scored 3 points to 0 for T. Miller and D. Miller; Lee Kreuger and Dutch Melcher (Anacostia) scored ½ point to 2½ for C. Haynes and B. Miller; John Keogh and Joe Lockwood (Anacostia) scored 3 points to 0 for C. Young and F. C. Kelly; O. M. Brown and Bill Davis (Anacostia) scored ½ point to 2½ for H. Morgrew and J. Blum; George Graham and Paul Knight (Anacostia) scored 2½ points to ½ for Dina Hall and Fred Stant; Tom Smith and Al Guyette (Anacostia) scored 3 points to 0 for O. Balance and G. Snyder; Cal Loving and Zane Kelly (Anacostia), scored 3 points to 0 for J. Peck and Mac. Dolby; Jack Hardy and John Mellon (Anacostia) scored 3 points to 0 for D. B. Sweitz and George Helis.

EAST POTOMAC

Cliff Spencer three-putted the final green at East Potomac to allow Tony Penna and Bob Barnett to break even with he and Tommy Doerer jr. in an exhibition match. The match was also even at the turn.

Penna, the Dayton, Ohio, professional here for the Red Cross pro-amateur on Thursday, was low with a three-under-par 69, from nines of 34 and 35. Doerer, aided by some fine putting and a chip shot that found the cup on the sixth hole, was next with 34-36, 70, while Spencer and Barnett each match par figures of 72.

COLUMBIA

Two teams tied with par 70's in the Cummings Cup qualifying at Columbia and will have to playoff for the right to meet Martin McCarthy and George Miller, present holders of the trophy.

Maj. J. H. Francis and Capt. Jesse Auton matched par figures with a best ball of 70, while Don Buckingham and Page Cornwell also combined for a 70 and will play-off next week for the right to challenge Miller and McCarthy in the best ball event.

BURNING TREE

Al Jamison, Bradley Hills professional, played Burning Tree in 71 strokes, one under par, with only three pars on his card. Jamy should have had a 65 or better as he dropped seven putts for birdies and one for an eagle three, nine under par for eight of the 18 holes. But the sad part of the round was that he went over par on seven holes and he and host professional Lewis Worsham both finished with 71's. Roger Whiteford and E. H. Jones were members of the foursome.

MANOR

The five-week sweepstakes tournament at Manor was completed yesterday with half the total entry fees for the entire event dumped into the final day's prize fund.

A. L. Alderman was the winner with a round of 72, only two over par, minus an eight handicap for a net 64. H. A. Neff was next with 76-10, 66, while Lee Ritter, 75-8, 67, E. H. Teague, 80-13, 67, and Dr. Hutchison, 81-13, 68, completed the list of winners.

The blind bogey on the ladies' inside nine was a five-way tie between Mrs. L. G. Pray, Mrs. W. J. LaBille, Mrs. C. Dannaker, Mrs. W. F. Lunger and Mrs. W. Billingsley.

INDIAN SPRING

The new Board of Governors Trophy champion at Indian Spring is W. F. Patterson, whose 91-26, 65, won the honors over a large field by a single stroke. Tom Meaney was runner-up with 80-14, 66.

CONGRESSIONAL

Two teams tied with 61's on the two-man, best ball handicap sweepstakes at Congressional. A. J. Abbott and J. R. Smith were deadlocked by C. A. Fergus and H. J. Klossner.

C. Underwood won the individual low net prize in the club breakfast play when the toss of a coin ended in his favor over O. T. Smith and W. W. Bayfield. The winner scored 85-19, 66, while Smith was 89-23, 66, and Bayfield 84-18, 66.

Marvin Johnston, Abbott, Underwood and R. K. Norton comprised the winning foursome with a 359 score.

The Congressional golf shop is preparing for the battle of the month Wednesday when the long-hitting W. C. Eacho will meet the man with the deadly putter, Jocko Miller, in an 18-hole "grudge" encounter.

BRADLEY HILLS

R. C. Springer with an 83, F. Chamison, 81, and R. L. Frost, 77, were winners, in that order, in the no-handicap blind bogey play at Bradley Hills.

Mrs. Zaharias Wins Western Open Golf Title

BY International News Service

Milwaukee, June 30.—Babe Didrikson Zaharias, once the world's greatest woman athlete, today won her first major golf title by turning back Mrs. Russell Mann, 5 and 4, in the 36-hole Western Open championship finals.

One down at the half way point, the Babe squared the count on the twentieth when her Milwaukee opponent three-putted. She went on to win the twenty-first, twenty-third, twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth holes, capturing the latter with a birdie three.

She was four-up at the third turn with a 36, one under woman's par and one over the men's standard at the Blue Mound Country Club course in suburban Wauwatosa.

The Babe three-putted the next two holes, dropping the twenty-eighth, but her birdie and par bagged the thirtieth and thirty-first to send her five-up.

The new champion went around in the morning with an 81, while Mrs. Mann was one under. Mrs. Zaharias was even par in the afternoon round, but Mrs. Mann, slipping badly, shot seven over.

Spencer and Alexander Lose In Capital Invitation Upset

Maryland Junior Champion Freddie Bolton and Maury Fitzgerald took advantage of some loose back nine play on the part of the opposition yesterday to win the Capital Club two-man Invitation tournament in the biggest upset of the tournament of surprises.

The champions in the first tournament of its kind here, to be made an annual affair, came from behind in the morning and afternoon, trailing by three holes at the ninth each round, to win both semi-final and final round matches, 1 up.

The title round victims were Ken Spencer and William Alexander, of the host club, who put together a one-under-par best ball in the morning to defeat the favored team of George Molloy and Pat Martino, of Capital, 3 and 2.

Spencer and Alexander Led

Spencer and Alexander were three up at the turn in the finals but their margin was cut to one with three holees to play. They lost the sixteenth to a par, the seventeenth was halved in bogey fives with some spotty putting and the new champions won the easy par five finishing hole with a five for the match.

Young Buster Mrstik, of the host club, and Merrell Whittlesey, of Manor, couldn't stand prosperity and blew a 4-up and 7-to-go lead in the morning semifinals and lost the match, 1 up, to a par on the eighteenth.

The second flight final rivaled the first as far as upsets were concerned as Charles Rice and Jack Ferguson won over Maury Nee and Luther Steward, jr. The third flight was a father-and-son battle as L. J. Manders, jr., and Jack Call defeated L. J. Manders, sr., and Marcus Chaconas, 1 up.

Capital Team Scores

A Capital team of H. E. Davies and H. L. Gray won the consolation handicap tourney in the afternoon with 79-18, 61, over the 75-11, 64, by Bob Albertus and W. Frederick.

The medal playoff between Congressional's team of Ralph Bogart and Earl McAleer against Martin McCarthy and George Miller, of Columbia, ended in another tie, this time with 69's as the teams each sent two shots above their qualifying scores of 67.

The second playoff is set for Tuesday afternoon at 3:30.

Although the entry was small, the tournament was such a success that the committee is talking of a field of more than 100 teams for the second event next year.

Championship Flight

Ken Spencer and William Alexander (Capital) defeated George Molloy and Pat Martino (Capital), 3 and 2; Freddie Bolton (unattached) and Maury Fitzgerald (Kenwood) defeated Buster Mrstik (Capital) and Merrell Whittlesey (Manor), 1 up.

Bolton and Fitzgerald defeated Spencer and Alexander, 1 up.

Consolation

Henry Cohen and William Pendergast (Capital) defeated Dick Meyer (Manor), 3 and 2 (Bob Donohue, Meyer's partner, did not show up); S. S. Fletcher and John Phelan (Capital) defeated W. Seonford and F. R. Ferguson, jr. (Capital), 1 up, 19 holes.

Cohen and Pendergast defeated Fletcher and Phelan, 3 and 2.

Second Flight

Charles Price (Indian Spring) and Jack Ferguson (Capital) defeated Maury Nee and Luther C. Steward, jr. (Columbia), 3 and 1.

Third Flight

L. J. Manders, jr. (Manor) and Jack Call (Capital) defeated L. J. Manders, sr. (Manor) and Marcus Chaconas (Capital), 1 up.

PRO-AMATEUR TODAY

Fireworks are expected in the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. meeting today at Hillendale when the District and Virginia pros suggest to the Baltimoreans that the National P. G. A. sectional qualifying rounds be held in Richmond, while the Baltimore boys are all set to hold the event in their home city.

A pro and three-amateur partner handicap tournament will follow the meeting, with the simon-pures allowed half handicaps. Al Jamison, Bob Barnett, Cliff Spencer, Al Houghton, Lew Worsham, George Diffenbaugh and Leo Walper are among the District mentors that will attend the meeting and golf.

Potomac Ties Virginia Club In Race Series

Potomac Boat Club, of Washington, and Virginia Boat Club, of Richmond, tied yesterday in the first of a four-race series of match events among oarsmen of the four clubs in the Southern Rowing Association. In yesterday's regatta, rowed over a half-mile course above Key Bridge, Potomac and Virginia each amassed 14 points.

Arundel Boat Club, of Baltimore, collected 11 points and Old Dominion Boat Club, of Alexandria, trailed with 6. Winning club at the end of the summer series will be awarded the association's point trophy.

The second race in the series will be rowed July 14 at Baltimore, the third August 4 at Richmond and the third August 18 at Alexandria.

Yesterday's nine-race regatta was opened by Potomac and Arundel's four-oared gigs, Potomac finishing ahead of a smooth-working Arundel crew in 2 minutes, 50 seconds. Old Dominion's four-oared gig nosed out Virginia's in 3:01 4-5. The match race between the winners was won by Potomac in 2:41 2-5.

In the quadruple sculls, Virginia led Old Dominion in the first, rowing a fast race in 2:32 1-4, even after their stroke lost an oar at the start and made a quick and effective recovery. Potomac took the quad event from Arundel in 3:06 1-5 and then lost to Virginia's fast crew in 2:42 in the final heat.

Arundel's crew, in their eight-oared shell, took revenge for two defeats by Potomac, their long shell boiling in ahead of Potomac in 2:33 2-5. Old Dominion dropped the eight-oared event to Virginia in 2:34 and Virginia, in turn, was downed by Arundel in 2:36.

A crowd of several hundred packed the Potomac Clubhouse float and lined the course on both sides of the river.

Ford Walker Wins Regatta

By the Associated Press

Colonial Beach, Va., June 30.—Ford Walker, of Fredericksburg, kicked his speedy outboard powered boat over the 5-mile triangular course today to win the feature event for racing runabouts in the American Legion Festival Regatta.

The finals of the regatta brought to a close the festivities that officials said brought to town the biggest crowd in its history. Maynard Dillaber, of the regatta committee, said more than 10,000 were on hand today to see the seven races.

Behind Walker in the main attraction was J. B. Broadus, of Richmond. The committee listed only firsts and seconds and did not list times as the events were not sanctioned by the Virginia Power Boat Association.

Class A Outboards—E. E. Lane, New Bern, N. C., first; R. P. Ruenbark, New Bern, N. C., second.

Class A Hydroplanes—Clarence Collins, Richmond, Va., first; G. Bache Gill, jr., Corinthean Yacht Club, Washington, second.

Midget Outboards—G. Bache Gill, jr., Washington, (only entrant to finish.)

Sport Class—James Barnhart, jr., Washington, first; G. J. Cook, Washington, second.

Baltimorean Threats Out of M. A. Net Play

Keiles, Hobbs Defeated as Local Stars Continue Dominance of Meet; Johnsen and Murphy Triumph

By Jack Munhall

Guarding jealously the tradition that an outsider never wins the Middle Atlantic tennis championship, local players yesterday rid the tournament of two of Baltimore's strongest bets for a long-awaited title in straight sets at Columbia.

Making an early departure from the fifth annual event were Oscar Keiles and Dever Hobbs who left John Beck with the burden of bringing Baltimore its first Mid-atlantic crown.

Keiles, in a comeback attempt after an automobile accident which caused him to lose 60 pounds, fell victim to third-seeded Davie Johnsen. Hobbs, third-ranking Baltimore player and its top junior of 1939, was no match for fifth-seeded Dick Murphy who won 6—2, 6—2.

Junior Star Loses

Meantime, Beck who eliminated Morton Shapiro, another Baltimore entry in the first round Saturday, overcame former D. C. junior star, Harry Brinkerhoff, 7—5, 6—3.

The seeded list remained intact and hardly scratched as Murphy and Johnsen paced the favorites by becoming the first two quarter-finalists. Each won two matches, Johnsen beating John Hutchinson before he conquered Keiles, and Murphy repulsing Tom Mangan in his opening match of the day, 8—6, 8—6.

Walsh, in his first appearance after profiting by a default in the opening round, beat down stubborn opposition from young Dan Dalby to win, 6—3, 6—4. Second-seeded Hugh Lynch surprisingly dropped a set to former Roosevelt High ace Davis Kay before coming through, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1. Fourth-seeded Alphonso Smith routed Bob Chichester, 6—1, 6—1. Sixth-seeded Bill Breese trimmed Larry Phillips, 8—6, 8—6. Seventh-seeded Jimmy Ferrin idled and eighth-seeded Buddy Adair was impressive in a 6—3, 6—1 conquest of veteran Ed Mather. Former Champion Dooly Mitchell, unseeded because of infrequent play last season, beat Carl Fontanin, 6—3, 6—3.

Only result closely approaching an upset was the elimination of Hy Ritzenberg, one of the better public parks players, by Charlie Freer, a local youngster fresh out of the junior ranks. The scores were 6—0, 3—6, 6—2.

Doubles started yesterday, with teams seeded exactly as they were in the recent City of Washington tournament. Defending Champions Johnsen and Lynch top the list, followed by District Titleholders Welsh and Dooly Mitchell, Jimmy Farrin and Bill Howard, and Alphonso Smith and Murphy.

Three more singles quarter-finalists will be determined in matches today. Welsh meets John Baggiotti, a dangerous unseeded New Yorker, at 3 p. m.; Adair tackles Beck at 4 and Smith plays Freer at 5.

2,602 Golfers Lined Up For U. S. Publinks

By the United Press

New York, June 30.—The United States Golf Association announced today that 2,602 golfers have entered the Amateur Public Links Championship.

The event, nineteenth in the series, will be held July 22-27 at the Rackham Golf Course, Detroit.

The field will be trimmed to 192 for the championship proper by sectional qualifying rounds. Five former champions are exempt from the sectional qualifications. They are Andy Szwedko, of Pittsburgh, defending champion; Robert E. E. Wingate, Jacksonville, Fla., 1930 winner; Charles Ferrera, San Francisco, 1931 and 1933 winner; David A. Mitchell, Atlanta, 1934, and Al Leach, Cleveland, 1938.

The other players will battle for the remaining 187 places in qualifying rounds scheduled at 39 locations. A few of these 36-hole competitions already have been held and the remainder will be conducted from July 5 to 8.

The largest entry is in Denver, Colo., where 432 players will seek six places. The most places allotted to one district is in San Francisco, where 164 players seek 11 places. Detroit was allotted 10 places for 152 players.

League Leading Indians Beat Chisox, 7-5; Drop Nightcap, 3-1

Phil Cast-Off Smith Hurls Tribe's Win

Veteran Registers Ninth Victory; Sox Shell Al Milnar In Second Game

By International News Service

Chicago, June 30.—After giving a demonstration of horrible baseball to drop the first game 7 to 5, the Chicago White Sox halted the three-straight victory march of the league-leading Cleveland Indians by capturing the second, 3 to 1.

The Sox romped on Al Milnar in the sixth frame of the nightcap to score all their runs. Mike Kreevich homered to score Jimmy Webb, who had tripled. Solters singled and went home when Hal Trosky dropped Eric McNair's pop-up for an error. The Indians scored their lone run in the third after Edgar Smith filled the bases, and Lou Boudreau scampered home as Trosky fouled to Bob Kennedy.

Al Smith, the Phillies' castoff, continued his comeback by chalking up his ninth victory in the opener. The victory was due mostly to bad Sox playing, although the Tribe belted Teddy Lyons for 14 safeties.

Tight Game, Slaughter Staged in St. Louis

St. Louis, June 30 (AP).—Today's double baseball game at Sportsman's Park provided fans with a thriller and a slaughter, the St. Louis Browns winning the first, 7 to 6, in the eleventh inning and Detroit the second, 10 to 1, in seven. The second game was called to permit Detroit to catch a train.

One of Detroit's 16 hits in the nightcap was Hank Greenberg's fifteenth home run of the season. John Gorsica pitched five-hit ball and the Browns chipped in with five errors.

Newport News Nine Shades Cameo by 1-0

Special Dispatch to The Post

Newport News, Va., June 30.—The Builder nine of Newport News took a thrilling 1-0 victory over Cameo Furniture, of Washington, D. C., here today as three Builder hurlers shackled the Furnituremen with five safeties.

Walker led the six-hit attack of the winners with three safe blows, including a triple and double. Benny Steiner, former Central High star, also had a hit for Newport News.

The game's single run came in the sixth.

Bees Beat Dodgers, 9-2 After Losing First, 7-2

By the Associated Press

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, June 30.—The Boston Bees scored their only victory of the series today and thereby snapped a Brooklyn winning streak by pounding out a 7-to-2 decision behind the steady pitching of Manuel Salvo, after Brooklyn won the first game 9 to 2.

Boston took charge of Luke Hamlin early in the second game, driving him out of the box with a third-inning five-run rally featuring a homer by Sebastian Sisti with two on.

Thirty-nine-year-old Fred Fitzsimmons held the Bees to eight singles in scoring his seventh victory of the season and the 199th of his big league career in the first game. Three of the hits came in succession in the third inning in the wake of a base on balls for

75 Guests Hear Maj. Smith's Talk on Horses

Seventy-five members and guests of the Washington Bridle Trails Association gathered at the Equitation Field in Rock Creek park yesterday afternoon to hear Maj. George I. Smith's third in a series of lectures on riding and jumping.

Maj. Smith, who has instructed at Fort Riley's Cavalry School and ridden as a member of Fort Myer's Horse Show team, discussed the use of the various aids and then spoke briefly on cross-country riding and hunting.

Next Sunday's lecture, to begin at 4 p. m. at the Equitation Field, will be given by Col. V. L. Sperry, Fort Myer veterinarian, on the care and treatment of horses.

Klein Tavern Wins 1st-Half Baseball Title

With a second straight title in the National City A League looming before it, Klein Tavern nine locked up first-half honors yesterday when it trampled J. C. Flood, its last bothersome foe, 9-1 in a playoff game, on the the Ellipse.

Meantime Plaza Tile, dark horse and newcomer in B Section of the league, covered itself with midway honors when it punched out a 10-7 victory over St. Francis Xavier. It was the last and critical game of the division.

To Tommy Doonis went the bulk of credit for Plaza's triumph, his five-hit performance and eight strikeouts helping to void four errors by his mates. The winners rang up 13 safeties off the slants of St. Francis' Boggs. The only extra-base hit of the game, a triple, came in the fifth off the bat of Outfielder Clinton.

Klein had things all its own way as it swamped Flood in the one-game playoff for the title. It pushed over two runs in the first inning and was never headed thereafter. The Plumbers' only run came in the sixth.

Bill Liggett, heady hurler of the Tavern Club, was touched for only four hits and he struck out 8. Giller, Rozelle and Burroughs

Yanks, Macks Split Pair of Close Contests

Champions Capture Opener, 4-3, Then Lose in 10th Inning

BY International News Service

New York, June 30.—The Yankees whipped Philadelphia, 4 to 3, in the first game of a double-header today and then dropped a ten-inning nightcap to the Athletics, 3 to 2.

New York eked out its victory in the ninth of the opener by pushing over two runs. In their half of the same canto, the Athletics also scored two runs to take a short-lived lead. Marv Breuer was the winning pitcher and Porter Vaughan, Connie Mack's latest southpaw, the loser.

A run in the tenth in the twilight game enabled the A's to gain a well-deserved split with the world's champions. In this contest, the Yankees were outhit 13 to 5.

Cards, Bucs Split Pair Of Shutouts

St. Louis Is Victor 1-0, in First; Bucs Take Second by 2-0

BY International News Service

Pittsburgh, June 30.—St. Louis shutout the Pirates, 1 to 0, in the first game of a double-header today, but Pittsburgh turned the tables in the nightcap by trimming the Cardinals, 2 to 0.

A run in the second inning of the first game grew to mountainous proportions as young Mort Cooper limited the Pirates to five safeties and nine horse collars. Losing Pitcher Bob Klinger and Mace Brown, who entered the nip-and-tuck battle in the ninth, limited the Cards to six bingles.

Max Butcher retaliated for the Buccanneers in the second foray, shutting out the Red Birds on four hits. Clyde Shoun went the distance for the visitors and was in trouble only in the third when Pittsburgh pushed across all of its runs.

Rousing Battle Expected Between Boyd and Hassett Tonight

Bettina Bout Waits Victor Of Heavy Go

4,000 Fans Expected To See 10-Rounder At Griffith Stadium; Boyd 6-5 Choice

By Al Hailey

The action tonight at Griffith Stadium is of the heavyweight variety, the fighters are Wild Bill Boyd, of Birmingham, and Irish Danny Hassett, of Philadelphia, the distance is scheduled for ten rounds—and it's anybody's guess as to the outcome.

Melio Bettina, former world's light heavyweight champion, the Yogi enthusiast, furnishes the incentive for tonight's affair. The winner will fight Bettina July 29 at the stadium in what appears certain to develop into a box-office "natural."

The "wise boys" yesterday were setting up Boyd, the former sailor and protege of Jack Dempsey, as the favorite, while those with a keener appreciation of the abilities of Hassett, the 'sturdy Oak, of Oak Lawn," were covering all available bets.

Boyd is expected to step into the ring in what will be Promoter Joe Turner's first heavyweight show of the outdoor season about a 6-to-5 favorite to take the slightly bulbous Philadelphian.

Regardless of the outcome, it shapes up as a real battle.

Hassett is a body-punching specialist, a powerful, barrel-chested hooker who never stops throwing his fists into his opponent's heart and kidney. Boyd is a sharp-hitting battler and shapes up as the choice tonight because of a style that should enable him to keep shooting to the chin inside Hassett's looping offerings.

The 26-year-old curly-haired Irishman, handled by Pete Moran, of the Philadelphia Morans, made his debut here by coming in with virtually no training and slamming Buddy Scott dizzy in 10 rounds to halt Buddy's winning streak of 17 or 18 straight. Buddy had never lost a local start.

Hassett appeared much overweight—there was a small "innertube" around his midsection—but now with two months' training he's coming back weighing even more—a healthy 168. Boyd is expected to weigh 195.

Promoter Joe Turner, extremely optimistic after recent fight successes, predicts a crowd of some 4,000 fans.

Six-rounders pit classy Billy Banks, the colored featherweight, against Jackie Carter, of Texas, and Art Lind, Ken Overlin's middleweight protege, against Jack Flowers, "Evil Eye" Finkel's colored flash.

Gilbert Mayo, Alexandria featherweight, and Baltimore's Vince Truminello fight their second pro battle in a four-rounder that opens the card at 8:30 p. m. It may steal the preliminary show.

Nine Newcomers On A.L. Star Roster

Yanks placed Joe DiMaggio, named for a fifth year, Joe Gordon and Red Rolfe.

Frankie Crosetti, Yankee shortstop who twice has been an all-star player, failed to make the team. Hank Greenberg, of Detroit, selected as an infielder in 1939, was chosen for outfield duty this year.

Complete Roster Of A. L. Players

Pitchers—Bob Feller, Al Milnar, Cleveland; Buck Newsom, Tommy Bridges, Detroit; Emil Leonard, Washington; Charles Ruffing and Monte Pearson, New York.

Catchers—Frank Hayes, Philadelphia; Bill Dickey, New York, and Rollie Hemsley, Cleveland.

Infielders—Jimmy Foxx, Boston; George McQuinn, St. Louis; Joe Gordon and Red Rolfe, New York; Ray Mack, Lou Boudreau and Ken Keltner, Cleveland; Luke Appling, Chicago.

Outfielders—Joe DiMaggio and Charles Keller, New York; Lou Finney, Roger Cramer and Ted Williams, Boston; Bob Johnson, Philadelphia, and Henry Greenberg, Detroit.

Manager—Joe Cronin, Boston. Coaches—Tom Daly, Boston, and Del Baker, Detroit. Batting practice pitcher—Paul Schrieber, New York. Batting practice catcher—Moe Berg, Boston. Trainer—Win Green, Boston.

Game scheduled 1:30 p. m. (C.S.T.), July 9; if postponed will be played Wednesday morning, July 10.

Horses to Watch

Patchpocket—Lost tongue strap going to post in recent race and is improving.

Bellthorn—Can den $800 company until the cows come home. Was beaten when too ambitiously placed.

Pushkin—Recent races have been encouraging and should take care of a short sprint.

Feeble in Pinch, Nats Lose Two To Sox, 6-5, 5-4

Washington Leaves 23 Men Stranded; 23,000 See Games

double into the right-field stands and a run scored on Bonura's grounder on which West was trapped between bases. At this point, Bonura confounded everybody by stealing second, and Travis scored him with a single to center. That blow knocked Hash from the box and Myer greeted Charley Wagner with a single to right, but Gelbert left his pals stranded with a harmless fly.

Gerald Walker beat out an infield hit against Wagner in the eighth, but he was one guy who wasn't left on base. He got himself picked off.

In that first game, Willis Hudlin scuttled it in the first three innings when he gave up six runs to the Red Sox after the Nats gave him a 2-to-0 lead. Among his sins were home runs balls which he pitched to Manager Joe Cronin and Bobby Doer, each at a time when a runner was on base.

Fat little Rene Monteagudo valiantly attempted to keep the Nats in the ball game after getting the pitching job in the fourth inning. The little Cuban turned in an amazing relief job. He didn't give up a hit to the Red Sox for the remainder of the game and he struck out six of them to earn the cheers of even the hostile Boston fans.

Nats Grab Early Lead

The Nats packed four hits into the first inning against Grove to take a 2-to-0 lead. Case bounced a double off the left-field wall, and with two out, Bonura scored a run with a long double to the center-field fence. Travis single to center to drive Bonura home.

Hudlin got by the first inning, but he didn't get by the second. Foxx singled to right, and Tabor tripled to right. Pofahl muffed Doerr's grounder at this point, and the score was tied. Then Cronin banged the ball over the center-field wall and the Red Sox had four runs for the inning.

The Nats were nudging Grove around, but not seriously, until the seventh, when they got back a run with the help of Grove's muff of Case's bunt. Lewis drew a walk and the bases were filled when Walker looped a single to left. Bonura hit into a double play at this point, Case scoring. Travis ended the inning with a screaming line drive—into Cramer's glove.

That rally in the ninth didn't take place until after two were out. Then Gee Walker jolted Gr

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

The Nats' Man of the Month for June was:

Dutch Leonard.

The three pitching victories achieved by the knuckle-ball star stamped him the Nats' most valuable performer during the last 30 days, and to his credit also was a luckless 3-1 defeat suffered at Cleveland in a night game.

Leonard beat out Zeke Bonura for the Man of the Month honors. It was the first time since April, 1939, that a pitcher has won the Man of the Month award.

George Case was the only other serious challenger for the honor.

To Leonard, The Washington Post will award a $50 merchandise order on any Washington store of his choosing.

To Rene Monteagudo, ten points, because he kept the Nats in the first game with his no-hit pitching job after relieving Hudlin at the start of the fourth inning.

To Cecil Travis, seven points, because he made two important hits in the first game and led off the ninth inning of the second game with a double that put the tying run on base.

To Walter Masterson, five points, because he kept the Nats in the second game with his seven-hit pitching.

To Zeke Bonura, four points, because he made three hits in the first game and played a clever fielding game in the twin bill.

To Gee Walker, four points, because he made three hits in the first game, including a home run.

The totals:

Dutch Leonard	72	Johnny Welaj	26
Zeke Bonura	56	Jake Early	25
George Case	51	Jimmy Pofahl	15
Sidney Hudson	45	Joe Haynes	13
Buddy Lewis	43	Al Evans	12

Walter Masterson	40	Buddy Myer	9
Ken Chase	33	Sammy West	5
Charley Gelbert	29	Rick Ferrell	5
Gerald Walker	28	Joe Krakauskas	5
Jimmy Bloodworth	26

Grays Defeat Black Yanks Twice, 5-1, 6-4

The Homestead Grays defeated the highly-touted Black Yankees in a double bill at Griffith Stadium yesterday, 5-1 and 6-4.

Jelli Jackson, former sandlotter, started the first-game offensive with a bunt, kept on to third when Roy Williams threw wild to first and scored on Johnny Brown's single to right.

Three more runs were added by the Grays in the sixth, when Easterling's three-run homer, to the clubhouse site in deep center, brought Judd Wilson and Buck Leonard in ahead of him.

In the nightcap, a 7-inning affair, the Yanks led off in the first with a hit by Washington down the third-base line. Washington stole second and came home on Spearman's hot liner which Judd Wilson failed to reach.

Outlook For Graduates

By Roger W. Babson

2,000,000 Face Changed World

AMERICA'S MAMMOTH educational mills have just thrown 2,000,000 school and college graduates on the doorsteps of industry. Already plagued by nearly 10,000,000 jobless, this new army of hopefuls adds further testimony to the fact that America must, as a vital part of our defense program, solve the unemployment problem.

It is a new world that greets these 2,000,000 fledglings, a vastly different world than the textbooks just tucked away on the shelves told them about. But these newcomers into the battle of life are desperately needed in helping America realistically face her challenge in this world-wide revolution.

BLUNTLY, graduates must recognize there are not the same opportunities for them that there were for their fathers and mothers. Jobs cannot pay so much in the future as they have in the past. For the first time in half a century the trend of the profits of American business is headed downward. The increased efficiency of our factories, machines and gadgets cannot offset the huge toll which defense expenditures will take.

For five decades America's unsurpassed engineers constantly improved the efficiency of our industrial machine. This increased efficiency sopped up sensational advances in Government and labor costs. Machines have made it temporarily possible to work less, waste more and yet enjoy a higher standard of living. Now, with Government and labor costs still rising, increased efficiency of American factories and machines cannot hope to overcome the additional burdens of mammoth defense expenses as well.

WITH THAT POINT firmly fixed in mind, today's graduate should also weigh the effect of a German-controlled Europe on American economy. Bluntly, again, the truth here is that the United States is in the worst competitive position in history. Despite our efficient industrial methods, we are on the defensive in world markets because of our high salaries, high wages, high taxes and terrible waste. Moreover, political influence always follows economic influence. Germany, Japan and Italy will exploit this to the fullest extent, particularly in South America.

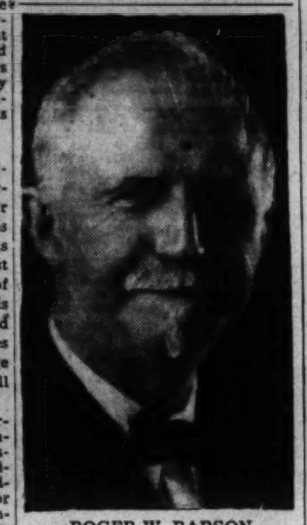
Individually-controlled democratic American businesses will find themselves at the mercy of state-controlled Fascist cartels. Confident of victory, Germany has just offered steel, for instance, to South America for October delivery at a substantial reduction from our prices. She can dictate selling prices because she can dictate what she pays for wages and raw materials. This Nazi announcement sounds an ominous note not only for our economy, but for our security. Naturally, our export firms are frightened. Hence, the 1940 job-seeker should not count on foreign trade opportunities.

SO FAR THIS is a pretty dismal outlook, but balanced against the uncertain picture of America's economy as a whole are definite opportunities in selected industries. Here are a few:

1. Chemicals: Most chemical companies are prosperous and have a tremendous future. Great developments are taking place in the plastic industry particularly. The future offers unlimited opportunities—war or peace, fascism or democracy, New Deal or Old Deal.

2. Aviation: The industry is America's youngest, America's most hopeful. The day is not too distant when it will be as cheap to ride the airways as the railways and the highways. Those interested in commercial piloting should enter through the air corps. But the industry needs more than pilots—it needs young men to grow up with it in its vital administrative work.

3. Building: One of the greatest contributions of the New Deal to the



ROGER W. BABSON

American scene is its attempts to put homes in the reach of small income brackets. It has solved the problem of financing and it is now attempting to solve the problem of high costs. Despite the uncertainties that war always brings to home building, I believe that building, its products and trades offer real opportunities.

4. Merchandising: America still needs better salesmen. This includes stores, mail order, advertising and personal selling. Whatever goods are made, or whoever makes them, they must be sold, irrespective of the value of the dollar or the character of the Government.

5. Defense: The Army, Navy, air forces, coast defense need able young men to make defense their career. The past 25 years clearly show that disarmament is a snare and delusion—that this country must not be caught unawares as were France and Great Britain in 1938.

Transit Offering To Be Made Today

Formal offering of a settlement plan to bondholders of two absorbed companies will be made today by the Capital Transit Co. and Washington Railway & Electric Co.

The offering to bondholders of the old Anacostia & Potomac River Railroad Co. and the City & Suburban Railway Co. follows registration by the Securities Commission of $3,439,000 in "certificates of modification, assumption and guarantee."

Details of the compromise plan were published in The Post last week. Copies of the prospectus are available at the Riggs National Bank, National Metropolitan Bank and the Safe Depoit & Trut Co., of Baltimore.

Men for Permanent Connection

My organization has authorized me to contact a man immediately who lives in Washington or vicinity and show him the details of this business, and then, if he feels that, due to lack of experience, he would be better off with it, to give him preliminary practice and guidance personally, without any expense or cost whatsoever to this man and start him in an opportunity that is permanent; liberal participation in the profits; no investment. Possibly several openings will be filled.

Steadiness and good character needed—not ability to sell, or a clientele or any previous experience. We are not advertising for salesmen—because the newest method of putting prospects into the market for this product is so unusual that most men have to see it working out in actual practice before they can believe it. Yet it is so simple that no time need be lost in getting started. While getting started, men of average ability must be willing to get going on reasonable weekly earnings. Men interested can learn quickly from practical men earning substantial incomes every week.

We do not require sales experience because this business is so different from other operations as sized up by most men. Results prove it. Yet, as in anything else, success generally requires hard work and study to qualify for the larger incomes.

Apply Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock sharp, at Suite 205, Dentike Bldg., Vermont avenue and K st. nw. No other time.

If You Earn Money
You Can Borrow Money Here

Our credit requirements are most reasonable. Loans here are based on your sense of responsibility and earning capacity. Therefore, you need not hesitate to apply for a loan in any amount from $10 to $300. You pay the loan a little at a time—out of income—and our E-q-u-a-l-i-z-e-d Payment Plan makes it easier for you to budget these sums. No co-signers. No furniture, no automobiles needed in most cases. No wage assignment. No extra fees, fines, or insurance charges. Only charge is interest as set by the "Uniform Small Loan Law." Utmost privacy—no information to employer, friends or relatives. Money in one day—red tape cut. Come in or phone for more information—no obligation, of course. Plenty of free parking.

Listen! with Slocum

Rear Admiral Watt Tyler Cluverius, U. S. N., retired, last surviving officer of the Maine, battleship which was blown up before the start of the Spanish-American War in the harbor at Havana, Cuba, headlines the list of guest stars on "We, the People," tomorrow at 8:00 over WJSV.

Admiral Cluverius is now president of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester, Mass.

Elsie Robinson, famous columnist who writes "Listen World," which is syndicated by King Features, also will be a guest and relate several of her own experiences.

Another interesting guests is Pat Julie, 18-year-old blonde from New Jersey, who has an unusual job at the World's Fair. During her working hours Julie lies on a bed in a concession on the Midway while the paying customers pitch baseballs at a lever, which is attached to the bed. A direct hit on the lever tilts the bed and sends Miss Julie tumbling to the ground.

Helen Hayes, selected to play the lead in the final Lux Radio Theater production of the current season at Columbia's Hollywood studio, will fly across the continent for her one hour's broadcast Monday, July 8. Miss Hayes plans to leave LaGuardia Airport July 3, arriving in Hollywood the morning of July 4, and starts rehearsals. The play in which she is to appear is a comedy of domestic life, "To the Ladies," written by George S. Kaufmann and Marc Connelly.

Lucas Sees Lack Of Unity in Willkie, McNary Principles

Asserting that Senator McNary had voted against "nearly everything" that Wendell L. Willkie "now advocates," Senator Lucas (Democrat), Illinois, suggested last night that the Republican Presidential nominee obtain a "degree of unity" with his vice presidential running-mate.

Willkie, Lucas said in a statement, told the Republican Convention last week that "his highest ambition is to promote national unity."

The Illinois Senator said that McNary had supported all Federal power projects; had voted against the Administration's neutrality plan making it possible to sell arms to the Allies; had opposed the reciprocal trade pacts, and had voted against some Administration defense proposals.

Rubbernecks' War Questions Swamp Lecturers on Buses

Spiels Appear to Have Been Learned From Books, in Piping Times of Peace; Sherman Quotation Fails to Stop Queries

Lecturers on Washington's sightseeing buses seem liable to some revision in their spiels.

This will be terrific, because the lecturers, worthy men who stand in the front of the buses and elaborate on points of interest, appear from their precise narrative to have learned the lectures word by word from textbooks. The war—and what Washington is doing in it—wasn't going on when they went to the lecturers' school.

Tourists Full of War Talk

The tourists are plying the lecturers with questions, hinging on the war. One round among the tourists disclosed it yesterday. And maybe one lecturer foresaw it.

When his bus, loaded, turned out of Pennsylvania avenue he whirled his hand toward the Washington Hotel, lecturing: "In that hotel resides John Nance Garner, the Vice President of the United States."

Only a couple of heads reacted. The lecturer indicated Gen. Sherman's Monument. "There stands the statue of William Tecumseh Sherman. He said 'War is ——.' Just three little words they were. Think them over," he said, without saying what the third word was. He seemed anxious to abolish the subject of war at the trip's start.

He did down it for a while. But several times it nearly cropped up—once when Pennsylvania avenue was described as one of the Nation's greatest parade routes. The tourists perked up. And again he grazed the edges of it when the Peace Monument was passed. But he hurried on before questions arose, before someone asked, "What peace?"

Like Bears at Zoo

Things were routine and the spiel undisturbed as the bus toured Scott Circle. "A very curious monument," he said. "Look at it closely: The body of the rider is as big as the horse." All the tourists looked, and agreed with head wags. They were intensely interested in the Columbus Monument and gasped when the lecturer said the Capitol dome weighed 9,980,000 pounds. There was no visible reaction to the building housing the Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Morals. The tourists like the bears in the Zoo.

But when they came to the river and recalled reading that the President was somewhere on his yacht, they demonstrated to the lecturer the inadequacy of spiels. He had wanted to talk about the excursion boat, the Robert E. Lee, and the thriving waterfront.

"What's he doing down the river?" the tourists inquired. "Something about the war?" That turn held them until the bus got back home.

Forboding for Aliens

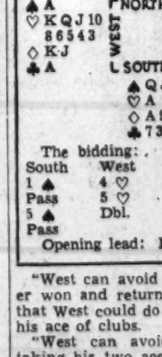
The lecturer explained: The President is seeing about fingerprinting the aliens. "Many of them are walking around this country now that won't be doing it long," he anticipated.

Earlier, they had wanted to know how many embassies were closed because of the war and were framing questions about a troop of Fort Myer Cavalry when the lecturer turned attention to the Lincoln Memorial, "the noblest monument to man by man."

Waiting for the tourists to return from the memorial, the lecturer observed that it's difficult to say what's most popular in Washington these days, but the tour through Government buildings is very popular. "They like to see what the Government's doing now," he said. That had been clear two minutes after the bus pulled out with the tourists.

Station PDS Presents Pianist as Guest

A visitor to Washington will be the guest artist this morning on the PDS program.



BETTY BEEBE

She is Miss Betty Beebe, of Bridgeport, Conn. Miss Beebe plays the piano accompaniment with an instrument trio, and is also the accompanist for a Swedish folk dancing team. Miss Beebe will broadcast over Station WMAL.

"Station PDS Presents," broadcast by Lee Everett from the Peoples Drug Stores Studio, Eleventh and G street northwest, is presented each week-day morning from 7:30 to 8:30 over Station WMAL by Peoples Drug Stores in co-operation with The Washington Post. Anyone over 18 years old may participate in the auditions at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays at the N. B. C. Studios. Performers are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

"West can avoid the play by taking his two aces before playing the king of hearts."

After taking the club ace in the actual situation, West had to lead either a diamond, giving declarer both the queen and diamond ace, or a heart, allowing declarer to sluff a diamond from dummy and trump in his own hand. South made five spades, losing two aces.

Y.; Mrs. Nina Newton, and Mrs. Iva Lawrence, both of Silver Spring.

Emerson Merrill Rites Set Today In Michigan City

Funeral services for Emerson Merrill, 74, Washington builder, who died Thursday in Ann Arbor, Mich., will be at 2 p. m. today in Ann Arbor, friends here reported yesterday.

Mr. Merrill and his wife went to Michigan several weeks ago to attend the graduation of their grandson from the University of Michigan. They celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary on June 18. In Washington, they made their home at 1361 Fairmont street northwest.

Mr. Merrill was associated with the Building & Loan Co., and the Merrill Mansion Apartment Hotel.

A native of Stratford, N. H., he lived most of his life in Somerville, Mass., before coming to Washington several years ago. He was a member of the Calvary Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Charles Brashares, of Ann Arbor, and six grandchildren.

Mrs. R. H. Bowling, Widow of Union Leader Here, Dies

Mrs. Katharine J. D. Bowling, 60, widow of Richard H. Bowling, one-time president of the Interior Decorators Union here, died yesterday at Mount Alto Hospital.

Mrs. Bowling was born in Marlboro, Md., and passed the rest of her life in Washington, except for 12 years when she was a resident of New York City. Her home was at 4226 Seventh street northwest.

Surviving are a son, John D. Bowling, of New York City; a daughter, Mrs. Katherine B. Chancey, of Washington; a sister, Mrs. Charles H. T. Townsend, of San Palo, Brazil, and one grandson. Funeral plans will be announced later.

James Henderson, Retired Builder, Succumbs at 71

James L. Henderson, 71, retired contractor, died yesterday at his home, 5234 Eighth street northwest, after a long illness.

Mr. Henderson was born in Alexandria, Va., and passed all of his life in Washington engaged in the building trade. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Carolyn R. Henderson, of Washington; three sons, James M., of Panama, George Francis, of Washington, and Raymond C. Henderson, of East Orange, N. J.; and three children.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Drive Set to Aid Child Refugees Of War in U. S.

New York, June 30 (AP).—Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Allied Relief Fund, said today a campaign would be launched July 4 to raise $5,000,000 to shelter Europe's child war refugees in this country.

The Allied Relief Fund was organized recently to coordinate efforts of all U. S. relief agencies interested in the care of refugee children.

Aldrich said the drive was requested by U. S. Government officials and indorsed by Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States. It will be carried on in every part of the country, he added, with the support of child welfare agencies and local committees.

Contributions will be turned over to the U. S. Committee for the Care of Europe's Children, formed here last week with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as honorary leader.

The first contingent of youngsters fleeing the war is expected to arrive in Canada within two weeks. Plans are being made to care for up to 20,000 child refugees in this country.

Elizabeth Porter Funeral Set For Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Porter, 27, wife of Thomas Porter, of Brookeville, Md., will be at 11 a. m. tomorrow at the Roy Barber funeral home, Laytonsville, Md. Mrs. Porter died Saturday at the Montgomery County General Hospital, Sandy Spring, after a long illness.

The Rev. D. G. Sturgis, pastor of the Brookeville Methodist Church, will conduct the services tomorrow. Burial will be in Brookeville Cemetery.

Ex-Rep. Swift Dies in Brooklyn

New York, June 30.—Former Representative Oscar William Swift, 71, a partner in the legal firm of Watson, Kristeller & Swift, died today at his home in Brooklyn.

Mr. Swift, a Republican, was a member of the House of Representatives from the Ninth New York District, Brooklyn, from 1914 to 1918.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Jessie A. Swift; three daughters, Mrs. Josephine Billings, Brooklyn; Mrs. Harriet Krun, Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Dorothy Woods, St. Louis, Mo.; a son, Warren Swift, Brooklyn, and a granddaughter, Miss Margot Woods, St. Louis.

Norway Warned To Dethrone King

London, June 30 (AP).—Germany has threatened to put Norway "fully" under Nazi control and administration if the Norwegian Parliament does not remove King Haakon and his refugee government, now in London, said an Exchange Telegraph (British News Agency) dispatch from Goteborg, Sweden, today.

The dispatch said Joseph Terboven, German commissioner for Norway, had demanded that Parliament be summoned to oust King Haakon and Johan Nygaardsvold, head of the refugee government.

OFF ON THE CHOO-CHOO. Dear Customers: Your columnist is about to take off for that town christened Little Old New York by George Cohan, Manhattan by the Indians and Gotham by goodness knows who. Below is an encyclopedia Washingtonia of all the spots you shouldn't miss. Hasta la vista, au revoir and I'll be seein' you-all.

Where to Go. In the City Limits.

ANCHOR ROOM. Real flagship atmosphere. Frisky songs by Eileen George and zestful pianoing and accordioning by Matt Windsor at both afternoon and evening cocktail hours.

CARLTON COCKTAIL LOUNGE. Decidedly on the swank side and much favored by prominent people. Excellent piano harmonies by Helen Myers and Erwin Devron from 5 to 7 and 7:30 to 11:30.

HARRINGTON TAVERN. Cool, quiet and comfortable. Luncheons and snacks are served at the bar. Popular priced dinners, too.

HI HAT. One of the town's liveliest spots during both afternoon and evening. All the new tunes and old ones, also played vimfully by a new "surprise unit" right from a top New York spot. They start today so go around and be surprised.

KING COLE ROOM. Smartly modern, but softly lighted and soothing. Songs by Arthur Todd, who's also a bit of a super-guitarist. Entertainment is from 5 to 7 and 10 to 2.

LEE STABLES. Attractive new spot on Riverside Drive. Airy and with a lovely view and nice food. You can go inside or have drive-in service.

LOTUS. Prize Chinese-American spot. Handsome and glossy revues including vaudeville acts and full beauty "lines" are presented at 1 p. m., 7:30 p. m. and midnight. Continuous dance music in the evening by Bill Strickland's Dixielanders and the Continental Trio.

LOUNGE RIVIERA. Favorite society spot. Beautifully redecorated and divinely cool. Dinner and supper dancing to Pete Macias' music than which there is no whicher. Songs in French and English by delightful Harriet Derck who knows all the Noel Coward tunes ever written.

MADRILLON. Colorful Latin-American atmosphere. Luncheon music by Arsenior Ralon and Sasha Bartnowsky. Luis Ortiz and Adelita entertain at the cocktail hour. The Carr and Don orchestra arrives at 7:30 and later alternates dance numbers with Madrillon's Merry Muchachos.

MAYFAIR. Big, bright and modernistic. Has the dizziest murals in town. The Lyle Smith Trio keeps things a-popping during both afternoon and evening with giddy novelties and many request numbers. Mayfair's Saturday afternoon cocktail sessions should be a "must" item on your list.

MAYFLOWER LOUNGE. Tremendously smart. Both afternoon and evening dancing to Dick Koons' Glee Club music. A spot that generally looks like a combination style show and political caucus.

METRONOME ROOM. Little Jack Little is currently holding forth and packing 'em in. Dancing begins at 9:30 and you'd better be there bright and early if you haven't reservations. Extra reason for hurry is that Wednesday is Jack's last night because he has theater engagements to fulfill . . . Metronome will then close for extensive redecorations, will reopen later.

NEPTUNE ROOM. Hilt Herth's Trio, nationally known on the air waves, whirling platters and theater stages, plays in Neptune both afternoons and eves. Also Evelyn Tyner, a really dazzling pianist, who played two solid seasons in the Rockefeller Rainbow Room.

NEW BAVARIAN. Carefree atmosphere, interesting food and something always happening. Durward Bowersox and Eddie Whitesel give out on violin and accordion at luncheon and afternoon cocktail hours. Later in the evening you'll hear the double piano of the Heintze boys, Jane Marlow's violin and community singing led by Tommy Suter.

RAINBOW ROOM. Elegant dinner and supper dance music by Milton Davis and his orchestra. Lew Berman is the song specialist. Novachording by Milton earlier in the afternoon. Guy Richardson will analyze your handwriting.

SHOREHAM TERRACE. One of the biggest and most beautiful dance spots in the whole wide world. Ablaze nightly with tinted lights, blossoms, a rainbow fountain and Barnee's silky dance rhythms. The nightly revue presented at 10 p. m. is always of first-class stage show caliber.

STARLIGHT ROOF. Atop the Roger Smith Hotel. Always cool and breezy. Excellent service and delicious food. Dance music with a sparkle by the strictly "class" Arthur Herbert Orchestra. Dancing begins at 7:30, continues until 1. Suburban Best Bets.

DEL RIO. Three night spots in one. There's the vivid Fiesta Room with dance music by Rollin Webber who leads spiritedly from the drums. In the huge cocktail lounge you'll find Dandanelle singing and playing the electric vibraphone. And you can enjoy snacks and sandwiches in the grill.

FAT BOY ROOF GARDEN. Brightest spot on New York avenue extended. Sweet 'n swing dance music by that up-and-coming young maestro, Joe Cochran. Rain doesn't matter because then the awnings are rolled out over the customers.

GLEN ECHO. The amusement park ideal. Dine or snack on the roof garden cafe overlooking the crowds. Dancing is in the Spanish Ballroom to the music of Paul Kain, prince of rhythm in the Roman candle manner.

NITHINGALE. One of the biggest and brightest dance spots for miles around. Maestro Rod Raffell leads from the piano and concocts his own arrangements. The tag-line for the Raffell music ought to be "Music of Tomorrow," it's that modern.

O'DONNELL'S FARMS. The home of "plantation dinners." It's really an old plantation house. You ought to go out in the daytime as well as in the evening so as to appreciate the fascinating setting.

RIVER BEND. George Stein's band and delectable chicken dinners prepared according to a secret recipe. River Bend has two double-extra weekly events, "Piggy Parties" on Wednesdays and "Swing Nights" on Fridays.

Gets Final Decree

In the circuit court at Rockville, Judge Charles W. Woodward has signed a decree granting to Mrs. Pearl E. Merson, of Rockville, an absolute divorce from Albert S. Merson. It was shown that the couple were married February 4, 1920, and have four children. The decree awards to the defendant custody of the couple's two youngest children.
